

What you NEED to Know about the Previous TSI Exams and NEW TSIA2

ACCUPLACER launched the New TSIA 2.0 this past January 11, 2021, replacing the previous TSI.

The main change was from 3 sections (Reading, Math and Writing), to only 2 sections (ELAR and Math). Even though it is only 2 sections, these new exams (ELAR and MATH) are more rigorous and challenging; students are taking longer to complete them as well.

Please know the following regarding what sections you might have taken prior to Jan. 11th and what scores may qualify you NOT to take the New ELAR and/or Math sections:

- If students Passed BOTH the Reading & Writing sections prior to Jan. 11, 2021, they do NOT have to take the New ELAR section
 - If they passed BOTH, those scores are good for 5 years since the day they passed them
 - They NEED to have PASSED Both in order to NOT take the NEW ELAR Section
- If students only Passed one of either the Reading or Writing (or perhaps did to pass or take either of them) sections prior to Jan. 11, 2021, they DO have to take the New ELAR section
- If students took the Reading and/or Writing sections prior to Jan. 11th, they may be able to use some parts of either of these sections depending on scores. Please see the (TSIA2 Retest Options for ELAR using previous Reading & Writing scores Flyer) on our TSI Assessment website to learn more.
- If students Passed the Math section prior to Jan. 11, 2021, they do NOT have to take the New Math section
 - If they passed Math, those scores are good for 5 years since the day they passed it.
- If students did NOT pass or take the Math section prior to Jan. 11, 2021, they DO have to take the New Math section
