Counselor Connection Competency of the Month: Self-Awareness

This month, students will dive into several important areas focusing on personal growth, responsibility, and citizenship. They will explore self-awareness and self-acceptance by identifying their personal strengths, recognizing areas where they can grow, and examining how their self-talk affects their confidence and choices. Students will also work on personal responsibility, and we will discuss the different roles people play in the school and community. These skills strengthen their citizenship skills

Parents, you can help reinforce lessons by engaging in conversations with your child about their strengths and areas for growth. Encourage your student to set small, achievable goals and reflect on their progress regularly. Simple conversations about teamwork, problem-solving, and recognizing each person's unique role can go a long way in supporting the skills your student is developing at school.
