Project Snapshot

After sifting through hundred-year-old photographs of Kinnickinnic Avenue, researching famous figures from Bay View's past, and reading articles highlighting the current neighborhood controversy over the KK Art Stop, English 12 students collaborated with artist-in-residence, Luther Hall, to design vinyl stickers representative of their discoveries.

They used their stickers, along with stickers from local businesses, to cover two unsightly electrical boxes standing at the controversial Art Stop. In so doing, they created two beautiful and intriguing conversation starters, whether for transient commuters or passing residents.

In addition, the project shares the living, growing story of the Bay View community.
