CELEBRATION STATION. Varsity players go crazy after a dunk. Zach Purcell ('24) cheers on his team, "Cheering my teammates on brings the energy up off the court and gives them confidence on the court," said Purcell. Photo by Ashlyn Marble.

This year, St. Michael-Albertville, as a community has gone through many changes. STMA High School has gained twenty-eight new teachers, three new administrators, multiple new sports coaches, and many new policies. Within the cities they are building so many new things: strip malls, restaurants, roundabouts, even new roads. However, the sense of community and the culture of STMA has not changed. We are still St. Michael-Albertville- the friendly, small town. Our amazing spirit from our schools will always be there. No matter the changes, there is still a prideful feeling each student gets at a sporting event, incredible talent in our fine arts programs, and meaningful education every student gains. This is us. This is STMA High School.

SUMMER LOVIN'. Part of Minnesota living includes enjoying our summer months, whether that be traveling out of the country, hanging out with friends, finishing up summer sports, or having the boat full of people. For Grace Holmberg ('26), Izzie Mariotti ('26), and Claire Bunnell ('26), they like to watch the sunsets on the lake at Izzie's cabin, on Mille Lacs Lake. Mariotti said, "My favorite part of watching the sunset on the lake is how the sunset is never the same, and how the colors reflect off the lake." Photo submitted by Izzie Mariotti and spread designed by Maddy Petranek.

magical music in disney

The St. Michael- Albertville marching band traveled to Florida on June 30, through July 6th with a 30 hour bus ride down there and back, and preformed the show as they marched through Magic Kingdom on July 2nd. On the rest of the days, the Knights spent in their chaperone groups riding rides in the parks, going shopping, and completed one parade through the entire park. "With the day off on July 3rd, everyone spent the day on Coco Beach, and made a large picnic that was a nice time to relax," said Harrison Hansen ('23). During the trip to Florida, the team was very busy marching almost everyday and playing their favorite song "Star Wars". "When the band played Star Wars, visitors faces light up when the intro was played," said KaSandra McKeown ('23). Squeezing in time for activities, including riding rides at the parks they visited in Disney world (Epcot and Magic Kingdom), and even squeezed in a visit to Coco Beach for the day. Marching through Magic Kingdom, Alexander Boltz ('23) directed the band as they continue to make their magic as they march their way through the park. "The entire band was so joyful as they played loud and proud in the happiest place on earth. This trip definitely brought the whole crew closer together and was just a great bonding experience." Alexander Boltz ('23). Photos by Harrison Hansen. Spread designed by Heidi Frank.

RAIN WON'T STOP US. All of the participants that traveled to Florida take a photo before their first march, in very stormy weather. "The rainy weather made practicing so much fun, it was fun to be all wet before a show," said Kassie McKeown ('23). Photo by Disney photographer.

MEET THE PRO. The Anglers got a visit from, Local Minnesota Angler also Pro-Fisherman, Chad Smith. He walked the team through his office, sharing tips and tricks he has learned over his last ten+ years both on his own and in the boats with other professionals. Jayce Wolkerstorfer ('24) said, "I was excited to hear all of Chad's goals in life and how he got to where he is today. I hope I can be like him someday because that would be so cool." Photo by Beth Larsen.

TALENTED TACTIC. Carson Richie ('26), put up this large mouth bass this summer on lake middle kullen. Richie said, "My favorite lure is Texas rig and my tactic for fishing is when the sun comes down I throw out under the dock and look for lily pads because that's where I have the most luck of getting something good." Photo submitted by Carson Richie.

ABOUT THAT BASS. This angler has been a member of the team for three years. Andrew Butkowski ('23) explained, "I tossed my Texas rig under the dock and reeled her in. It was a large mouth bass, she was beauty who weighed 3lbs 3oz. I absolutely love fishing, it's one of my favorite things to do." Photo submitted by Andrew Butkowski.

two teams make it to Tournament of Champions

The STMA Anglers had their fifth season this summer. They competed in the Student Angler Tournament Trail which lasted from June 5th to September 11th. The first tournament, on June 5th, was the first ever SATT-National High School Walleye Championship, STMA had sent three teams to compete out of approximately 75 teams state wide. The team of Andrews/Lewis finished in 5th place. Their total weight ending up at 16.53 lbs. 9 teams also partook on the Lake Minnetonka tournament on June 12th, the team of Ojeda/Williams placed 48th out of 180 teams. Although the bites did not produce a lot of big fish, it was a tight race all the way to the finish line. This also included the anglers participating in a Lake Mille Lacs tournament on Sunday, July 24th, and they had an amazing turnout. STMA had two teams that qualified for the Tournament of Champions, the teams were Waller/Johnson and Sieber/Colotti. Sieber ('23) explained his fear going into the tournament, "My partner and I were really nervous because we had a certain pattern of fish that we needed to catch and on the day of the tournament we had to completely change that pattern due to weather conditions." They end up in 34th place, their largest fish being at 4.04 lbs, smallest fish at 2.82 lbs, and reeling it in with a total of 16.92 lbs. They had a really successful day "overall me and Vincent were really happy with how we did especially since it was our first time competing in the TOC. Michael Sieber said, "We really aren't the best at catching smallmouth but we found a way and made it happen." The Anglers put up a strong fight and some good fish all season but are hoping for even more improvement and higher placing next year. Spread designed by Lauren Dinh.

This summer a bunch of STMA students and a few other students from around the country, one boy from Winona High school, one girl from South Carolina, and six students from Pennsylvania as well. Sophomores through seniors were able to sign up for the trip. The STMA students that are a part of this amazing trip were Kiera Kuiper ('24), Kate Brandli ('24), Zach Pederson ('23), Connor Peterson ('23), Lauren Delong ('24), and Evan Warner ('23). On the Trip many activities were planned like riding horses through the mountains, surfing lessons, many hikes to waterfalls and rivers, cleaning up the beaches, night time turtle patrol, science lab work with PHD students and professors, Kate Brandli said, "I learned a lot about how to do real science." The group also went to a chocolate factory. The group went to different food places, Zach Pederson said, "My favorite thing on the trip was definitely the food in Finca La Anita." Many of the students that went on this summer trip say that it was an amazing experience and they loved meeting all the new people, and making new friends. Spread design by Paige Butler.

wake surfing gains popularity life on the lake.

Over the summer, many people spent the hot days out on the lake. Wake surfing has become very popular, as more and more people are trying it. Kyleigh Johnston (‘26) has been surfing for two years. "I started surfing because I saw my friend try it and it looked super fun. Once I tried, I realized that life is better when you surf,” Johnston said. There are many factors that go into being able to surf. Joey Torgeson (‘23) has been surfing for three years and there are many things that still go through his head while he is surfing. “When I surf I usually need the rope to be tight before they take off so there’s no slack. Then when I’m surfing, I try to keep my feet in a certain position so I don’t nose dive,” said Torgeson. Quinn Opiola (‘25) loves wake surfing and trying new tricks. “My favorite part about surfing is getting up on a wave and riding it out for a while. The best feeling is trying a 360 and hitting it,” said Opiola. Maverick Kneefe (‘24) spends a lot of his free time out on the lake during the summer. ”My favorite part about surfing is getting up for the first time of the day, getting the feel of everything, and then just cruising through the water. Hearing the music when you’re getting pulled and seeing all your friends watching is one of the best feelings when you’re out on the lake,” said Kneefe. Many STMA students spent their free time out on the lake. Wake surfing has become an enjoyable hobby for many STMA students. Spread by Avery Jackson.

SURF'S UP. Since Nick Gustafson ('23) was ten years old, he has spent his free time surfing. Over the summer, Nick was out on Lake Charlotte surfing. He said, "I continue to do surf because it's a getaway from life and I like to learn new tricks." Photo submitted by Nick Gustafson.

Senior sunrise is a newer tradition for STMA. This tradition started in 2022 and isn't going away anytime soon. It's an event taken place homecoming week and is for only seniors. There are games and teabombs for sale. Many people played spike ball and others just hung out and watched the sunrise. STMA student council puts this event together. Hannah Kvant ('23) a member of the student council said, "Senior sunrise was a new idea last year that really good turn out and we wanted to continue it to this year. To plan we talked with our student council and admin. Admin approved and tried our best to get the word around about it through social media. Overall the turn out was super great and will hopefully be brought back for the years to come." Senior sunrise is something that seniors can enjoy as a senior class. Its a chance for the senior class to hang out together. Not only is it just hanging out but it is also seeing the people you have been attending school with for the last 4 years together. Logan Jans ('23) said, "My favorite part of senior sunrise was playing spike ball with my friends, eating doughnuts, and drinking a teabomb." Pictures by Ashlyn Marble. breaking the curse:

knights beat rebels for first away win in two years

Back in the fall of 2019, STMA moved from the Mississippi 8 to the Lake Conference moving the football team to the Metro Gold North Conference. Coach Essler explained some of the challenges that are unique to our football program with this change. “Normally for away games, we have the players dress at the opponent's school and we all eat a team meal in the cafeteria together. I honestly don’t know what is so hard about away games- I wish I could tell you. If I had to guess, it would be the timing. The long bus rides zap the players. It was easier to win away games when we were a part of the Mississippi 8 Conference with the closer opponents.” So if home games are easier to win, what makes home games more special than away games? Defensive back, Josh Segler (‘23) responded, “I think the environment and the overall atmosphere with all the fans getting involved is what makes it so special.” Defensive back, Reese Johnson (‘23) shared some of the differences in their routine for the Champlin Park game which may have led to the win over the Rebels: “We had a short practice the day before. We did special teams meetings on Thursday instead of on Friday. We went home to eat after school on Friday instead of staying at school to eat. We got dressed at school instead of at Champlin.” The team hopes to continue their away game streak into next year and wide receiver, Brody Odland (‘23) gives some advice for the players to do so next year: “You have to change up the routine, you can’t have the same thing every time because we had the same routine for two years and it didn’t work.” The Knights ended up defeating the Rebels 24-20 in a close victory. It’s hard to tell if the change in routine is exactly what helped with the long-awaited win. Only time will tell if the change in routine is what will push our team further in the postseason in the coming years. Spread designed by Bennett Moger.

PUSHING TO VICTORY. Time in the game runs out and Conner Luongvan ('23), Ryan Luster ('23), and Brett Roos ('23) celebrate after the big win. Luongvan said, "We wanted to break the curse for so long, and I’m happy that it was my Senior year." Photo by Bennett Moger.

ON THE RUN. Running the ball into the end zone, Muhiz Bada ('24) scores during the third quarter. The Knights beat Champlin Park at home on October 8th 14-0. "The feeling is so rewarding to be able to push for my team like that and give it back to them, finishing a drive on offense can be extremely tiring and difficult to finally be able to finish it out it feels indescribable." Junior Varsity goes undefeated for two seasons

As the time winded down the clock, the Knights could already be seen celebrating another undefeated season. They Knights have gone two seasons without losing a game. One of the team players is Sebastian Murillo ('24), who played wide receiver. Murillo said "It feels great, knowing that all the work you put in is playing off." The team had to play hard to keep wining games. After each victory, the Knights felt the pressure and intensity to win the next game. The role of the quarter back to pin point the open player and make the hard decision during the game. Will Barthel ('24) who has sharp eyes that helped lead the team to the season 8-0 victories. "It gives me confidence knowing that everyone around me was giving 100% on Saturday morning ." That really showed in the game when they would win all 8 of their games. Many players created team chemistry that was the major contributing factor in winning games. Wide receiver, Sol Beaudry ('24), said " Personally, for me, I believe that it's truly a perfect team sport because sure there are play makers out there that make a huge difference but when it really comes down to it, it's everyone else that is making you look good." There was a lot of effort put into this season to make sure the Knights not lose a game the whole season. After the season ended, Noah Demo ('24) said, " It was one heck of the season for the boys, 8-0 is pretty good record I'd say." The Junior Varsity team is very proud of their season and want to the wining streak alive in the next seasons to come.

Seven underclassmen cheerleaders made a strong impact on this year's competitive sideline cheer season. The team practices for four days a week compared to middle school. Alexis Purnell ('25) said, "High school cheer is different from middle school teams because in high school you have to have more dedication and be willing to put the work in." The younger athletes had strong role models to look up to who have already established a strong group. Delaney Hughes ('25) said, "I look up to my senior captains Kylee Formo and Lexi Kemmetmueller because they are so strong and help people feel like they belong and motivate people to try their hardest." Coach Becky Stephens encourages her squad to come up with personal goals every season. Grace Larson ('26) said, "My personal goals for high school is to just be a fun and good overall person and enjoy my time here as well as get the best grades I am able to get." Sideline cheer is intense because they perform in front of thousands of people. Constructive criticism is helpful for the team to progress. Cece Lund ('26) said, "One critique I was told is to take things one step at a time, I try this as much as possible and remember this throughout the season." Every year underclassmen impact the cheer team by bringing new faces and talent to the squad.

It was standing room only at Monticello High School when the Knights Varsity volleyball team faced the Rogers Royals on November 3. The parent and student sections filled the space with tense noise for the second consecutive year in a row as the Knights warmed up to rematch the Royals in section finals. The Knights had lost to the Royals in the 2021 section finals but had beat the Royals in the 2022 regular season and scrimmage. For outside hitter Tessa Johnson, a large motivator was pride. Johnson ('23) said, "My biggest motivation for this season was the fact that everyone doubted us because we lost a lot of our seniors last year. We proved everyone wrong this season and had fun doing it." The Knights came out strong winning the first set. The Royals came back in the second set of the match. Defensive specialist Lindsey Ek ('23) explained, "The hardest thing about volleyball is when you are down a few points and are having a tough time serve receiving." The Knights came back for a third set victory putting themselves in a good position to win the match. The stress of the atmosphere only intensified when the Royals took the fourth set. Entering the fifth set, the Knights rallied back and forth for fifteen minutes ultimately losing to the Royals 15-13 on a controversial call. Despite the loss, the Knights ended the season leaving everything on the court. Setter Kiah Kelly ('23) explained, "The hardest thing about not playing next year is definitely the fact I won't be able to grow as a person and as a player with the team I've grown to love." Spread designed by Jordyn Clapp.

goals push lady knights to state

The Lady Knights smashed their season this year, and had loads of success including going to State for the first time in 4 years. With this success, however, the girls have had to put in unimaginable amounts of hard work and have tremendous perseverance. It has also come from setting goals for themselves and the team for the season. Captain, Hannah Kvant ('23), shares some of the goals of the team as a whole and how these goals lead them to state. "We really had three goals: have a better record than last year, build a community within the team, and make it past section, on to the bank." Even though these are great goals for the team. The girls had to find a way to execute them and they did. Claire Kvant ('25) shared, "Our main goal this season was to reconnect and become stronger as a team. We did team bonding and encouraged each other in order to be a stronger team. We had team meetings and pasta feeds to get closer. Our coaches are amazing and helped our goal by making time for us to team bond, so we could work on our goal of getting closer as a team. I think that this year for soccer has really impacted us as a team by getting us closer, and I can't wait to see what we can do together."

Individual success is also a major component into the State competition as a team. If you don't push yourself, you can't push your team. "One of my main goals for this season was to grow as a player. This year that goal was especially important to me because we have a very young team. We all have worked so hard this season and we have very much succeeded in that aspect," Maggie Kramer ('24) said. Lastly, was the change in the team dynamics. They have had to learn how to transition to playing for a new coach, and had to prove themselves to him as well as the rest of the team. Hanna Barthel ('24) said, "One of the first things I did was set goals for myself this season. Win our section and go to state but we needed to start small. As the season went on, each game was really just about learning to play together and as one team and I think that is what is going to win us our section and make it to the state tournament." The girls won sections and made it to state, losing their first game. The goals that were made separately and as a team have played a major hand in their success this year. Spread by Ava Schendt.

I also love cooking and wanted to learn some new recipes! The homemade chips were definitely better than the chips you buy at a grocery store and tasted amazing." To make the homemade chips first you had to brush the tortillas with oil and salt, then cut it up into triangles, and place in the oven. Caitlyn Seaver ('23) said, "I thought it was cool to be able to make it for myself and have it taste authentic. I really enjoyed eating the chips and pico cause they tasted really good together especially since they were homemade." Spread design by Janae Mitchell.

the lady knights go head-to-head with wayzata

On September 13th at a home meet, STMA dove into the water racing to beat Wayzata. This was the second meet of the season and also the second loss of the season. STMA came close with a final score of 102 to 76. Sydney Gasser ('24) said, " At the beginning of the season I was nervous to be swimming events that I haven't done since last year, but I was also really excited to see how much I had improved since then. One of my goals was to drop time on the events that I had been unable to beat last season, like the 500, which I was finally able to do this year. Before a race I try to relax, stay positive, and try to remember to just have fun, even if I don't always get first." Reese Smith ('24) said, "Before the Wayzata meet, I was terrified before the 400 free relay. I always am for that event because I'm exhausted from all my other events but it's such a high energy event and everyone is cheering and excited. I remember trying to hype up my relay before hand, we had a diver join us and so I remeber trying to show Jackie Buergeron how to do a flip turn. But in my individual races I like to walk up to Addison Vanvooren because she will shake you around and give you the best pep talk, just enough to get focused but also to let some stress go. Also walking up to your friends and just screaming in their face is a great way to make each other laugh while also getting rid of some of those pre race jitters. " Isabel Benusa ('25) said, "Before every race I do get some pre race nervousness. In the beginning of the swim season, I was a little bit more since it had been a year since high school swim. Once I get in the water though I blocked out other thoughts and just tried to focus on my race. When preparing for a race I like to stretch out my muscles some more and visualize how I want my race to go behind the blocks. I also talk to my coach's to know what I need to focus on while swimming."

Throughout high school, studying and staying on top of your grades is very important to stay successful. In order to do that, creating your own ways to study will help you out. STMA students have so many creative and interesting techniques to get on a good grind to get the job done. The Knights use their knowledge as their weapons to be academically successful, while also giving out other ideas for others students to stay motivated too. Whether you grind out the night before a big test or two weeks in advanced, these study tips hopefully can help you out, like they do with the STMA Knights with our knowledge.

Q: How do you get on a good grind to study?

A: "First, I give a quick run through all of the material. Then, whatever material I am not fully confident on in, I look further into. The best way I have found to get rolling is by answering the first question. Studying is lame, but sometimes nescesary."- Will Dorfsman ('24)

Following in a sibling's footsteps isn't as easy as it seems. Having a proclaimed-former-art-department-celebrity for a brother provides a solid foundation for one's first steps into the art world. Although having shown no interest in traditional art from a young age, Dylan Gfroerer (‘23) strives to finally dabble in his brother, Tyler Gfroerer's (‘18,) favorite hobby after a lot of convincing. From drawing lessons as kids to photography outings as teens, they searched for the one genre of art that finally sticks. Dylan said, “Photography has, so far, been the only media that's sparked my interest enough to pursue outside of school. I guess I've always been interested in capturing a moment rather than creating one.”

Now that senior year has arrived, he finally took all the classes he was too stubborn to sign up for before, with Ceramics I being trimester two's main focus. He said “I've only just started Ceramics with Mr. Ausman, so I'm still figuring out what I'm actually doing, but I think Mrs. Halker would be excited to hear that. She always asks me if she's going to have me in class again, or if I'm taking any in general. She was my brother's biggest motivator.” Spread by Josie Gillach.

What is the hardest part about adjusting to a new country?

"The hardest part for me was adjusting to the language. Theres a big language barrier, sometimes it's hard to understand everything. knights cross country takes on team bonding.

Cross Country is a sport that is individual within a team. In one race there is individual scoring and team scoring. In a sport with both team and individual it can be hard to have unity and be as one. The Knights have both a JV and Varsity team. The teams combined have 39 girls. Scoring in cross country is a lot like golf in the sense that the lowest score wins. 15 is a perfect score, with the top runners being scored only. A lot of teams do team bonding, the knights cross country team is no exception. Breanna Immer ('24) said, "For our team music bonds the team a lot, it always gets us in the race mindset and makes the whole team feel less nervous. Letting loose a little bit helps us all feel better". Cross country is scored as individuals and then added up to create a team score. Paige Bushard ('25) said, "I like competing in an individual sport that combines into a team sport because, when I know I do good in a race I can feel accomplished with a new PR. I also feel accomplished knowing that my time had a positive impact on my team's overall score". The cross country team went to Duluth this summer, they went on a run and did some team bonding activities. Natalie Cocking ('23) said, "Duluth was a good way to spend more time together and grow closer. Honestly though, every day on the CC team is like a team bonding experience because we are talking constantly on our runs so we get to know each other really well. We share our goals on runs too which really allows us to fully cheer each other on and race for each other because we want what everyone is wanting to achieve." A team's environment is important because it helps with the closeness of a team. Team bonding helps with the environment of a team. Avery O' rourke ('23) said, "The environment of the team is always really positive because when you're not positive and encouraging your teammates it can really mess with the mental part of a race or workout". Overall, the cross country team does a lot to help make their team like a family. They do team bonding things like going on outdoor runs or going to Duluth. Spread designed by Josie Vankuyk.

The sport of cross country is a widely known sport with many athletes participating in it each year. Surprisingly, not many people however know all the hardships runners go through. A common misconception is that cross country is the same as track. “I’m not 100% sure, but I think we run about 35-45 miles a week. This affects me by making my legs constantly sore,” said by Dane Barthel ('26). The countless hours of running that is put into cross country is hard on the runner's body. The mindset that runners have to have is unlike any other. “The mindset I have going into daily practice would be to work hard so I can accomplish my goals. Coming up to the meets I don’t even think about trying to win, I just try to get a PR and keep on improving throughout the season. You don’t even necessarily need to be fast at running, as long as you work hard you will meet your goals and make new friends,” explained Kyler Williams (‘26). With cross country being so mentally and physically exhausting it is hard for those not a part of the sport to understand why people would want to run countless miles a day. “I continue to be in cross country because of the community around the sport, the people are all great and it really brings everyone more together,” said Jonah Lyke (‘23). Knowing how much our cross country boys go through to perform in the best way possible, is important to support the runners in our school. Spread designed by Alicia Vosberg.

For every senior season comes with so much excitement and so much pain. Owen Vanderiet ('23) describes how this year has been treating him prior to past seasons. "My senior season has felt so much different from past seasons, with me being a captain know and taking on more responsibilities for the team. One piece pf advice to the younger runners is to stay consistent. Becoming a better runner takes dedication, and running during the season is only part of that. It is going to take a lot of running in the off season to see the big improvements." Closing off Owen's season he is grateful for the memories he has made. Photo by Tim Bykowski.

The girls tennis team has struggled a lot this year with their wins. The team went day in and day out practicing like crazy to get better. The time definitely was noticed when the varsity team took a win over Hopkins. They won 4-3 and took it with pride. Each girl on the team put in their work and all improved immensely. Mylin Lemke ('23) said, "Practice is where I get better so I use it to try new things and focus on how I hit the ball. I see the most improvement during my matches especially when going against the top teams in the state."

The JV girls played like no other they put everything into each match and practice. They had wonderful captains to look up to and watch. Each of them wanted to improve and build as a team. Having new coaches for the past couple seasons was a little messy but in the end everything worked out. Jayna Haehn ('25) said, " I felt that no matter what coach I had they always brought a positive and fun environment to the courts and I really enjoyed that. The fact that I was able to play the sport that I love and be with my teammates made me excited for each practice."

The C-squad girls had a good season but had a couple set backs. They practiced great with one another but needed a couple reminders to stay on track. They fought to win and in the end they put their work in. Each practice they came to play and made sure people knew it. They had the urge to get better each day. Jacey Stone ('26) said, "I love tennis because all the girls were so inclusive and we had a blast getting to know each other. Practices and matches were always fun with the excitement of getting to see each other after school and the enthusiasm on the bus ride to the matches." Spread by Molly Reynolds.

How have you grown over your past four years in STMA theater?

I've grown a lot, I used to think very little of myself in freshman year and I feel like with the opportunities that, not only this theater but this school, has provided me have been incredibly growing."

What have you learned from your role in Tuck Everlasting?

Who was your favorite person to work with throughout Tuck Everlasting?

"My favorite person to work with is Charlie (Lund) because he's like my best friend and it's so easy playing off him."

What have you learned from your role in Tuck Everlasting?

"I've learned that even though I didn't get what I wanted at first, it will end up being exactly what I wanted in the end."

Landing the lead role in a musical is no small accomplishment, and that is exactly what Ann Weigel ('25) has done. Only being a sophomore, Ann took on an enormous responsibility to not only portray Winnie Foster but to represent STMA's outstanding theater program. Ann has been acting since the third grade through SOAR, with the dream to have a lead role like Winnie Foster. After years of minor roles, like being a fish in The Little Mermaid, and Wendy in Peter Pan Junior, the sophomore's dreams finally came true.

When asked about the announcement of her role, Weigel spoke about the moment with excitement: "...so when I found out, I read the list, and I dropped my phone and I started crying of happiness." Her friend Zoe Ellwoods ('24) found out about Ann's role first and prompted her to check the cast list, expecting the emotional reaction. This was only the beginning of the journey.

Rehearsals were soon underway, and Ann quickly learned how to manage the harsh workload of school and theater at once. After many stressful weeks of preparation, with costumes on, makeup done, and microphones attached, the cast performed five shows throughout November of 2022. When asking Ann if she felt she could live up to Winnie's character, she confidently said: "I think Winnie represents that in the end, you have to be young, but you also have to be mature and realize not everything will be the way you want it to be, and I think what I can put into Winnie is that I do have child-like energy when I'm around like my friends and I'm really going to pull that out... This is a crazy opportunity and I'm so grateful for it." Spread by Dylan Gfroerer.

Brothers Leo Krueger (‘23) and Gus Krueger (‘25) reunite for one of the last musical performances together as the father-son duo of Jesse and Angus Tuck in Tuck Everlasting. After having spent time acting through Front Porch Musical Theatre, Leo performed in STMA theater and encouraged Gus to accompany him for his final year at STMA.

The brothers’ first-last performance together was especially memorable for Gus. After three previous shows together, the brothers will soon part ways from acting together at STMA come the graduation of Leo. Gus reflected on their time together after the first performance: “This show has to be my favorite because I get to act alongside him, he helps me out with my character, he tells me what I can improve on and we work together on it as brothers.”

After not performing through STMA theater for years Leo returned as the lead role of Jesse Tuck to inspire Gus to put himself out there in the high school theater scene. Gus’ experience has been nothing but view-changing, and to both of their surprise, they secured their roles as their own dynamic duo. At the end of the performances, Gus said, “I do have to say that every person in the show, no matter what role they had, has been a pleasure to work with. It just made an amazing show that we’re all proud to show the audiences.”

endless memories.

EVERYONE, ALL AT ONCE. The cast and crew of Tuck Everlasting weren't all friends to begin with, over time the unbreakable bonds were formed along with their everlasting memories.

Ashe Aydt ('23,) an ensemble member said, "I made a lot of friends and that's what made it fun. Partner in Crime was especially fun because I felt like everybody at one point saw me on stage, and I got to meet everyone in the cast during that song."

NOTHING BUT TIME. The character Miles Tuck, played by Sol Beaudery ('24,) is one of many characters he has played over many years in theater. Despite the growing amount of parts Sol has played, Miles Tuck sticks with him as one of his favorites. He said, "My favorite memory was the Time quartet, dude, that was a fuuun part. Four of us got to sing."

ensemble cast members make lasting bonds.

"This show helped me make super close friends that I would've never met otherwise. Everyone was so positive and supportive while we rehearsed. By the end we became this sort of family and I'm so grateful I did this show. If anyone is considering trying theater for the first time, or anything for that matter, just do it. You wont regret it." -McKinley Beaumont ('23)

WHAT'S BEHIND THE CURTAIN? The Pit Orchestra and Tech Crew are not always in the spotlight but that doesn't mean they don't work as hard as the dazzling actors. Lights, music, action are their specialties and led miraculously by Michael Bartunek and Zachery Osowski. Spread design by Kyla Smith and photos by Dylan Gfroerer and Kyla Smith

Do you ever think about the function behind the production? What gets things in place and songs perfected? The spotlight may be taken by the actors but there would be no show to perform without the behind-the-scenes tech crew and pit orchestra. The tech crew was run by many student leaders, such as the Stage managers: Abigail Story ('23) and Amelia Dayton ('24), and Deck Chief: Kayla Hass ('23); these selected students are given many responsibilities to keep the production up and running. Nothing makes Mr. Mann (the main director) happier than seeing students taking charge and taking a bit of stress off his shoulders. Mr. Mann and Mrs. Krutzig (assistant director) are seen running around constantly making sure people know what they're supposed to do and be ahead of.

Mr. Bartunek leads the Pit orchestra into an outstanding performance of playing all Tuck Everlasting music. Some of their favorite songs include Partner in Crime, Join the Parade, Everything's Golden, and Top of the World. There were many fun quotes and memories made in the pit. "Smiles and High Fives" are the motto the pit performers play by. The pit was also fortunate to have professionals come play for them during the performances of Tuck Everlasting. Derek Callender playing the guitar, Martha McDermott playing the violin, Rosa Thompson-Vieira playing the Cello, and of course one of the bands' favorite persons to play with; Sue Ferbuyt, the sweet piano player. There are many seniors involved that took a bit more responsibility at making it a fun and welcoming experience, some seniors being Mikayla Mastellar, Zoey Parker, Lucas Przybylski, and Abby Carroll to only name a few.

Our Production was very lucky to be evaluated by the Hennepin Theatre Trust and they were recognized for many things, with the Overall Technical Team gaining an Honorable Mention, the Pit Orchestra with an OUTSTANDING, and the Overall Performance of the musical being an OUTSTANDING. These are proof of their WELL DONE performance!

DROP IT DOWN. There were many props created for the Tuck Everlasting musical. One of the main props made was the drop down attic scene. Brooklyn Andrzejewski ('24) is shown building this prop that took over four weeks to finish. This was dropped down by Darci Treptau ('25) during the production and being one of the main attractions in the show. Shown in the picture to the right is Jesse Tuck (Leo Krueger '23) looking through the window of the drop down, at Miles Tuck (Sol Beaudry '24) during an emotional scene.

Our Tradition

THREE. TWO. ONE. A Pit tradition that stays with us. As the Pit gets ready to perform for the production of Tuck Everlasting, they take a few moments to all put their hands in a motivation circle. It brings a sense of teamwork and togetherness for the Pit members. As they raise their hands, they yell out a fun memorable quote from the musical or play that's performing, followed with many laughs and memories.

MIC CHECK. Behind the Curtains, Ben Carroll ('25) takes charge with testing the microphones and sound board for his fellow tech crew and cast. Throughout the production, Carroll runs from set to stage to control room, making sure everything is in order for the performances.

CHAOS CONTROL.

The show can't go on with out the minds behind running it. Abigail Storey explains how she became theater's Student Stage Manager:"One of the past Stage Manager said she sees potential and says that I should try out to be the Assistant Stage Manager, which I tried and I ended up really liking it so I continued on with it, to then the Directer was like 'we're gonna move you up to Stage Manager' and I got the job."

"BeReal just came out and Coach Pat and Coach Olesen wanted to take one and see what it was all about." - Lydia Hawkins ('25)

BeReal is a popular new app that sends you a notification at a random time once every day. Once your notification goes off, you have two minutes to take a photo using your front and back camera, showing what is going on in front and behind you. Once you post it, you'll be able to see what all your friends are doing as well. If you don't post by the time the two minutes are up, you're not being real. Spread by Ashlyn Marble and Ava Schendt.

Gavin Moormann ('25) has done mountain biking since 2019. The week going into a race, practice is going on 16 miles trails as fast as they can . The team does hill climbs and race loops to get faster. Two days before is a Friday, on Friday the team goes to the track. They started to ride through the track slowly, looking for hills. Friday is just a pre-ride. On Saturday the middle school races. The high schoolers come and support the middle schoolers on the team. At some of the races they will do another pre-race. On Sunday, which is race day, coaches say to eat sugar like donuts and protein drinks and eat protein bars after the race. There are over 3000 people, and 100 schools at the race. Before the race started they put air in their tires and made sure that the brakes worked. Everyone brings tools to fix things on their bikes. To start the race, someone calls the racers up to get lined-up. The races go in waves, there are 30-40 people in a wave. Gavin gets nervous 30 seconds before the race starts. The race starts on grass like on a field, then goes into the dirt track. The track is 5 people wide to 1 person. Gavin's longest race is 16 miles long. Spread by Katelynn Dressler. A MINNESOTA BLESSING. This Halloween Minnesota experienced the warmest Halloween in 22 years. This was a gift for Minnesotans given the blizzard of '91. Parents were able to stay outside and kids enjoyed trick-or-treating in the warmer weather. Minnesotans are definitely enjoying the warm October this year.

FINALIZED DIVORCE. Tom Brady and Gisele Bundchen finalized their divorce on October 28th. After thirteen years together Brady says hes focusing on his kids and football. They both mentioned the difficulty and pain of this divorce. They just grew apart over the years. The two of them have decided on joint custody between their three kids. They both agree to continue to work together as parents, married or not. They love their children and they wish the best for them.

Alicia Vosberg ('23) and Maddy Petranek ('23) have known each other since they were 10 and 7 months old. Coming up onto the end of their senior year Maddy says "Knowing someone for so long is so special, because nobody will ever be able to understand the bond we created." Photos submitted by Alicia Vosberg.

then

Matthew Maulik ('23) and Braden Intrieri ('23) have been friends for almost 10 years now. Intrieri said, "We started playing baseball together when we were nine. It was fun growing up playing baseball with him and now we both get to play division one in the same conference next year against each other." Photo submitted by Matthew Maulik

then

Destiny Girtz ('23) and Avery Freeland ('23) have been friends for 13 years. Avery said, "The best thing about our friendship is that we can be 100% ourselves when we are together and we can be brutally honest with each other. No matter what happens we'll always have one another." Photo submitted by Avery Freeland.

then

Owen Sjoberg ('23) and Tyler Jordan ('23) have been friends since were 5 years old. Sjoberg said, "My favorite part about being friends with him is all the memories we have made and his constant dad jokes." Photo submitted by Owen Sjoberg.

then

Avery Jackson ('23) and Brittney Harris ('23) have been friends since kindergarten and did cheer together for 7 years. Jackson said, "Brittney and I became super close because of cheer and even though cheer was hard I met a great friend through it." Photo submitted by Avery Jackson.

Michael Johnson ('23) and Matthew Johnson ('23) have been friends since before 2nd grade. Michael Johnson said, "A good friend is like a four leaf clover, hard to find and lucky to have." Photos submitted by Matthew Johnson.

then

Megan Kurth ('23) and Bitsy Strehlow ('23) have been friends since kindergarten and have known each other forever. Megan said, "We were very close all of middle school. We were inseparable and now in high school we have grown in frienship and always have each others backs". Photo submitted by Bitsy Strehlow.

then

Kaleb Klinkhammer ('23) and Conner Luongvan ('23) have been friends for as long as they can remember and they are neighbors. Klinkhammer said, "Since Conner and I have been friends for so long our friendship is very important to me and I'm very excited to go to the same college and room together next year at Sioux Falls." Photo submitted by Conner Luongvan.

Owen Hecksel ('23) and Josie Vankuyk ('23) have been friends since they were three years old, their moms are best friends. Vankuyk says, "Having someone that I have known for so long and am so close to is nice because I will always have that friend." Photo submitted by Josie Vankuyk.

FIRST FOR EVERYTHING. Freshmen spend their first year figuring everything out. Cail Jahke ('26) is playing varsity basketball for the first time, "I was nervous at first because it's my first year, and coming on to a team with such talented girls was super scary, but my team made me feel very conforable." said Janhke ('26). Spread by Maddy Petranek.

meet the couple

This is one of STMA's teacher couples. Mr. and Mrs. Bovee have been together for 32 years now! This photo is showing them together then (1990) and now (2022). They met in college at Bemidji State in 1990 and got engaged after only 5 months of knowing each other. Mrs. Bovee said, "I called my mom after 11 days of knowing him and told her I found the guy I was gonna marry." Mr. Bovee started teaching in Alaska and did that for 5 years but they have been teaching together for 27 years and 22 of them at STMA. Their favorite activities to do together are things in the outdoors such as hiking, four-wheeling, backpacking, and when Mr. Bovee takes them flying in his airplane! They just had their 30th year aniversary.

"Pete inspires me because he proved to me that no matter what your childhood looked like growing up if you work hard and shoot for what you dream of you can accomplish it. Pete is a very kind human being and always has something positive to say. He exceeds his job position by acknowledging anyone in his path and ensuring everyone is having a good day." -Jordyn Clapp ('23)

"I met Mrs. Johnson on the first day of school in the cafeteria. She goes out of her way to make other peoples' days better. She helped me to get out of my comfort zone, and she listens to me if I need someone to talk to." -Alexis Fair ('26)

"Coach Pete inspires me because he has not only made a huge impact on my football career but also on my life and made me a better person. I look up to him because of all the amazing things he has accomplished playing and coaching football." -Brett Roos ('23)

sloan bozosi wins miss congeniality

Sloan Bozosi '24 is swarmed with many feelings after winning Miss Congeniality 2022-2023. "The title of miss congeniality is given to someone who is social, has a bright, contagious personality, and can include everyone and make sure everyone knows they're wanted. To me, miss congeniality means that I get to be a role model for other girls and teach them to be inclusive and kind. When I was awarded with the title, I was honestly shocked. I never once thought the title would go to me and I was certain it would be given to another candidate who could always make me laugh. I was so incredibly honored that the girls I was with saw me as someone with "the best personality" and someone who could bring balance to the group," said Bozosi.

what is Royalty?

The royalty program is a way for older girls to be mentors to young girls. It gives these young girls people to look up to in the community as well as a bridge in making connections and friendships with other towns. They spend a lot of time doing community events and working with kids and the lions club. The lions club is a community organization that hosts events for kids like reading in the park or daddy daughter dances. The lions club is also a huge sponsor of the St. Michael royalty program. Going to a lot of other cities parades, the girls in the program represent St. Michael and show our support for their cities and programs. A huge part of the program is kids and working to build an experience for little girls, and being someone they can look up to and connect with.

LIL BABY DAY. November 13 will now be recognized as “Dominique ‘Lil Baby’ Jones Day” in the city of Atlanta. Baby received a proclamation from the Atlanta City Council on Sunday in celebration of “his successful career and his generous philanthropy.”Lil Baby received the Quincy Jones Humanitarian Award at Black Music Action Coalition’s second annual Music in Action Awards Gala in October in honor of his contributions to racial and social justice. He previously donated $1.5 million of the proceeds from his 2020 hit “The Bigger Picture” to help underserved communities, and established a $150,000 “My Turn” scholarship program at his alma mater, Booker T. Washington High School.

Proclamation

ATLANTA CITY COUNCIL

In Recognition of Dominique “Lil Baby” Jones and the Launch of the “For the People” Foundation

WHEREAS, A lifelong native of Atlanta, Dominique “Lil Baby” Jones is a rapper and songwriter who has risen to fame as one of the biggest names in music since the release of his influential 2017 mixtape ‘Perfect Timing’; and

WHEREAS, Jones has served as a musical ambassador from Atlanta, sharing the music, style, and culture of our city with audiences and millions of fans around the world through his releases and worldwide tours; and

WHEREAS, Lil Baby grew up on Oakland City on Southwest Atlanta where he first began writing songs and performing before becoming a hip-hop icon and role model for Atlanta’s aspiring musicians; and

WHEREAS, In 2020, his Grammy nominated single, “The Bigger Picture,” which addressed the racial, judicial, and economic injustices that Black communities face, and specifically addressed the murder of George Floyd and its impact; and

WHEREAS, Lil Baby has committed to donate $1.5 million of the proceeds from “The Bigger Picture” to support the residents of neighborhoods such as Oakland City and all over the United States; and

WHEREAS, Leading up to the launch, there were countless donations made to the Atlanta community, including a giveaway of 10,000 winter coats, a $100,000 scholarship fund to Booker T. Washington High School, and a $100,000 back-to-school festival that provided 5,000 students with free sneakers and school supplies; and

WHEREAS, Lil Baby’s commitment to giving back to Atlanta sets a positive precedent, and his generous philanthropy and talented songwriting will bring valuable resources and more attention to needs of the city.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT I, Jason Dozier, a member of the Atlanta City Council, on behalf of the citizens of Atlanta, do hereby recognize this 13th day of November 2022 as Dominique “Lil Baby” Jones Day in the city of Atlanta as an attempt to accomplish unmet and his generous philanthropy. It’s applaud Lil Baby for all his efforts in helping the next generation of youth positively impact Atlanta and the world.

JANUARY 6. The January committee has officially subpoenaed former President Donald Trump. “Today’s convictions are a victory for the rule of law and reinforce the fact that the violence of January 6th included a deliberate attempt to overturn the results of the 2020 election and block the transfer of presidential power. The Select Committee’s investigation demonstrated that when Donald Trump summoned a mob to assemble in Washington, DC on January 6th, “It’s vital that there be accountability for every vile aspect of January 6th and the events that led to that day’s tragedy. We applaud the Justice Department’s success today and support ongoing efforts to ensure that accountability at all levels,” said by Chairman Bennie Thompson and Vice Chair Liz Cheney.

NO RED WAVE. Walz reelected Minnesota governor after sharp-elbowed race. DFL Gov. UNBELIEVABLE COMEBACK. Saturday afternoon became the most unlikely division coronation in NFL history for the host Minnesota Vikings as they trailed 33-0 at halftime -- the largest home halftime deficit in franchise history -- against a scuffling Indianapolis Colts team. The Colts dropped to 4-9-1 following Minnesota's 39-36 historic comeback victory in overtime. Thanks to their 33-point comeback, the largest in a single game in NFL history, Minnesota locked down its first NFC North division title since 2017 and also its first playoff berth since 2019.

MARRIAGE RIGHTS. Biden signs into law same-sex marriage bill. President Joe Biden signed into law Tuesday landmark new federal protections for same-sex and interracial couples, capping both a personal and national evolution on an issue that's enjoyed growing acceptance over the past decade. Biden signed the Respect for Marriage Act before thousands of invited guests on the South Lawn at an event the White House said reflected the importance of the moment. Biden said the law he was about to sign recognizes that "everyone should have the right to answer those questions for themselves without the government interference," and secures the federal "protections that come with marriage."

SZA'S RETURN. SZA's long, ambitious, luxurious new album solidifies her position as a generational talent, an artist who translates her innermost feelings into indelible moments. CTRL was certified triple platinum this August. Of course, she's been busy in the time since, having dropped 16 singles or collabs. With her most popular song on the album "Kill Bill" she became the first female song to spend 10 consecutive days at #1 on Apple Music. Sza also became the first black female artist to reach the #1 spot of the most streamed artists daily ranking on global Spotify. She also earned her first number one album on Billboard 200, following the release of SOS.

ARGENTINA WINS. Argentina won their third World Cup in an extraordinary final on Sunday as they beat France 4-2 on penalties after Lionel Messi scored twice in a 3-3 draw that featured a hat-trick for Kylian Mbappe as the holders recovered from 2-0 down. It was an extraordinary night of drama, high emotion and fluctuating fortunes, delivering one of the all-time great finals to cap a wonderful tournament as its two star players delivered command performances on the biggest stage of all.

dancers demonstrate extreme athleticism

Grit, Endurance, Drive, Power, Motivation, Courage, and Strength are all words the team used to describe this season. The coaches focused on pushing the team and making sure they are up to there full potential. Each team had a different goal and saying. Varsity's saying was "for us" meaning that all the work they put in is for themselves. Not only to win but to make themselves proud. JV's saying was "all in". This was something that the team would say while they were dancing to remind themselves and teammates that they are fully invested in what they are doing and the team. Before every performance, Varsity and JV would come together to say their chants and get hype and motivated. Each dancer has a role in the dance and has to focus on many things all at one time. Placement of every arm and leg, projection, energy, and more. Dancers can get a bad rep and are told that their sport isn't important or difficult. Dancers are extremely hard working and fight everyday to get better. It is physically and mentally challenging and dancers are very talented athlete. Lily Jerpseth ('24) gave the team pep talks before every performance. Jerpseth said, "Every time I gave a talk to the team before we go on I always tell them to give your all and always dance like it's your last time. Never go on auto pilot and always think about every little detail that we have worked on as a team. But most of all have fun, dance big, and be proud of all we have accomplished." The team had a great season overall and they are very proud.

The boys' swim and dive team competed against the Edina Hornets at a home meet on December 15th. The team fought to the end, but ended up losing with a close score of 97 to 78. The Knights were determined to pull out a win this season. Will Dorfsman ('24) said, "My favorite moments on the team are the meet days. The energy the team gives off on those days makes for a great time. The team usually does pasta feeds before meets. We all get together somewhere and eat way too much. girls and boys' diving flip till the end

The boys and girls' dive teams are very powerful. The divers are all very determined to work their hardest to place well. The girls' team is shown at a meet vs. Wayzata. The boys' team is at a meet vs. Minnetonka. Both teams fought till the end. Will McKeown placed second.

William McKeown ('25) said, "I've been diving for about four years. The best way I prepare for diving is I make sure to get plenty of rest so I can be ready to get in as many reps as possible. Some of those reps aren't perfect. That results in hitting the water wrong, resulting in what we call a Smack. Another thing that could happen is possibly hitting the diving board on the way down. I have a few scars from that happening." Kennedy Clements ('24) said, "I have been diving for 2.5 years which is 3 seasons. My favorite dive is either a reverse dive tuck or a back 1 and 1/2 tuck. Physically I prepare for a dive by snapping a hair tie on my wrist to distract me from the nerves. Mentally, I prepare by counting to three before I start an approach, and count to four as I am doing my approach. I do this at practice as well and it helps by making meets less stressful. I have never really gotten any serious injuries while actually diving aside from smacks or the occasional board hit which can hut, but the more it happens the less painful and the funnier it gets." Julia Robinson ('25) said, I have been diving for 2 years and my favorite dive has to be any type of twisting dive. I normally mentally and physically prepare for a dive by having fun with my team and trying to stay in a positive and happy mindset. Throughout diving I've never gotten a bad injury, mainly just bruises from hitting the water too hard." Spread designed by JayLynn Robeck.

IT GIRL. Alix Earle is taking TikTok by storm. The 22-year-old senior at the University of Miami has become one of the fastest-growing creators on the app, racking up more than 3.7 million TikTok followers to date. She's also the new face of a longtime fan-favorite beauty trend, the "Get Ready with Me" (GRWM), which originally gained popularity during the early 2000s YouTube era as a way for content creators to share their skincare and makeup routines while giving fans a look into their personal lives. The majority of Earle's TikToks see her recounting the everyday moments of her life as a college student while she does her makeup and chooses an outfit. And while her earlier GRWMs showed her preparing for class and tailgates, some of her more recent videos involve higher profile events as Earle's influencer career takes off. In December, she took fans along while she got ready for a VIP night out at Miley Cyrus's New Year's Eve party in Miami.

Whose previous credits include The Carrie Diaries and Once Upon a Time in Hollywood, captures Elvis's journey to stardom and personal and professional struggles, while also performing many of the singer's most popular songs.

SNOWY WINTER. A large swath of the Northeast US was gearing up for several days of heavy snow, freezing rain, or a mix of both, that could create treacherous road conditions. About 7 million people in the storm's path were under winter weather alerts early this morning as the first round of snow began in Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Maine. The forecast has prompted some officials to urge residents to prepare for the storm and be ready for potentially hectic commutes. Weather warnings in the region show some cities could pick up between six and nine inches of snow. This comes after the storm already proved hazardous in parts of the Midwest, where dozens of car crashes were reported in Minnesota.

BAD TIMING. Patrick Mahomes was questionable to return in the second half of the Kansas City Chiefs' do-or-die Divisional Round playoff game with the Jaguars after suffering an ankle injury in the first quarter. Mahomes is the face of the franchise and is widely regarded as the difference between the Chiefs getting to the Super Bowl and falling short. The star quarterback got caught between two Jaguars opponents and appeared to twist his ankle, leaving him limping off the field seconds later in a huge blow for the team.

For these guys teamwork is a main point for them. They put their hearts out on the ice and work their hardest for themselves and their teammates. This year they have updated their entrance. The announcer announces the knights and a spotlight is put on them while they skate around the ice getting their heads in the game. They line up in jersey number order and their starters are called forward and the crowd goes crazy. This year the boys had to work with a new coach who had a new style of coaching. Years past the coach has played the same players over and over whereas this year the coach is giving everyone a chance and staying on a rotation. Jake Dinius (‘24) said, “This year has definitely been difficult but being able to play with all the guys has made it way better, it's good to know you always have someone behind your back. I think next year our goal is to play to our strengths and obviously making it to state would be awsome.” Dylan Fisher (‘23) said, “This is my first year on varsity and it is for sure a different speed then JV, but so far it has been pretty great for my senior year.” Jack Johnson (‘25) said, “Being one of the youngest on the team hasn't really been a struggle, I know what I’m there to do and I play like any of the other guys would on game day," This year score wise the boys went 5-19-2. Jackson Cross said. "The hardest team we went up against was maple grove, they brought good competition."

first section game won in 3 years

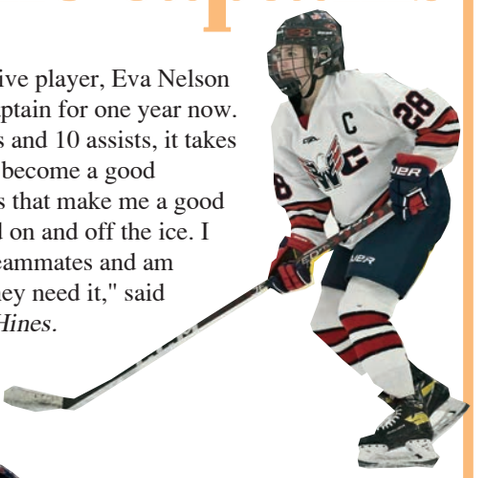

After putting up a fight to the end of the season, the girls take home their first section game victory since the 2019-2020 season. Their first section game was against Osseo/Park Center with a final score of 4-0. This is such a huge win and proud win and proud moment for all of them as it was their last win of the season. The girls lost in the second section game against Centennial, but they were never once discouraged. "My favorite part of the season was the bus rides after the games, especially the section games, they were always so fun", Dani Weiland ('24). The girls were still celebrating on the bus even after their loss of the game. Coming up to the end of the game, Annica Walters scores the final goal. "My initial reaction was excitement but I wish I scored earlier in the game. I felt numb afterwards because I was upset with the refs and the c alls they made since it was our last game", Annica Walters ('24). Many of the seniors were sad to realize it was their last game of the season. "At the beginning of sections I was ready to be done but we won that game and then I got more excited to play. In our losing section game, I was unable to play after second period because of a fracture in my thumb, and that's when it hit me that our season was over", Ava Schendt ('23). varsity endures five injured starting players

This season was a tough one for all of the boys. Five starting players have had to be benched for some sort of injury during the season. . They still let in some wins and worked together to put up a good fight against all of the other teams. This also brought in new opportunities for people to get more playing time. Colton Demarais ('23) shared how he feels about players being out and how he handles it as captain this year, he says, "This season I have been trying to bring my teammates closer together and keep the morale high so that we can still compete with good teams and stick together as a group." Not only does he have a huge role to play in the teams successes but the boys who have been able to play more have as well. Jordan Holm ('25) said, "This season it feels like I am finally getting to show what I can do on the court. I do not really feel pressured but more excited because I just get to go out there and play my game. A lot of the guys have been going down with injuries so I have had to step up and play a bigger role for our team which is huge and a really big thing to endure but it makes this season so much better." They may not have one every single game but gave a big fight every time they hit the court. They grew as a team since younger members had to step up to the hoop to help the team finish out the season strong. The boys believe this is just the beginning of something good since the underclassman on the team have gained so much experience and knowledge to bring into next season. Spread designed by Lauren Dinh.

shooting for success:

The Knights take on the Hopkins Royals at home on February 21st. Both teams start off a bit slow, but Zach Purcell doesn't take long to score the first bucket of the game with an assist from Caden Johnson. Hopkins also doesn't take long after that to get on the board with an easy layup on the other end. The very next possession, Carter Arnlund drains a deep 3 from the wing. The Knights go a couple possession scoreless until Caden Johnson comes down with an offensive board and put back and one, he hits the free throw to put the Knights up 8-6. Quickly after Layton Bottolfson hits a corner 3 with a pass from Jackson Brutger making the score 12-6 in favor of the Knights. The Knights continue to make a run to stretch their lead to 15-8 with a drive to the basket from Carter Arnlund. The Royals make a run for themselves to cut the lead down, but Caden Johnson answers with a full court transition layup and the Knights are in the lead 21-19. The Royals tie it up 22-22 with 1:52 to go in the first half. Zach Purcell takes a charge the very next play to give the Knights the ball back, but Hopkins scores two more buckets to end the half and put them in the lead 26-22. Hopkins has a quick start to the second half hitting a three, but Brock Cornell responds with a three on the other end making the score 25-29 in favor of the Royals. Hopkins then makes a 14-2 run on the Knights making the score 29-43, but the Knights don't give up. The Knights come out of their timeout getting rebounds and causing turnovers for the Royals along with making their own 9-2 run cutting the lead down to just 7. The next couple possessions, the Knights and the Royals exchange buckets to make the score 41-51 with 3:40 to go in the game. Tse Nde hits two 3's late in the game to cut the lead to only 8 points. The Knights couldn't come up with the buckets they needed at the end and fall to the Hopkins Royals 47-58. Spread designed by Kylie Diaz.

After making it to the state championships last year and falling to Hopkins, the girls varsity basketball team must work their hardest, and have determination to get themselves back to University of Minnesota for redemption. Having gone to state before, most of the players know how exciting it can be to play in front of hundreds of people, but not all of them. For some girls, this is their first year and they have yet to feel that thrill. One of those people is guard, Renae Foster (‘25), who said, "I am so excited about the thought of going to state, the thought of getting to be a part of something I have been watching since I was little is actually crazy to think about. The environment just seems so thrilling and intense." The girls that made it to state last year are also just as ready to be back. Kali Merfeld ('25), guard, said, "Trying to get back to state this year, the practice vibes have had lots of excitement knowing that we have the chance to go that far again this year. It's going to be a long fun season." Hailey Walbon ('25), guard, also said, "We have an extremely talented team that has put in so much work with each other. Our main focus is showcasing our talent and getting that state title this year." Even though sports can provide all of this excitement, they can also lead to injury's. For Lauren Hoselton ('23), her senior season was robbed due to a torn ACL and meniscus. However, this hasn't stopped her from cheering on her teammates and making the most of the little time she has left at STMA. Hoselton said, "When I tore my ACL and meniscus before our first game this year so my role on the team is obviously different then last year. Because can no longer make an impact on the floor, I am try my best to help my team from the sidelines. I use my new position on the bench to help my team see what they could do better both on and off the court, trying to get back to the state championships."With the help of everyone on the team, hopes are high to make it back to state this year and fix their unfinished buisness. Spread designed by Ava Schendt.

FINISHED. After last year's loss to Hopkins in the State championship game, the girls were determined to prove themselves, and did. When finally given a chance at redemption at the State championship game, the Knights were victorious against Hopkins, beating them 70-71 in the final seconds of the game. #12, Maggie Lindeman ('23) said, "Winning, especially as a senior, was such a satisfying way to end the season. It was a yearlong goal, and after losing to Hopkins last year in the championships, we all were so excited and proud to finally beat them." Photo by Ashlyn Marble.

Having a great team connection is something that coaches always tell their team will make them better. Think about all the team building activities done throughout the timespan of people's lives growing up. However the natural chemistry between these groups of boys has taken them farther than STMA wrestling ever has gone before. Eli Davis ('23) said "We are so connected and have grown so much because everyone on the team wrestles for each other. We wrestle as a team, not 14 individuals." No one has ever been told that the road to success is easy but having this kind of support around you only continues to push the boys to their limits. For the first time in Minnesota history, 13 out of 14 of STMA's wrestlers qualified for the individual state wrestling tournament. Evan Becker ('24) said, "This team has been filled with winners since the beginning and we all know that everyone on this team has what it takes to get the job done." Coming off of already a strong season last year a team needs people to be able to push the rookies to continue their greatness. Logan Torkleson ('23) explained, "We always push each other by working hard in the practice room. Wrestling new and different people each day to get a different look, and the brotherhood is great. We all want it, we all want to get that state title. We're always pushing each other and making sure everyone gets congratulated." The boys ended up placing 2nd at the state tournament on March 3rd to end their 2022-23 wrestling season. Making this great accomplishment our boys wrestlers pushed themselves not as individuals but as a family. Photos and spread designed by Alicia Vosberg.

Nikki Braun breaks collarbone in first minute of her first match.

During the first girls' wrestling meet against Nikki Braun ('23) broke her collarbone in her first match. It was a preseason tournament, so her match didn't count towards anything. She broke her collarbone in the first minute of her match but continued to finish the match out without using that arm. Braun said, "I think I tried a double leg takedown move and we both fell and I tried to catch myself but it didn't go so well and she landed on my shoulder and I could feel it right away but I was like oh I'm probably fine but for the end of the match using my arm was really painful. Overall the pain scale was only a 5 until the adrenaline left then it was an 8.5". Nikki is out for two months. Photos off of Facebook.

new to the mat

Knights send six to state first season.

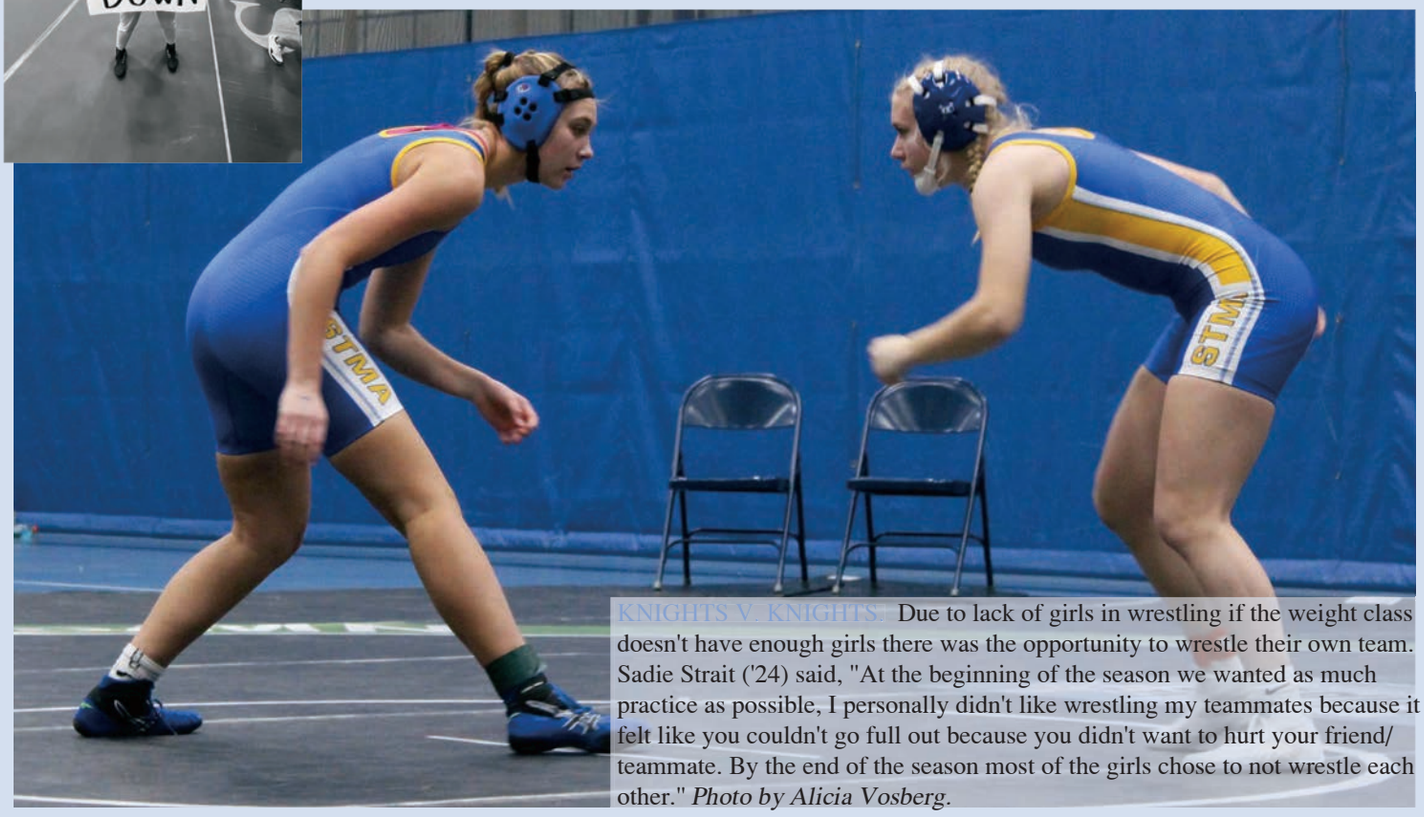

"Wrestling is a very fun environment to compete in with your teammates cheering you right along the mat."

Trying out something new. Girls wrestling comes to STMA. For the first time ever, their is a girls wrestling team at our school. Over this season there has already been massive improvements to girls' wrestling throughout the state. Their are multiple all girls tournaments throughout Minnesota. Their are some things to be improved although, girls had four all-girl tournaments, while the boys team can have up to 12. The team won against Mora 36-33, this was one of their duels. Hannah Kvant ('23) said, "We've only had three team duals which have been fun and different from our individual matches. It is a great accomplishment for us when we win as a team since it's our first year." It's a sport that not many people have seen girls participate in. The knights have 22 girls on the team. Molly Ruhland ('23) exclaimed, "It was super cool to try a sport that no one really has seen girls be in, and getting over the fear of trying something new was a really good experience.

The team was so much fun and it was such a good atmosphere to be a part of." The 6 girls qualifying for the state tournament include: Claire Kvant ('25), Drew Bushard ('23), Kennedy O'Connell ('24), Hannah Kvant ('23), Maggie Steele ('24), and Mylin Lemke ('23). At 165 pounds Mylin Lemke got fifth place in state. At 126 pounds Claire Kvant got third place. One of the qualifiers Kennedy O'Connell ('23) said, "It was rewarding to qualify for state my first year. Winning a section title is a feeling I'll never forget. Every single girl worked extremely hard and had a lot of discipline to be as successful as we have been this season. We all grew as athletes and people this season. Nothing would be possible without the support from my teammates and coaches." Spread designed by Josie Vankuyk.

KNIGHTS V. KNIGHTS: Due to lack of girls in wrestling if the weight class doesn't have enough girls there was the opportunity to wrestle their own team. Sadie Strait ('24) said, "At the beginning of the season we wanted as much practice as possible, I personally didn't like wrestling my teammates because it felt like you couldn't go full out because you didn't want to hurt your friend/teammate. By the end of the season most of the girls chose to not wrestle each other." Photo by Alicia Vosberg.

EVIDENCE IN COURT. Audrey Sigugu ('25) questioned the witness about evidence at the Mock Trial competition against Ashby. "In the moment I felt very scared and and excited at the same time. I also felt very accomplished and happy," said Sigugu. Photo by Bennett Moger.

SPEAKING THE TRUTH. Madison Bleess ('25) spoke her line as Bailiff. This is where she clarified that the witnesses would speak nothing but the truth throughout their testimony. "I've done this before so it's nothing new, but it does get nerve wracking even though its just a small part of the trial," said Bleess. Photo by Bennett Moger.

TAKING A STAND. The cross examination with the plaintiff's witness was done by Bill Vajhmoob ('23). "While I was questioning the witness about evidence from their written statement, I was able to successfully impeach the witness and discredit their testimony," said Vajhmoob. Photo by Bennett Moger.

mock trial returns to in person tournaments

After years of virtual tournaments, the mock trial team finally returns in person. In person tournaments are very different from virtual ones. Bill Vajhmoob ('23) said, "It has definitely been harder compared to the virtual tournaments we had last year. I think being in the "courtroom" and physically seeing your opposing counsel had an effect on how I handled certain situations while in the trial. Another thing that I had to deal with were the factors that weren't apparent virtually. There are new procedures added onto old concepts and just new things in general like how I had to position and handle myself." Annika Gieski ('26) felt a rush of emotions during the tournament. "I had the anticipation of going, the nerves of testifying, and the overall excitement of being there. Being at a tournament in person and seeing your teammates succeed is one of the most exhilarating feelings. Since this is my second year in mock trial, it really is a reward to see the new team members have their first go at a tournament," said Gieski. Ari Marquette ('25) has many goals that she want to achieve this season. "One of my goals this season is to improve my scores and be more confident on the stand," said Marquette. Madison Bleess ('25) is excited to have the case tournaments back in person and is expecting their team to have a successful season. "I'm most excited for this year's case and our team dynamic. I can see us getting far and the effort everyone is putting in makes me feel reassured that this year is going to be a good one," said Blees. Spread designed by Avery Jackson.

captains explain the case

"Jamie Morton was a star swimmer at Lake Superior High School. While Jamie was swimming, they felt a pop in their knee and was referred to Dr. Ardi Ramidus. Dr. Ramidus performed ACL surgery and Jamie began the rehabilitation practice. After Jamie recovered, they returned to the pool and tore their ACL for the second time, ending a promising swimming career. Jamie filed a law suit against Dr. Ramidus, alleging that Dr. Ramidus did the surgery wrong, while Dr. Ramidus believes that Jamie's own behavior caused the second tear," explained Jozie Shepherd ('23).

OPENING STATEMENT. Reese Smith ('24) preformed the opening statement, giving an overview of the background information of their side of the case. "My mind was spinning while doing the opening statement. This was my first time preforming completely off notes and my first time in a courtroom all together. When I was giving the statement, I was making sure that I used the well, made eye contact with the judges, spoke slowly, had my head up, and spoke loudly," said Smith. Photo by Bennett Moger.

DIAGRAM OF KNEE SURGERY. Angel Jorgenson ('25) explained one of the exhibits in court. "I felt confident explaining that the graph was only an example and not an actual representation of the plaintiffs knee after the surgery," said Jorgenson. Photo by Bennett Moger.

WORKING IT OUT. The Mock Trial team competed at the Wright County Courthouse and beat Ashby by three points. "We will be preparing even more so we'll have another amazing win at our next round," said Ashley Meehan ('26). Photo submitted by Reese Smith.

leaving a legacy

The past two years the debate team has worked to try and rebuild they're team this year. After losing one of their top debaters and after the corona virus they had to build the success back up. Debate coach, Ron Davis, and seniors on the team, Ella Olson, Alex Boltz, and Kaiden Dreis, helped to make this years season a huge success. Coach Ron Davis said, "Debate teaches important skills such as communication, research, and thinking from another's point of view. This years seniors were phenomenal and both captains, Ella Olson and Alex Boltz, earned bids to the national tournament. More importantly they made those around them better." This years team was made up of a large percentage of middle schoolers. As older role models they made sure they felt comfortable on the team as younger teammates. As seniors of the team you are looked up to. All seniors took different approaches as to how to make the team more successful. At the same time captains need to make decisions together to have different point of views on how to problem solve. Ella Olson ('23) said, "This season I focused on teaching the newbies the ropes which included a lot of organizing resources to make research more accessible and efficient for the whole team. This allowed for better collaboration and connection across the team." Alex Boltz ('23) said, "This season I spent a lot of time on educating the novices and refining skills for our returners to bring the overall skill level on the team up to a very competitive level." Lastly, Kaiden Dreis ('23) said, "I focused on training our new members and giving them a solid foundation to help the team in the future. I would say the biggest thing was making sure I set a good example and helped these newer members on the team to be even better for years to come." These were the goals that the super seniors took for this years debate team to be the best. team. The speech team started their first competition of the season at the Wayzata High School.Abby Hauxwell ('23) placed 5th in creative expression.

know the difference

Many people wonder what the difference between speech and debate really is. Anjie Alade ('25) said, "I am in the original category and with that, I write speeches that have purpose that I find important, and with speech, I have one speech that I keep working on throughout the season. For debate, I am in congress and for that, I have different bills given from the tournament to work on and I am writing multiple speeches before a competition". Taylor Olson ('24) said, "The biggest difference for me probably is the fact that in debate I am in pf so I had a partner and in speech it is just me by myself. Speech also has a lot more categories and variety."

Dylan Rich ('24) placed got 4th place in storytelling finals. Dylan explains how the first tournament went for her, Dylan said, "It was honestly a bit of a surreal experience for me! I have done well at Wayzata in the past, but the tournament itself was so much bigger this year and you can never truly know how well you'll do against your competitors this early in the season. All I can say was that it was a wonderful surprise and I was so thankful to have my team to back me up! There is a lot of new energy on the team this year thanks to our twenty-five + newbies, and I think it has had a major impact on the team as a whole, not just me, as we all have done very well this season so far! As for how I felt throughout the tournament, I often describe it as a bit of an adrenaline rush. After that first round of speaking, the next two fly by and it only really hits you when you see your name on that list for finals. And considering just how many people were in my category at Wayzata, it was a massive surprise. I was also lucky enough to get a story I liked for my final round, and I think that had a major impact on my score overall. Placing fourth gave me the confidence boost I needed to take on the next few tournaments that followed, and cheer my teammates on to do the same! We as a collective have had a great showing this season and I could not be prouder of the work we all have put in. Speech isn't easy, and I hope the boost that fourth place gave me can propel me into a top spot at sections and into the state tournament!". Ella Olson (24') got 5th place in extemp reading finals. Captain Carter Loebertmann ('25) has set some goals for himself this season. Carter said, "My goals are to expand not only mine, but my teammates public speaking skills and making memories. Spread designed by Alexa Ohlander and Emily Zattoni.

The STMA choirs stayed strong even through the pandemic, with mask wearing and cancellations of events, it didn't stop the levels to which they reached. There are a total of 6 class choirs and two extra-curricular choirs. The two Freshmen choirs, Cantabile and Troubadours, are separated into a treble and bass choir. Belle Voce and Knights' Choir are too split into treble and bass, but contain 10th, 11th, and 12th. Vivace is one of the two STMA touring choir with only treble students from 10th, 11th, and 12th. Concert Choir is the other STMA touring choir but the only choir that's mixed, with trebles and basses of students from 10th, 11th, and 12th. The two extra-curricular choirs are Chambers Choir and Voces Equitum; both mixed treble and bass choirs with students from 10th, 11th, and 12th grades. Some of the most important thing about having a good time are the people that will always bring a smile to your face. Kaci Brannan (24') is known for her funny comments and bubbly personality, in the Vivace Choir. Kaci has been in the STMA choir program since 5th grade and Honor choir from 5th to 8th; sticking it through the pandemic and in Vivace for the last two years. There are quite a few seniors that have stepped up as leaders in the STMA choir programs, many of them mentioned on the page to the right. The choirs, over the years, have had many different opportunities to show their excellence in various events and tours that many colleges choirs don't receive. STMA is considered one of the strongest choirs in the state. Being run by Mr. Osowski, there really are no lengths to what the STMA choirs can't reach. Spread by Kyla Smith.

The Vivace Choir got invited to sing in a convection in Minneapolis called MMEA. The Treble Choir sang their best songs and represented STMA well. With a full day of singing and walking around, Kaci Brannan ('24) shows her enthusiasm when taking off her choir robes. The Vivace Choir had many smile filled moments just like this. Good job treble singers!

SHARE THE WORD.
The choirs would be nothing without the broadcast of what they're all about. There are many ways the choirs get their name out. One way is through the Internet and having student run social media pages. These students are voted in by the previous choir students and are expected to run the social media pages for that choir's year. This year for 2022-23, Eniye 'Daniel' Donbraye ('24) and Chelsea Neba ('24) are the Historians for the Concert Choir student board. They are both known to have bubbly, exciting personality and do a great job to make everyone feel involved with sharing pictures and events on social media.

SINGING IN HARMONY.
There are two top touring choirs at STMA, Vivace and Concert Choir. Each comparable, only difference is one's an all treble Choir and the other is a mixed treble and bass. There are a few events where they have the chance to sing together. At the 2022 homecoming game Emily Moen ('24) and Harlee Peltz ('24) sing together even when both being from different choirs; Emily being from Concert and Harlee Vivace. They still up hold their friendship showing the togetherness of the STMA Choirs. Showing the true spirit of the STMA student life.

PAYTON PEYERL

"It is such an amazing feeling knowing that I in some way touched somebody's life. I hope to do that for more people through singing and set an example for the future of the choir program so people will strive to do better than I have." Towards the end of his STMA singing career, Payton Peyerl can reflect emotionally about his experience. He found a home away from home in the people he got the opportunity to sing with over his 8 years of singing. Payton plans to sing on as a Bass in college. Way to go, Payton Peyerl!

EVAN DOMBECK

"The person who inspired me most about choir and music in general was my brother; without him I would not have had nearly the experience I had. I hope I am able to leave the choir in a positive light and someone that others can look up to." There is nothing more important to Evan than singing with ones he's close to. He is part of the Tenor section and is seen many times cracking jokes and sharing smiles with his fellow peers. There are so many choir memories that he will never forget. Evan is planning on continuing his singing experience at Colorado Springs (UCCS). Congratulations, Evan Dombeck!

ABBY CARROLL

You can't be a follower without a leader; Abby Carroll was chosen as the concert Choir President this year. She has been leading strongly with kindness and acceptance all year round. Abby has also been a doubler for years, being involved with Chambers, Concert, Wind Ensemble, and Gold Jazz; she really is a role model to follow. She explains how Choir has become another home to her: "The choir room has always been like a second home to me, and I hope that I've helped other singers to feel at home here too." Abby plans on continuing her Soprano career as music educator at Luther college in Iowa. Way to make STMA proud, Abby Carroll!

AVA YOUNG

Ava has been involved with many choirs over the years; Angelica Cantanti Youth Choir, Cantabile Choir, Minnesota All State Honor Choir, Sirens, Vivace, Chamber Choir, and Concert Choir. Ava has had more singing experience than most her age. Her mother, Courtney Young, who has been the amazing piano player for the choirs over the years, has inspired her the most. Ava said in an interview: "She is proof to me that it's possible to make a living off of Music and I can always continue doing what I love." Ava plans on continuing her Alto singing through college. Way to go, Ava Young!

MIKAYLA PRESTON

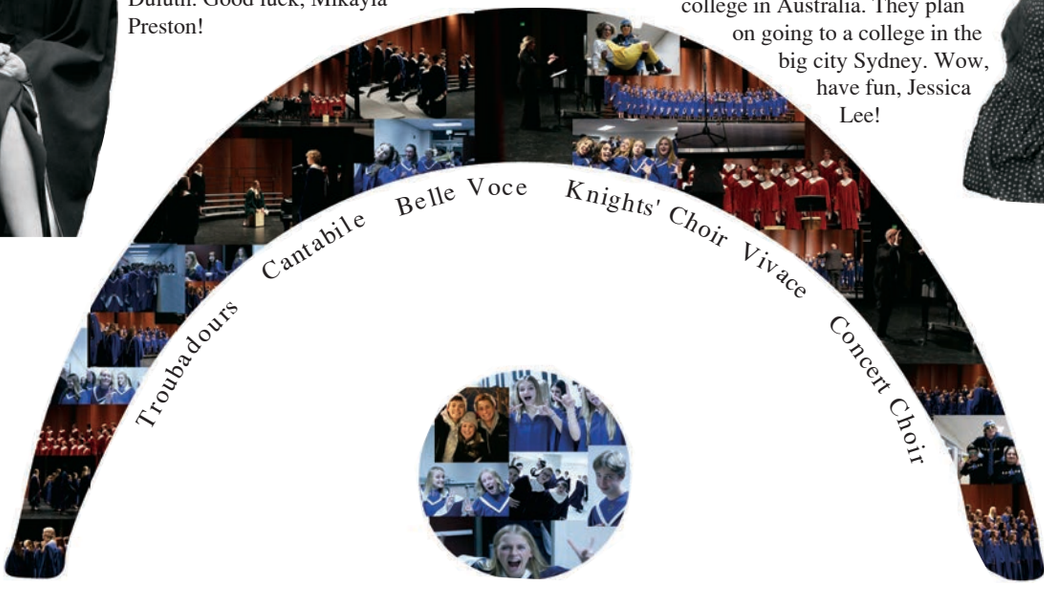

There are many choirs at STMA, Mikayla is part of the all treble choir, Vivace. She has made many memories with these girls. One of her favorite was on the tour to Chicago last year; "My favorite memory from that trip, was when the bus we were on had holes in the ceiling and it was raining so it was dripping through and so a way to fix it was Mr. O taping menstrual pads to the ceiling." Mikayla plans on singing Soprano for St. Scholastica Choir in Duluth. Good luck, Mikayla Preston!

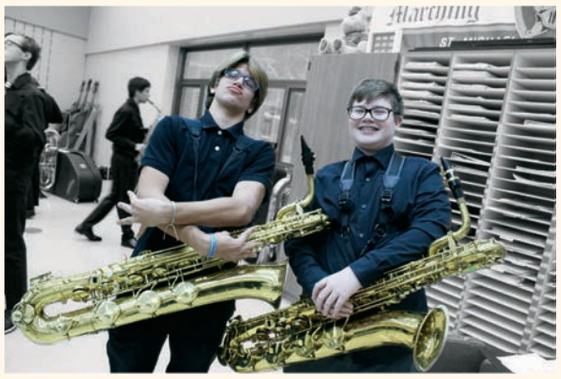

JESSICA LEE

We have many leaders at STMA and Jessica Lee would be up there with the best. Being the President of Vivace, Jessica comes by many problems but with good collaboration and responsibility they have pulled through. Abby Carroll and Jessica have worked together very closely over the year and have done amazing things with the top STMA choirs. Sending a good message is important to Jessica. She said in an interview: "I'd like to leave a legacy of advocacy for my peers when I leave the STMA choir program." Jessica plans to continue singing outside of college in Australia. They plan on going to a college in the big city Sydney. Wow, have fun, Jessica Lee!

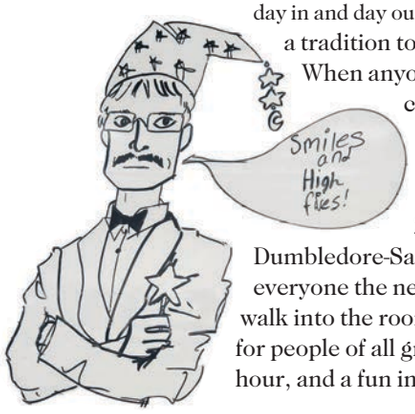

PLAYING BOLD.

All instruments play an important role in the band. There are the more popular instruments but then there are the more unique ones. Bass Clarinet, Piccolo, Oboe, Flugelhorn, and Bassoon... only to name a few. One of these is the Bari sax; there are a total of 5 Bari saxophones varying in all the bands. Jace Berndt ('26) and Logan Mitchell ('26) are our two Freshman Bari Saxes. Stay Bold! Photo by Kyla Smith.

SMILES AND HIGH FIVES.

The band environment is all smiles and high fives from day in and day out. Mr. Saroka and the students started a tradition to keep everyone's spirits high. When anyone smiles, a high five is bound to come along. Even if Covid-19 restrictions may require a mask and social distancing, eye smiles and air high five are the way to go. Zoe Parker ('23) drew a Dumbledore-Saroka on the white board to remind everyone the new band slogan every time they walk into the room. This is a silly reason to smile for people of all grades that see it during their band hour, and a fun inside joke for years to come.

WITHOUT MUSIC LIFE WOULD Bb.

All the band students have made so many connections and memories with one another in any event they attend. If it's a band concert, pep band, tour, or one of there band retreats after school, there are always smiles to go around. Many students could say the people they play with are a bit like family. Kassie Mckeown ('23) one of the percussion seniors, being involved in Woodwind Ensemble, Jazz Band, Pit Orchestra Drum Line, and Marching Band, is seen always running around helping her peers with anything. In the picture below, she helps paint Isabelle Lahr's ('24) face for the 2022 Homecoming game. Isabelle is a dedicated flute player that is also seen spreading STMA pride. If it's at a pep band game, band retreat, or band concert she is always seen with a smile on her face and a high five to give.

The Woodwind Ensemble plays many different types of music. Soft, loud, fast, peppy, and sad. The directors try their hardest to bring in the writers of the pieces of music, so the bands can get a professional opinion on their playing and sound. The picture down below is the Woodwind Ensemble performing at a concert. Good job to all the STMA Bands. Photo by Dylan Gfroerer.

Coming off a year with a very senior heavy band, the STMA bands have had to learn to really play together to match the sounds of their previous years. Lower classmen have had to step up in many ways. The Woodwind ensemble, the top elite band, got the opportunity to have a band tour this year; to Minneapolis for a state convention. Since the Covid-19 pandemic, the STMA bands haven't been able to travel. The Gold and Blue Jazz bands were able to tour to the middle schools to advocate for to the youngsters to keep playing in high school. These bands really do show what it's like to represent STMA well. This year there is no band board but many of the seniors have stepped up to help make things happen. There have been many after school band retreats for students from all bands and grades to socialize and create connections. Pep band events are also very important to the players. This is when they are able to let lose and have fun playing the peppy tunes while cheering on their fellow peers. The concerts are usually all inclusive and the bands are all close nit. In the Fall concert, the 8th graders were able to play with the high schoolers. This idea was from the band directors. It is very important to STMA for everyone to feel welcome. Including the 8th grade bands just takes that extra step for them to feel a part of the high school community. There are many extra bands and groups the students can be a part of. There are two Jazz bands this year. Gold Jazz, being filled with mostly seniors and juniors, and Blue Jazz, being filled with mostly sophomore and freshmen. There is a Drum Line, that consist of only people from percussion. Then in summer, there is also a Marching band every year; last year they went to Disney World for two weeks.

NHS officers share their roles

president

I lead all meetings and pick the committee chairs. I loved being on NHS as a junior and seeing all the committees; I wanted to be a part of it all. I was extremely honored to be elected for this position. I enjoy being out in the community and doing service work with all of NHS; it is an incredible feeling.

owen van de reit

vice president

I liked the leadership role I was in just being in NHS last year, but I wanted an even bigger one. My main role is to take attendance at the whole group meetings and oversee the committees. My favorite memory was trick-or-can when we dressed up on Halloween and went out and collected cans to donate.

kaitlin christensen

secretary

At each meeting, I take notes and make a recap to share at the next meeting as well as the attendance at the beginning of each meeting from the last meeting. I love being an officer because I can participate more actively in the community. My favorite memory was the first committee I was involved in, which was the fall blood drive last year.

Lilia Barrett

My role is to do the Joke of the day at the full group meetings. I also run the Instagram accounts and make the recap presentation at the end of the year. My favorite memory was leading my first committee, which was the homecoming dance, because it was like a start to being an officer. One thing I love about NHS is that all the events are entirely student-run.

During this year of NHS, they are bringing back dinner and bingo, as ice cream and bingo at the nursing home. There was a lot of behind the scenes work that Kate Christiansen (‘23) had to do such as getting approvals from both the nursing home and the school, buying decorations and ice cream, and set up. She is very excited to be able to do this for the community and bring back old traditions, because this has not been done since before COVID-19. Another event that NHS ran was trick-or-can. NHS members went “trick-or-treating”, but asked families to donate cans for the food shelf. They donated 3,911 cans to the Hanover Food Shelf. Bennett Moger (’24), junior on NHS, said, “NHS is important to me because I get to help out in the community. Trick-or-can really inspired me because people were very excited and willing to give items to the food shelf.” Another NHS member, senior Julia Dupay ('23) enjoyed Trick-or-can as well. She exlaimed, "I enjoy NHS because it provides an opportunity to make a differance in the community. Trick-or-can is my favorite activity that NHS does. Not only is it something fun I get to do with my friends on Halloween, but we can also give back to the community by collecting food for the food shelf. We collect so many cans and boxes which is an awesome feeling!" All of the members are selected for NHS very specifically and intentionally. Faith Ramsey ('23), a senior, has been in NHS for two years, she expressed, "I decided to apply for NHS because I knew it was a great opportunity for my future. I had heard great things about it as a sophomore so when I had the chance to apply, I had to take it. I love NHS because it allows me to serve the community alongside my friends at school. I love seeing how the activities we do benefit and impact the community and the people of St. Michael and Albertville". Spread designed by Paige Butler and Macey Setter.

My main role is to plan and lead all of the meetings and events. I love leading the student body in a direction that will make a difference in the school. There are no limits to what events we can do. This year, we implemented a few new events and we are hoping that they will become yearly events that the student council continues. My favorite memory from being on student council was planning and running the senior sunrise, it was a fun way to start off the year.

I assist Ashton with planning meetings and collaborating for the events. During meetings, my favorite thing to do is write everything on the whiteboard. I love being on student council because it is a smaller group, a great opportunity as a senior, and we get to lead school events and meet new people. My favorite memory from being on student council was going as the full group to Feed my Starving Children with the whole group to pack the meals, it was such a cool experience.

LEADING THE PACK. Fae Bromley ('24) and Alexander Her ('24) MC at the Winter Week Pep Fest. "My favorite part of the pepfest was when Evan Dombeck broke the plunger in the relay race." said Alexander Her ('24).

WINTER WEEK. Student Council was preparing for the Winter Week Pepfest, Jack Robinson ('24), a new student council member said, "My role in the pepfest was brining out plungers for the relay race. TEACHING THE TEACHER. As Ethan Christensen takes on teaching Mr. Simmons, he taught him how to professionally shoot! “I thought it was pretty cool to be a part of the student teacher basketball game in general. Basketball used to be a pretty big part of my life so getting to play in that game meant a lot to me. I thought it was pretty cool getting to guard Mr. Simmons and also have him guard me. I’ve experienced Mr. Simmons being a super cool dude so I wanted to score while he was guarding me to get his reaction to my bucket,” said Christensen. Photo by Bennett Moger.

PULL THROUGH . Breanna Immer ('24) pulls with all her strength to beat her classmates in front of the entire school. “When I was asked to be a part of the tug-a-war, I was so excited. I was a little nervous before we started, but then me and my friend Rachel who also did it with me tried to come up with a plan to make our friends lose, which obviously didn't work well since we lost. It was a lot of fun hearing everyone cheer on us, and it was also super fun when Cornell and the knight mascot joined in, it was overall just a fun time,” Immer said. Photo by Bennett Moger

THE HEAT IN THE COLD. This year, the tradition of the SNAP basketball game continued. “The most fun event in winter week is definitely snap basketball against all of the teachers at the pep fest. The energy is always so heated from the students to the teachers, and all my classmates screaming makes the vibe so much more fun and memorable,” said Zak Wise. Photo by Bennett Moger senior dress up.

Dressing up for winter week makes the week so much more fun and memorable, especially when more people participate. The most common dress up days usually consist of “jersey day" and “senior ladies t-shirts, which is usually worn on the days of the pep fest. Pictured left are seniors Drew Bushard, Hannah Kvant, Lila Barrett, Avery ORourke, Taylor Jeffery, and Molly Ruhland. PULL TILL THE END. Playing tug of war is a thing that has lasted for years in STMA. Grades battle each other for a win. Though the seniors won, the sophomores put up a tough fight, including Juslene Chea ('25) pulling in the middle of their team. Photo by Bennett Moger.

OPEN WIDE, REEVES. The Knights go hard to have fun during winter week whether it's playing tug of war with your classmates and or teachers, or dressing up in your pajamas with your friends, or even pieing your principal in the face in front of your entire school. As Noah Torgerson (‘24) had the honor of pieing principal. Mr. Reeves in the face. “I really enjoyed throwing the pie in Mr. Reeves' face, because of all the times I got sent to the office,” said Torgerson. Photo by Bennett Moger.

FINISHING STRONG. What's school spirit without some pep in the fest! The STMA band had everyone dancing along as the activities continued. Abigail Carroll said, “Playing for the school at pep fests is definitely one of my favorite memories of high school! It’s just so much fun to walk out with a cadence and get everyone nodding their heads or clapping along. I love playing our longer cadence, “Oh Yeah”, because of the fun stick clicks we do at the start of the song," said Carroll (‘23). Photo by Bennett Moger.

MVP with the mic.

“My favorite part was when Evan Dombeck broke the plunger in the relay race. I couldn’t have done it without Fae. She was really helpful and a really good MC. She’s the real MVP. Another favorite part of mine was trivia. I really enjoyed asking the questions and seeing what the teachers’ answers were. I was really nervous but the crowd being super loud made that go away,” said Alexander Her (‘24)

Mia Martahler ('23) has landed the lead role in the play The Man She Was to send off her senior year with a bang. She has always done theater but decided to really get into it in her eighth grade year. When Mia made it to high school, she found that things were better than she expected: "All of the older kids were really nice to me and I felt it was just a really great place to be".

In The Man She Was, Mia played the character of a woman named Emma who went undercover in the military as a man named Frank so her character could fight in the civil war. She was very excited for this role: "I am used to playing as kids, and this was a chance to play not just an adult but someone who was so conflicted and it was good for me to work more on my emotions and connect to the character."

The BPA team went to regionals at Anoka Ramsey Community College. Many of them placed after competing at this event. There were thirty five qualifiers that made it to State. Those that place in state then move onto nationals which is held in Anaheim California. Barbara Mancilla ('23) said, "Although I stalled when I was brought into an office with the judge, overall I liked the experience and being able to try something different. There weren't any requirements to it so it was fun to try senior year!" This years statement is, "The mission of Business Professionals of America is to contribute to the preparation of global professionals through the advancement of leadership, citizenship, academic, and technological skills." They definitely worked alongside the mission statement this year. Paige Bushard ('25) felt this was impactful to her, "The preparation of advancement of leadership and skills really showed when I had to prepare speeches in front of a judges and rehearse my lines many times. My skills really improved from this because usually I wouldn't go to this degree of studying and preparing." There is also an opportunity to go to New York City in April. They will go to get a real world business learning experience. Maggie Steele ('24) was excited to say, "I chose to do this trip so I could experience New York in a different way: a business way. I am most excited to see a Broadway play and visit the New York Stock Exchange."

The Cosmetology program at Wright Tech is an intro to cosmetology. There are many other programs at Wright Technical College other than Cosmetology, such as nursing, mechanics, law and order, etc. Wright Tech is only available to Juniors and Seniors, but there is a tour that Sophomores can take if they want to get more information about any of the programs. The Cosmetology program goes all school year and can give you hours towards cosmetology school or tuition off if you reach the required hours to qualify and are planning to attend a school that works with Wright Tech. Some of the trending beauty products of 2022 are Charlotte Tilbury, Rare Beauty, hair tinsel, Amika, Redken, Arctic Fox hair dye, Drunk Elephant, etc. All of these products have made a huge impact on teens and adults all around the world. TikTok has greatly influenced the popularity and craze over these products. Some makeup that has become popular this year is the Charlotte Tilbury Hollywood Flawless Filter, Contour Wand, and Blush Wand. Other makeup that has been trending is the Drunk Elephant bronzing drops and the Rare Beauty blush. Spread designed by Cortney Halvorson.

Amanda says it does get a little annoying being asked all the time if we have twin telepathy or if we can feel each others pain. Becca said, "We dont feel each others pain but we always say stuff at the same time when someone asks us a question, and we always look at each other after, and we do sometimes know what the other is thinking, its pretty weird.' Identical twins are known to be pretty close and have a better relatonship then normal siblings. Looking at them with maybe only having a few conversations with them you may not know which is which, but for family and friends its easy to tell the diffrence. We asked the twins older brother Brody Odland ('23) on how he tells them apart: "There's not really a specific thing that sets them apart, when they were younger they would wear different colors but now I just know who is who. I think as they got older it just got easier to tell."

VICTORY. Sunday's showcase in Arizona turned out to be a record performance for Fox. About 113 million people tuned in to watch the Kansas City Chiefs beat the Philadelphia Eagles in Super Bowl LVII, which made it the most-watched Super Bowl in six years, Fox announced Monday. The game was the most-streamed Super Bowl, too, up about 18% from last year's game and 103% from the Super Bowl in 2020. Patrick Mahomes led the Chiefs to a 38-35 comeback win Sunday at State Farm Stadium, claiming the team's second championship in four years. Mahomes went 21-of-27 for 182 yards and threw three touchdowns to earn Super Bowl MVP honors.

A person born on the small island of Barbados who became one of the most prominent artists ever. Self-made in business and entertainment."Rihanna's halftime show beat the game's ratings. The performance drew an average of 118.7 million viewers across all platforms, which made it the second-most watched halftime show on record. Only Katy Perry's halftime show in 2015 drew better numbers.

FAN FAVORITE. The immensely fun and illogical Outer Banks returned with a new season on February 23, 2023, bringing back the Pogues and Kooks amid a coastal North Carolina class rivalry. Despite being well on its way to losing most of its charm and any sense of logic, the new ten-episode season is still undeniably fun in many ways. Outer Banks was always good at understanding what it wanted, but in this case, with a mighty inconsistent story where anything is possible, the third season seems to have quite substantially lost its way. This is especially worrying considering that this became one of the rarer Netflix shows to receive a fourth season renewal ahead of the premiere of the third one.

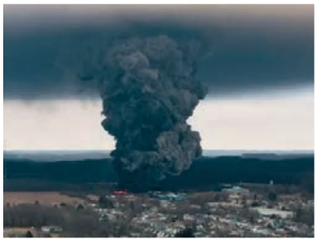

WINNING BIG. Kendrick Lamar was the most-nominated male artist at the 2023 Grammy Awards, securing eight total nods. Kendrick Lamar has won the 2023 Grammy Award for Best Rap Album with Mr. Morale & the Big Steppers. The rapper was presented the award by Cardi B, and he was victorious over fellow nominees Pusha T , Jack Harlow, Future , and DJ Khaled . Lamar has now won Best Rap Album three times, having been victorious in the category in 2016 (To Pimp a Butterfly) and 2018.. Lamar was also nominated at the 2014 Grammy Awards for Good Kid, M.A.A.D City, but infamously lost to Macklemore & Ryan Lewis. Lamar's single "The Heart Part 5" took home trophies for Best Rap Performance and Best Rap Song. He lost his Best Melodic Rap Performance nod (for "Die Hard") to Future, Drake, and Tems, who earned the accolade for their track "Wait for U."

TOXIC TRAIN. Around 9 p.m. on Feb. 3, a train derailed in East Palestine, a village of about 4,700 residents about 50 miles northwest of Pittsburgh. There were 150 cars on the route from Madison, Ill., to Conway, Pa. The National Transportation Safety Board said that 38 cars derailed and a fire ensued, which damaged another 12 cars. The head of the US Environmental Protection Agency returned Tuesday to the site of a toxic train wreck as weeks of anger, frustration and reports of health problems pile up in East Palestine, Ohio. EPA Administrator Michael Regan and Gov. Mike DeWine sought to reinforce earlier assurances that the municipal water supply is safe to drink by visiting an East Palestine home and drinking water straight from the tap. At the same time, the state was opening a new health clinic to address the growing reports of rashes, headaches, nausea and other symptoms in East Palestine after a Norfolk Southern freight train carrying vinyl chloride and other hazardous chemicals derailed on February 3 – igniting a dayslong fire, shooting black smoke in the air and leading to a release of vinyl chloride to help avert a more catastrophic explosion.

Navy

Joining the Military is not an easy decision to make. Joining any branch of the military means making sacrifices. If you sign a contract, that means you are bound for that amount of years you signed for. Less than 1% of Americans join the Military. Not many people wear the uniform, so for those who do, thank you for wearing it with pride and respect. Thank you to all those who chose to put their lives second. Thank you especially to the young soldiers who made this life changing decision even before graduating High school. You are making STMA proud!

This spread information is accurate only from March, 2023. Thank you in advanced to all those students who joined later in the school year. Thank you for your service to all students and staff!

Spread by Kyla Smith.

Fitness Stud

Staying fit is a standard for the Army. Chain of Command may first evaluate a soldier on their past ACFT scores. An ACFT (Army Combat Fitness Test) is a fitness test based on six fitness events for a soldier to complete; a two mile run, plank, push ups, ball throw, sprint-drag-carry, and deadlift. Males and females are scored differently on their individual fitness levels. The scoring is based out of 600 point. The average ACFT score for a soldier is 442 but many over achieve that. Kyla Smith ('23) scored a 559 on her latest ACFT at basic training. She was awarded the Iron Soldier medal for the highest female ACFT score in Alpha 1-48 Company at For Leonard Wood, Missouri. One of her Drill Sergeants commented: "Fitness studs are what run this country."

MEAL READY-TO-EAT

WHAT'S AN MRE?

A Meal Ready-to-Eat is a preserved military meal. It's made to be quick and nutritious. Each MRE holds about 15 items, from the main meal to side snacks and drink mixes. They are filled with different combinations of food ready to go. On the right is an example of an MRE. This meal is Vegetable Taco Pasta combo. This may sound disgusting and it probably is but there are many things that go along with it. Nutritious Energy Bars are pretty common in MREs. Diced Pears, crackers, crunchy peanut butter, dry roasted peanuts, as well with a rase lemonade and french vanilla cappuccino instant powder for drinks fill this MRE. There are also salt packets, pepper, napkins, alcohol wipes and laxative gum. There is also a spoon for the meal and a heat pad to warm the food up; all you need to do is add a little water to the plastic food heater and it will be steaming in minutes. Every item serves a purpose to make the soldier function to the best of their ability in the field.

WHAT A RUCKUS

What's in a ruck sack when soldiers need to march? What is a ruck sack?

... A ruck sack is a camo backpack with a built in frame with torso and shoulder straps. Soldiers, mostly Army soldiers, will pack everything they need to march out to the field, in war. There are certain things that are required for them to bring in order for them to function to the best of the Army's ability. These ruck sacks, on average, would weigh 30 to 40 pounds. Everything is folded and put in a curtain place for all inspectable items to fit.

2023 STAFF. The yearbook staff works endlessly every year to create the best book. They're always trying to top the work from years past. This year the staff came up with the theme this is us , to show case the school as a whole and the environment the school creates as a student body. Photo by Mrs. Sebens

spring

SPRING HAS SPRUNG. Spring is a time for melting snow, some what warmer weather, spring sports, and spring break trips. This spring, Annica Walters ('24), Gabby Ehlers ('24), Grace Wallace ('24) , and Breanna Weiss ('24) all spend their end of the school year with each other. "My favorite part is that we get to do more stuff in the spring. We get to ride with the windows down, see more of our friends, and just plan and get excited for summer," said Wallace. Photo submitted by Grace Wallace. Spread designed by Maddy Petranek.

DEFYING GRAVITY. Poll vaulter, Jada Dahlheimer ('24) , competes in arguably one of the hardest track events, fighting her fears and human instincts, Dahlheimer says, "When I first started pole vaulting I was definitely scared but not anymore, sometimes its a mental game just as much as a physical one." Photo by Tim Bykowski.

TESTING THE WATERS. After realizing she wanted to try something new her sophomore year, Hannah Kvant ('23), decided that she would try hurdling. While continuing this all the way throughout her senior year, Kvant says, "I'm so glad I decided to try hurdling because I really love i, and I like the fact that it gives me a goal when I'm running." Photo by FIGHTING THROUGH. Many people know that running can be even more mentally exhausting then physically, especially before a race. Sanae Radloff ('26) works hard to control her nerves before each meet so she is able to preform to her fullest potential. Radloff says, "I always listen to music and confide in my teammates while we stretch before each meet. that always really helps to get my mind away from the nerves." Photo by Tim Bykowski.

Morgan McKinley ('23) and Ramsy Hernandez ('24) are both hurdlers for girls track. McKinley says, "I love hurdling; it's my favorite event, because I like having a goal to get to each time I'm running and it's very rewarding." Photo by Emilynn Molesky.

MIND OVER MATTER. There is a lot of preparation that must happen before competing an event. Isabel Rankin ('26) prepares her self with many positive thoughts before she high jumps, Rankin says, " I always just tell myself that the height of the bar is much lower than it actually is and thinking that way always makes me much less nervous". Photo by Tim Bykowski.

THIS IS NEW. Trying new things is always hard, especially when your a senior. Lexi Kemmetmueller ('23) decided to try track for the first time this year and she is now one of our girls track top throwers. Kemmetmueller says, "I'm so glad I joined track this year I really love the sport and it's such a good environment." Photo by Tim Bykowski

FLYING HIGH. Superstition are very important to many athletes especially, Jessica Roth ('24) who says, "I always have to take a pre-meet nap in economics before I compete or I won't do good". As a high jumper, you need to be in the right head space in order to jump to your fullest potential. Photo by Tim Bykowski.

JUMP JUMP. Muhiz Bada ('24) the long jump at a meet vs. Minnetonka. Bada said, "What I focus on is how my landing is, I don't want to do anything to injure myself." Photo by Tim Bykowski.

TIMING IS KEY. First basemen Taylor Tschida ('24) helping her infield out by receiving any bad throws. "The biggest thing is watching the ball, seeing it early enough out of their hand is the best way for me to be able to read where it is gonna go."

GET LOW IN A SQUAT. Cameron Dubel ('24) stays light on her toes to be able to jump and move quickly if needed. Dubel explains, "One of the most important things about catching is being able to react quickly in any situation."

giddy-up gameday

Knights make cowboy hats as a fun team bonding activity.

GIDDY UP COWBOY. Chloe Jensrud ('23) does two different colors of blue for her cowboy hat. "I choose to stick with blue for my cowboy hat because I think that it matches our uniforms really good and it matches our glittery blue eyeblack." Photo submitted by Chloe Jensrud.

YEE YEE. Jadyn Pelowski ('23) does cow print on her hat this year with glitter. "During all the years of my softball career I have never made a cowboy hat and it was so much fun making these and I wish I would have made one for my club team." Photo submitted by Jadyn Pelowski.

HOWDY PARTNER. Kylie Gaston ('24) decided to do something different then cow print and went with flowers. "I love that we made cowboy hats this year, it was a great way to bond as a team and they definetly were a fun way to express our personality." Photo submitted by Kylie Gaston.

GETTING BACK. Grace Foquette ('24) dives back to 2nd base to make sure she dosent get picked off. Foquette describes "When I see the ball coming I immeditaley dive back, I keep my hand closest to the base lower and out so I can reach the base with my hand faster."

LAYING IT OUT. Jordyn Clapp ('23) playing right feild during the first game of the 2023 season, lays out on the line diving into the fence to get the Knights out of the first inning. "As I saw the ball going up the wind was making it very hard to track but I knew no matter what I needed to catch that ball and I knew I was gonna have to put my body on the line and dive into the fence." Photo by Sophie Schmitz ('25).

PITCHING QUEEN.
Kendra Behrens ('25) firing strikes across the plate to help the Knights have quick and easy 1,2,3 out innings. Behrens explains how she feels on the mound as "When I am pitching there can be alot of pressure when bases are loaded but I have learned to stay in my zone and stay collected." Photo by Sophia Schmitz.

READY SET SWING.
Khendal Johnson ('23) walks up to the plate with full confidence every at bat. Johnson explains why confidence is one of the most important things in not only softball but every sport. "Having high confidence is so important in offenseivley and defensivley. You need to know you can do something before trying to do it. Photo by Sophie Schmitz.

Taylan Siens said, "I look up to Noah Miller the most because he plays the game with intensity while still being relaxed."

Sam Anderson said, "I look up to Noah Miller because he is the hardest worker out there and I just love the way he carries himself from a friend standpoint to a teammate."

Zach Pribyl said, "I look up to Braden Intieri the most because he has worked so hard to get where he is now from not playing much varsity as a junior to now being a D1 commit."

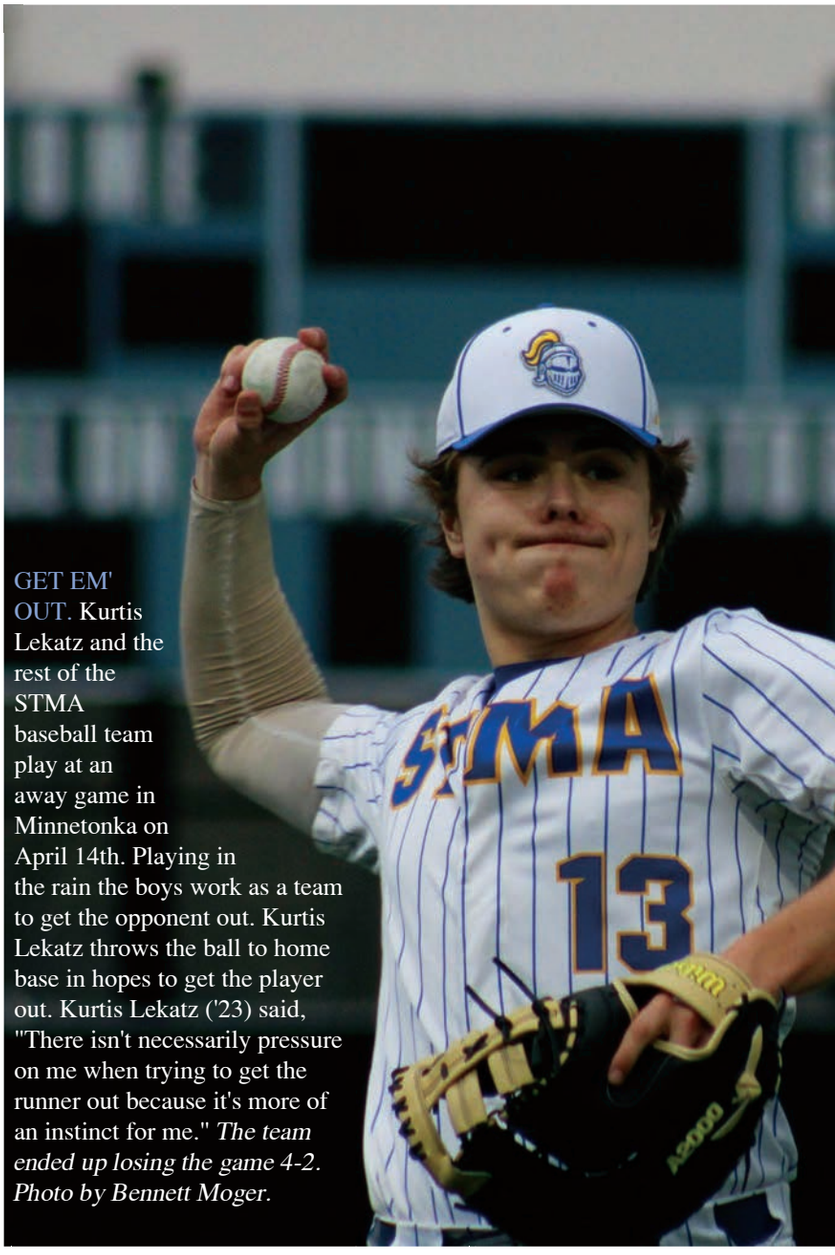

BATTER UP. Matthew Maulik is up to bat. Hitting the ball into the outfield he scored a triple for the team sliding to the third base, barely making it. Matthew Maulik ('23) said, "When I make a good play I feel really good, but I have to act like I've done it before." Photo by Bennett Moger.

WARMING UP. Joey Rathman ('23) warming up on the Minnetonka field, running to his position in the outfield. There is a specific warm up the boys do individually before heading into the next inning. Joey Rathman ('23) said, "I make sure to stay warm and throw the ball between innings, but it's different for every appearance depending on how I feel." Photo by Bennett Moger.

SMILES FOR MILES. Even with a tough loss at the first away game in Minnetonka the team continues to keep there heads up going into the rest of there season. Mason Varley ('23) said, "When the team is in a bad mood I try to stay positive and try to help them keep there heads up because it usually helps the team spirit after the game." Photo by Bennett Moger.

GET EM' OUT. Kurtis Lekatz and the rest of the STMA baseball team play at an away game in Minnetonka on April 14th. Playing in the rain the boys work as a team to get the opponent out. Kurtis Lekatz throws the ball to home base in hopes to get the player out. Kurtis Lekatz ('23) said, "There isn't necessarily pressure on me when trying to get the runner out because it's more of an instinct for me." *The team ended up losing the game 4-2. FORM IS EVERYTHING. People underestimate how hard it is to get a hit in baseball. So what do you have to watch out for when up to bat? Samuel Huber ('23) said, "From the time the pitcher releases the ball I have to decide to swing the bat or watch the pitch go by. It starts to get hard when the pitcher throws an off speed pitch because it messes up your timing. If the pitch is in the zone, I have to react in a short amount of time and decide if I want to swing or not." Photo by Bennett Moger.

CONFIDENTLY DRIVING. Having confidence in a drive is the key to achieving the goals you want. Going in will full force and not holding back is what Faith is all about. Faith Johnson ('25) said, "I tell myself I got this and that I've done this before. What ever the turnout is it will be fine. I go back to the basics and have a positive mindset! Photo by Lauren Dinh.

THE PERFECT POSITION. As she lines up her shot. Maddie Tillman ('25) shares what makes her hits so good. She said, "The perfect position is having the ball towards your front foot in your stance which allows you to have power off of your drive." Photo by Lauren Dinh.

"Getting to hang out with my sister is a huge plus. I really enjoy helping her since it is her first year of golf so I am definitely her number 1 supporter"-Lauryn Mikolich ('24)

STEADY AND FOCUSED. The only senior golfer has lined up for shot and is nothing but accurate. She knows how to lay it down and get the perfect putt. Avery Freeland ('23) said, *It really depends on the context of the putt. In an instance where it's a 3-5 foot putt I need to make it otherwise I'm just wasting strokes, so I'm always glad to get those done with. If it's a long putt those can be more stressful so getting those in is always good to see and it gets me hype for the next hole. In the sport of lacrosse there are many reasons you would need protective gear. They legally can wack and hit each other. With all the gear it could be heavy, Owen Sjoberg ('23) explains how it isn't heavy: "The gear never gets hard to move in, most the time I forget it is there, you can be very agile in lax gear." Photo submitted by Owen Sjoberg.

FIRST YEAR DEFENSE. The Knights hosted the Trojans in their home opener on April, 24th. Defensemen Bryce Haines ('24) played in his first ever Knights lax game. Haines said, "I would say being new to lacrosse it is more exciting then intimidating because I just go out there and do my thing." Photo by Tim bykowski.

QUICK FEET. First home game vs Wayzata on April 24th. On the defensive side of the field is Dylan Layton ('23). Hanging and focusing the lights is very important, along with writing and programming all of the lighting cues for the show.

NON-TOXIC CREATION.

"Designing this set piece was definitely one of my easier set-making tasks throughout my years of high school, but I still put much thought and time into it! I started with a plain white piece of wood and started measuring out the letters with a pencil; the measuring took a considerable amount of time. Two big themes in our show were using your time wisely and standing up for yourself. I wanted to show how the US Radium Corporation was running out of time but still made an impressive impact on the world. The white background and bright green LEDs add the impact fullness that I wanted to convey. I added a cream color to the white background to give more depth and darkness to the sign (to match the feeling of the time period: almost goes unnoticed or even forgotten now). Then, as most artists do, I contemplated if I should be done or not. I looked at everything, and then I saw the big empty white space at the top in the semi-circle. At that moment I knew how to finish off my sign; I would paint a clock face. It portrayed the message of the show how I wanted, and it made an impact on the audience," said Mia Marthaler ('23).
