A DOMESTIC COOK BOOK BY MALINDA RUSSELL

A Domestic Cook Book (1866) by Malinda Russell, recently featured on National Public Radio, is the oldest known published cookbook by an African-American woman. This book contains 260 recipes and household tips that draw from Malinda Russell's twenty years of experience. Recipes include desserts such as: allspice cake, French lady cake, lemon puffs, boiled berry pudding, and much more. The original book is housed in the Janice Bluestein Longone Culinary Archive at the University of Michigan Library's Special Collections Research Center. This new edition preserves an important part of Michigan and American history.

LITERACY & MATH SKILLS IN COOKING

Reading recipes while cooking with your child is a fun way to boost both reading and math skills. As you follow the recipe together, your child practices reading and comprehension by identifying ingredients and instructions, while also learning sequence and structure. In terms of math, they get hands-on practice with measurements, fractions, and even scaling recipes. Cooking can be a fun way to build literacy and math skills, all while creating a delicious meal!
