Dear Parent or Guardian:

I hope this email finds you and your family well. Much has changed in a very short period of time and will continue to change quickly in the weeks and months ahead. We find ourselves in a different and new reality. In these unprecedented times, educators have an important role to support and teach our students in a new environment. Leveraging our current tools, e-learning can give us an opportunity to move our curriculum forward. We need to remember that e-learning can't replace a teacher and e-learning can never simulate students sitting physically in a classroom. With that said, our systems and our preparations have put us all in a unique position to deliver our curriculum to your child. Below is a helpful link providing e-learning tips for students.

e-Learning Tips for Students – <https://elearningindustry.com/10-study-tips-for-online-learners-getting-the-most-out-of-your-elearning-course>

1. Understand online learning practices and expectations
2. Make sure you have reliable internet access
3. Have a dedicated study space
4. Identify your learning objectives and goals
5. Build a study plan (planning, use a calendar, use a to-do list, set time limits, etc.)
6. Ask for help when you need it
7. Review, revise, repeat
8. Take study breaks
9. Participate in online discussions
10. Stay motivated

I wanted to share with you an email I sent to your child today. The email provides key information for your child regarding how an e-learning day will work. The email also outlines expectations for your child on an e-learning day. Critical to the success of an e-learning day is the two-way communication between your child and their teachers.
