October has been a wonderful month filled with learning, growth, and great memories in our classroom. As we move forward, we want to remind you how important regular attendance is to your child's success. Being present each day helps students stay connected, build strong learning habits, and make steady progress. Thank you for your continued support in ensuring your child attends school consistently and on time!

Attendance Overview

Attending school every day is one of the most important factors in a child's academic success. When students are present consistently, they build strong routines, stay caught up on lessons, and develop important social and emotional skills. Missing even a few days can make it harder for children to understand new material, stay connected with classmates, and feel confident in their learning. Regular attendance also teaches responsibility and helps set good habits for middle school, high school, and beyond. By ensuring your child is at school each day, you're helping them build a strong foundation for future success.

If your child misses a day please send in either a doctor's note (unlimited amount) or a parent note (ten notes a year) when your child returns to school.

Classroom Expectations

This year we have moved to using the acronym MVPT in the classroom for tier one classroom management. The purpose of this is to make sure that all expectations are known in class after each transition to prevent any misunderstandings.

Investigation of a Threat

When a student is believed to have made a threat of harm to another student, a teacher or other school personnel, the school or district will take appropriate steps to investigate the alleged incident and take appropriate disciplinary and legal action as necessary. Part of this process is a threat assessment. A threat assessment is a team approach. It involves evaluating the threat and the circumstances surrounding the threat. The purpose of the threat assessment is to determine if the person poses a threat to others and/or self, determine the level of threat, and take preventive and corrective action as necessary. The KCSO uses a software application that incorporates the National Threat Assessment Center (NTAC) model for threat assessments and the Columbia Suicide Severity Rating Scale (C-SSRS) for suicide assessments allowing for a uniform approach to conducting assessments.

Procedures for investigating and responding to a potential threat may include, but are not limited to:

- Investigation of an alleged incident by principal or his/her designee.
- Removal of the student from the classroom setting or school bus pending disciplinary action resulting from investigation.
- Referral for threat assessment as described in the KCSO threat assessment protocol. The assessment may include the student being interviewed by the school counselor, school psychologist, or other qualified school or district personnel as needed.
- Possible referral to an outside agency for a safety assessment.
- Notification of and possible further investigation by law enforcement.
- Notification of parents/guardians and others as required by state law and board policy.

Attendance is a critical factor in any child's school success. Children should attend school every day, except in cases of illness or emergency. It is impossible to replace the learning that happens on any school day with make-up work.

Regular attendance and promptness are good habits that are expected and appreciated at all levels of schooling and in the workplace. This year, make school a priority in your household. Commit to excellence in attendance. Your child's future depends on it!
