A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Roncalli Catholic Family,

As the holiday season approaches, I find myself reflecting on the many blessings within our Roncalli Catholic community. Each day, our alumni, parents, teachers, students, and friends demonstrate what it truly means to live with faith and purpose. I am deeply grateful for the joy, generosity, and unwavering support that define our Roncalli Catholic family—especially during this season of hope and thanksgiving.

In September, we were excited to allow our students and staff access to our brand new, state-of-the-art science classrooms and laboratories. The excitement around the project had been building since May when work began on the project. Every day, our students are embracing new opportunities to learn, discover and grow in classrooms designed to challenge their minds and prepare them for the future.

The ability to teach both lectures and labs in the same room greatly impacts science education, and our students and staff have benefited exponentially from the upgrade of our science labs. Our science department has begun implementing streamlined curriculum centered around their new environment.

As we near the end of the first semester and prepare to begin the second, our hearts are filled with gratitude for the incredible growth and accomplishments of our students. Their hard work, perseverance, and dedication have been truly inspiring. As we look ahead, we ask for your continued prayers and support so that our students may keep thriving—academically, personally, and spiritually—throughout the remainder of the year.

Your encouragement and guidance help our students grow in the virtues of Wisdom, Courage, and Faith—qualities that will guide them throughout their lives. Thank you for your steadfast dedication to their success and well-being. We are truly blessed to have you as a cherished part of the Roncalli Catholic community.

Sincerely,

“Pride in Our Future” Capital Campaign

President Sean Keisling, school leadership and the RCHS Board of Directors are committed to providing the school's staff and students with all the resources necessary to be successful everyday. The “Pride in Our Future” Capital Campaign, launched in 2023, has raised over $5 million in pledges to date.

October 10th was a special night at RCHS. We debuted our new science classrooms and laboratories at a ribbon cutting event with very special members of our Roncalli Catholic family. We were excited to commemorate the inauguration of our newly completed classrooms and were excited to celebrate with all of the tremendous people who turned our dream into reality.

The Feldhaus family along with many countless donors have been instrumental in making sure RCHS students and staff have a learning environment that is truly second to none. RCHS is dedicated to preparing our students for careers in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics. With the upgrades to our science labs, we are confident that our students and staff will have every resource to thrive in a STEM learning environment.

Girls cross country team defies odds

Crimson Pride quartet captures District championship

Wednesday, October 15, marked a historic moment for the RCHS girls cross country team. With determination and heart, the four-member squad traveled to Mount Michael High School to compete for a coveted spot in the Nebraska State Cross Country Championships, set to take place in Kearney on October 24.

"One of our team mottos this year was 'Lift the Car,' said senior Sara Maguire. "That means that even though we were a small team, by working together we could do amazing things."

Junior Mary Kelly, Maguire, freshman Adelyn Valasek, and senior Rio O'Doherty entered the district meet with confidence, fueled by a season of outstanding performances. The team had already captured first-place finishes at the Logan Invitational on August 28, the Douglas County West Invitational on September 4, and the North Bend Invitational on September 25.

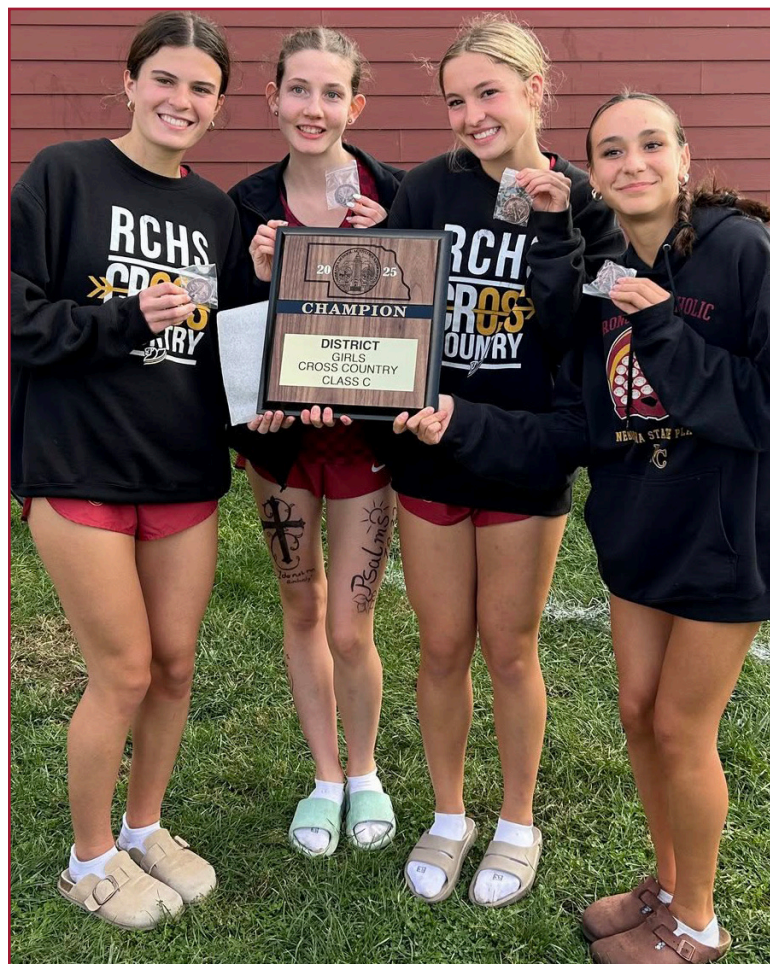

"This year, we have accomplished some great things that each and every one of the athletes should be proud of," said RCHS Coach Jarrett Proby. "In one of the shortest seasons of the year, everyone has gotten better due to the great work they did all season."

At Mount Michael, the Crimson Pride rose to the occasion once again, earning the Class C-2 District Championship in impressive fashion. Each runner medaled after finishing in the top 15, showcasing the team's talent and determination.

Kelly led the team with a third-place finish and a time of 20:59. Maguire and Valasek followed closely, finishing ninth and tenth with times of 22:16 and 22:21, while O'Doherty secured 15th place at 23:03. Their collective effort lifted RCHS to the top of the district standings, edging second-place Fort Calhoun by just two points.

"Something that makes this team extra special is the fact that Sara, Adelyn, Mary and Rio were only a team of four-the minimum required to score points," said RCHS Coach Andrew Soneson. "I've never witnessed a cross country team win a district championship with only four runners before. That means every girl had to consistently perform at a high level in all of our races to remain competitive. That is very difficult to do in competitive distance running, and is a testament to their teamwork, positive attitude and hard work all summer and throughout the season."

The Crimson Pride ended up 12th at the state meet with Kelly leading the way, crossing the finish line in 34th place with a time of 21:12. Maguire finished in 68th place with a time of 21:58, while Valasek and O'Doherty crossed the finish line in 81st and 85th place respectively.

A View from inside Rummel Stadium

A perspective from a former RCHS student/athlete

The view from the bleachers is different from that on the field.

On September 7, 1979, I nervously stood under center at UNO's Al Caniglia Field, ready to take the first snap of the season against our arch-nemesis, the Creighton Prep Junior Jays.

Now, on August 29, 2025, I find myself at Rummel Stadium, sitting on aluminum bleachers, eagerly awaiting the start of the Crimson Pride's season opener against the Wayne Blue Devils.

The field features two shades of artificial green turf. Unlike other stadiums where one side is designated for the home team and the other for visitors, here, the bleachers are situated on the same side and divided into two equal halves: one side for family, students, and alumni of Roncalli, and the other reserved for visiting Wayne fans. Despite the separation by a center aisle, the different allegiances acknowledge and respect one another.

The world should take note.

When I played from 1976 to 1979, Roncalli didn't have a home field. We were like ragtag orphans, traveling each Friday night by bus to play at different stadiums in Omaha and Council Bluffs. Our temporary and rotating homes were UNO and Burke High School, which hosted us like benevolent grandparents until we could find permanent shelter.

That permanent place finally came 30 years later – a lifetime ago – when Rummel Stadium was christened. Back then, it had real grass, the track surface was riddled with potholes, and the white lanes were faded and hardly visible. Today, the ground is covered with field turf, and the new track surface – safe for spindly-legged sprinters – has freshly painted white lanes that shine brightly even at night.

My father-in-law once told me to expect to feel more reflective when I turned 60 years old. He wasn't issuing a warning; he simply wanted me to know so I wouldn't assume the worst when that time came.

Now at 63, I'm attending Roncalli's home opener not out of nostalgia, but because I was bored at home, and the favorable Labor Day weekend temperatures inspired me to return to my old stomping grounds.

Throughout the years since graduating in 1980, I have visited Roncalli many times. I've attended football games, fundraisers, and a few baseball outings. I even spent a couple of terms on the school board. I have witnessed many interior and exterior facility changes and improvements, all of which were necessary, beneficial for students, and worthy of financial support.

Rummel Field is packed tonight, with people waiting in line at the legendary concession stand. I tried the cheeseburger; it was so big and tender that I barely finished it. The fries are second to none, but I had to give them away.

The press box, perched atop the bleachers, is staffed with middle-aged coaches wearing crimson and gold caps and shirts, donning black headsets as they watch the contestants catch their breath around the midfield logo.

The announcer sneaks in dad jokes and pre-game advice about sportsmanship through a sound system that crackles with a scratchy quality. The scoreboard is modest, providing all the necessary information, which is fitting for a Class C1 school.

There's a small-town, festival atmosphere at Rummel Stadium. None of what I am observing is new to my wife, Laurie, who grew up in a quaint southwest Iowa village.

Back in the days when I played, Roncalli was a member of the Class A Metro Conference. I wish I could say we held our own against the better-resourced and much larger Omaha high schools, but unfortunately, we mostly did not.

From the top bleacher, where I sit alone with Laurie, I can see the well-lit parking lot and tailgaters gathered around the backs of vehicles that didn't exist in 1979—luxury SUVs and cars powered by electricity.

How things have changed.

However, what hasn't changed is the heart and soul of Roncalli Catholic High School. It remains a haven for families from not only North Omaha but from throughout the city and its suburbs, all seeking a top-notch, faith-based, college-preparatory education for their children.

There are other high schools in Omaha like Roncalli but none, I believe, offers students the best chance to be seen. Roncalli's faculty and staff have a remarkable ability to see, know, and understand the students entrusted to their care.

A single mother of three, watching her son play, shares how much Roncalli has improved her son's self-esteem. "A student really has to try hard not to be noticed, but even then, a classmate or teacher is likely to spot them" she explains while gently stroking her ten-year-old's hair. Her son plans to attend Roncalli. Another single mother mentions how her freshman son loves high school, "He's been in school less than two weeks, and he is already blossoming," she says.

Today's teens must be seen. Whether it's the influence of social media, the mental health crisis, the breakdown of family structures, or waning faith, the world of 2025 feels lonelier, more isolated, and more divided than when my teammates and I worried about our rented team bus breaking down on the way to our borrowed home field on Dodge Street.

Roncalli Catholic High School's superpower lies in its community and its ability to nurture every student, fostering personal growth and connection in a world that desperately needs both.

While other schools may brag about their rigorous academic standards – Roncalli owns that message, too – let Roncalli Catholic High School boast about guiding students away from today's potholes and helping them navigate the faded lines of moral relativism.

This is my perspective from the top bleacher of Rummel Stadium.

The Feldhaus Family

Roncalli Catholic is deeply grateful for the Feldhaus Family and their commitment to our mission at Roncalli Catholic. Their contributions throughout the years have profoundly enriched our school in numerous ways, and with their help, we are building a brighter future for our students and community.

Thanks to the generosity of the Feldhaus family and countless other supporters, RCHS students and staff now benefit from a learning environment that is truly exceptional. Their commitment helps us provide state-of-the-art spaces that inspire discovery, innovation, and growth. At Roncalli Catholic, we remain dedicated to preparing our students for future success in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics, equipping them with the skills and confidence to thrive in an ever-changing world.

October 10th was a truly memorable evening at RCHS, as we proudly unveiled our new science classrooms and laboratories during a special ribbon-cutting ceremony. Surrounded by valued members of our Roncalli Catholic family, we celebrated the opening of these state-of-the-art learning spaces and honored the many generous individuals who helped bring this vision to life.

Crimson Pride senior Jordan Martinez (top) is capable of carrying on meaningful conversation with leaders of the Catholic Church and can also hold his own on the pitch while leading the Crimson Pride soccer team.

RCHS Student Spotlight

RCHS senior carves out original path

Roncalli Catholic senior Jordan Martinez had a plan in sixth grade. He knew that he wanted to attend RCHS in the Fall of 2022.

"I knew when I was in sixth grade where I wanted to go to high school," Martinez said. "I knew I wanted to attend a Catholic High School, and I took a leap of faith and that is how I ended up here."

He was able to make that decision even though he was not raised in the Catholic faith. Martinez was baptized in April at Holy Name Catholic Church.

"It starts with what I have learned about the Sacraments here at Roncalli," he said. "The moment for me came at the National Eucharistic Congress. There was a noticeable sense of spirit and light there and it inspired me to get baptized and become a member of the Catholic Church."

Being a member of the Roncalli Catholic family allows students the opportunity to serve others, something that comes natural to Martinez.

"It started when I was in seventh grade," he said. "Confirmation hours afforded me the opportunity to work in different food pantries with my grandmother and it has been something that I have enjoyed since." Martinez served as an interpreter at the food pantry and found the experience very rewarding. "It's my calm space. It's a place where I can go and just focus on helping others and that is very rewarding to me."

When he is not serving others, he often finds himself on the soccer field. Martinez is a standout for the Crimson Pride soccer team and has high hopes for the upcoming spring season.

"I am very excited for the upcoming season," Martinez commented. "We have some really good players returning and I think we have the opportunity to make a push for the state tournament."

More importantly for Martinez is being a good steward for the future of the RCHS program.

"Really, as seniors, we have to focus on making sure that the future of the program is strong and making sure we do everything we can to ensure that happens."

As guides, we will help students face real-world challenges so they can persevere — with mental and moral strength — setting them on the right path to learn, grow and thrive in a diverse world.

Pride Magazine Update

We have made the decision to provide our Pride Magazine twice a year, in November and in May. The November magazine will be available in print and online editions and will include all of our year-end financial information and our donor report. This issue will also feature stories about the people who make our Roncalli Catholic Family so uniquely special. The May issue will be available at the end of the month as an online only edition.
