The use of computers has become a big part of the lives of Timberline students. Here, Nina Glasscock uses editing equipment as she looks through footage shot for Blazer Broadcast System.

Our school experience began in Kindergarten. We learned to listen, follow directions and paint a picture like everyone else's. We stood in straight lines and followed our teacher wherever she would lead us. First through sixth grades brought us the basics in reading, writing, and arithmetic. We learned about community and our state. Middle School brought many changes and a knowledge of the world. Still following paths created by others.

High School brings with it choices. You can break the silence of the earlier years. Students can take an active roll in their futures by attending student council meetings and joining clubs. Timberline has listened to the voice of the student body and is providing many choices. The computer labs at THS are the only in the Nation that can access files in the library files through the CD Rom program. College courses can be taken for high school and college credit or a class at the skills center can help to prepare high schoolers for a particular field.

Our early schooling taught us to work together and now High School is teaching and has taught us to break away from the straight lines by providing us with choices to meet our personal goals.

BREAKIN' THE

SOCIAL BARRIER

MAKIN' NOISE

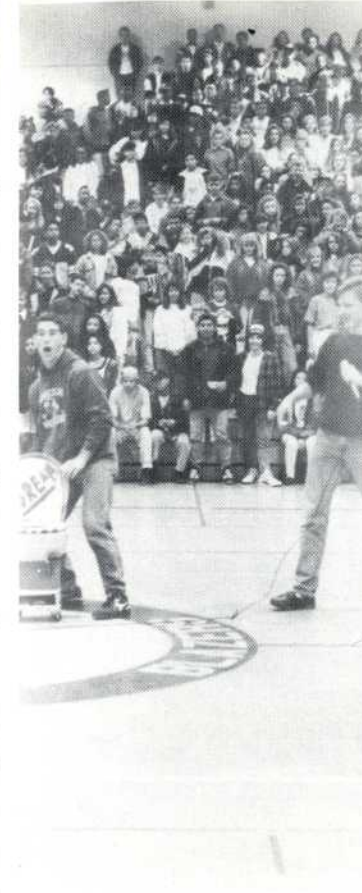

The assemblies this year, highlighted with sports, music, speakers, performances, and class competitions, were very loud. Each class shouted out their rank with spirit, whether Freshman, Sophomore, Junior, or Senior, in what sometimes resulted in a huge verbal war.

This year a new approach was taken towards assemblies. Class competitions were brought back but they were changed to "spirit competitions" instead. These competitions were more tame so they wouldn't be discriminating. Also, when an assembly was done, the faculty literally roped off students and directed each class to their own corresponding door.

For students that didn't want to participate in the assemblies, there was a study hall in the cafeteria. However, several kids tried to make a getaway for the parking lot, but were most likely caught by "Big John".

At an assembly, students acknowledge Mr. Birbeck on his 50th Birthday with a large black balloon bouquet.

At a Fall assembly, ASB officers, Britt Wusterbarth and Aaron Snell lead the school in a pep activity.

The Dance Team bops to the beat to one of their lively routines.

Varsity Girls Basketball captains Chris Wilson and Adrienne Martin, announce their team members at an assembly.

Before an assembly ASB Officers and Performers get ready to put on their show.

Cheerleaders, Melissa Reynolds and Nikki Dickson, lead the school in an exciting spirit chant.

At a winter assembly, sports captains from boys and girls varsity basketball, and boys swimming participate in a game of bump for a spirit competition.

In the Spotlight

Timberline High School students had a prism-like construction with many different talents. Whether a student was performing in a last minute skit during Wednesday Morning Live, modeling the latest fashions from Jelley's, or playing Mozart on a violin; they added something special to the makeup of the student population.

Many students were involved in the Fine Arts

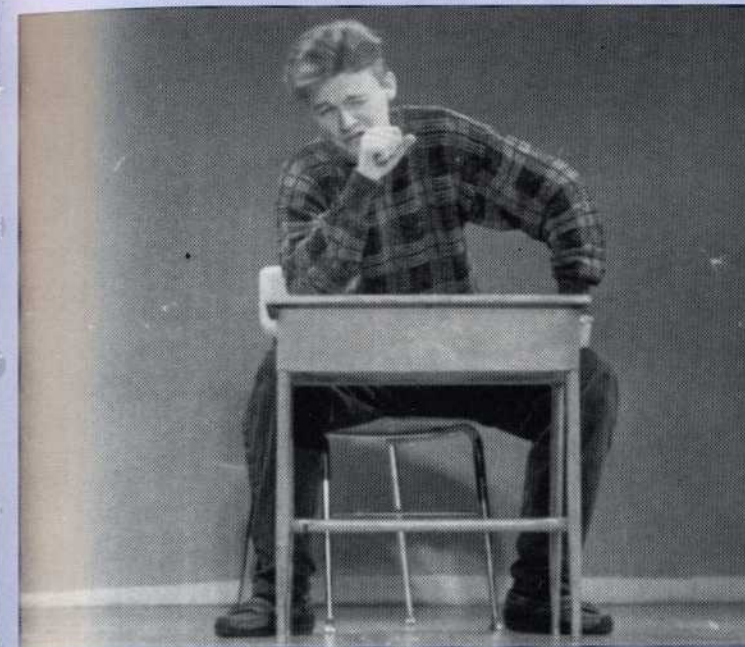

Convocation that was held on December 12. Talents that were displayed at this event ranged from personal essays to musical performances. Marco Hernandez demonstrated spray paint art, and Heidi Fredericks received two separate standing ovations during the afternoon performances of her solo piece, "The Baker's Wife". Hieu Dang also contributed to the Convocation with two Vietnamese folk songs.

Although many of the students had experience with performing in plays, musicals, or recitals, the air seemed to be filled with nervous butterflies. Dawn Boutcher read her poem entitled "I Am Aids" and explained that, "I've been in plays before so I wasn't nervous because of the people, I was nervous because it was an original essay instead of a written script."

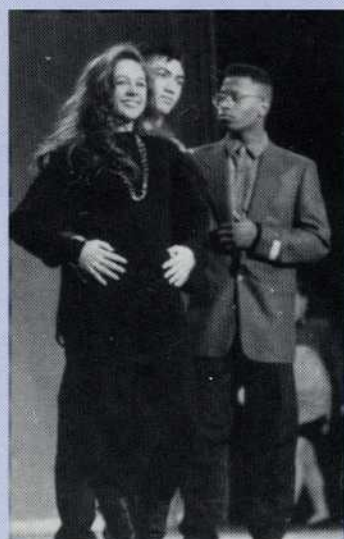

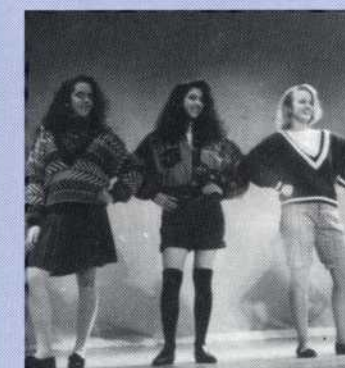

Hieu Dang sings two Vietnamese Folk Songs during the Fine Arts Convocation in December.

Sarah Salzberg, Amy Balestreri, and Lynnette Coan show off the latest fashions from the Closet during the fashion show held in December.

Kim Penny models an outfit from Casual Corners with Rob Bamba and Cecil Odom in their fashions from FBI.

Junior, Heidi Fredericks sings "The Baker's Wife" for the fifth period audience at the Fine Arts Convocation.

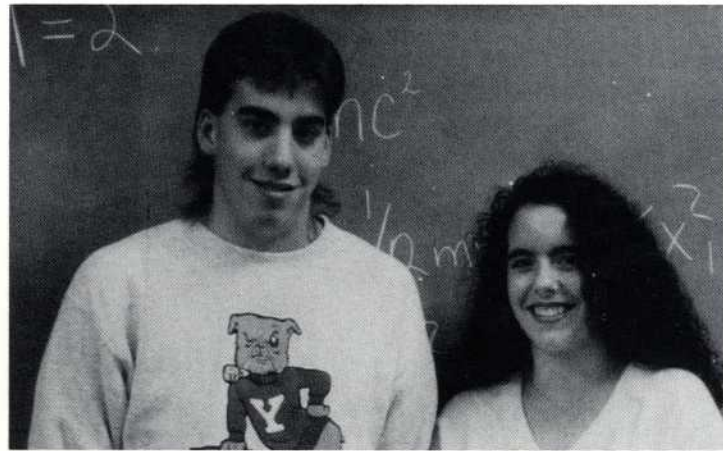

Tracy Beck works "behind the scenes" as she runs the sound booth during the Fine Arts Convocation in December.

Marco Hernandez, or Zone 3, demonstrates spray paint art to the audience. Marco also participated in the mural art competition between local high schools at Capital Mall in September.

Move to the Groove

On the night of December 14, 1992, the Tolo Dance was taking place at Timberline's auditorium. This year, the semi-formal occasion was set up by the Vica Drafting Club with Mr. Woods along as their advisor. It is Timberline's tradition, and many other schools as well, in which the girl asks and takes that special guy to the dance, dinner, and where ever she wants to take him. Junior Eve Snider said, "At the last minute, I asked my ex-boyfriend to Tolo but we had an awful time!!"

Junior Stacey Suan said, "My date and I had so much fun!!". Junior Melissa Sherrer said "The dance was better than last year because the music was better due to the many slow dances." To some people, dinner was an exciting part of that special night of Tolo. "Dinner was interesting but was also a lot of fun!", said Sheree Alexander.

Andy Ignacio, a Vica Drafting member said, "Setting up for the Tolo dance was a lot of hard work and cooperation." The group started setting up right after the basket ball game on December 13 to 2:00 A.M. They came back the next day at around 10:00 A.M. to continue the set up until about 3:00 P.M. They also cleaned up after the dance. Wes Williams, another Vica Drafting member, said, "Basically everybody from the club helped design the decorations." This year, the Vica Drafting Club profited more than last year.

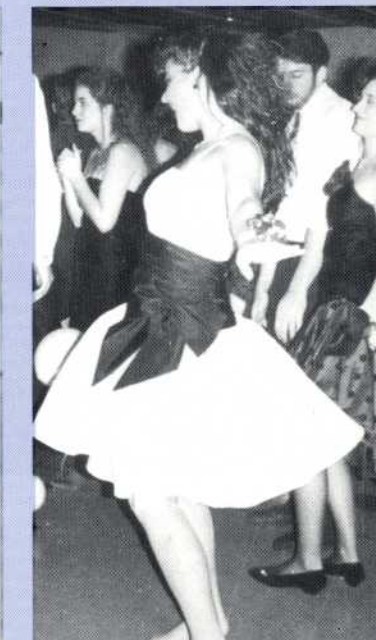

The regular dances this year were loads of fun with the help of the D.J.'s and the people who set up the dance. It seemed like the song, Y.M.C.A., was sort of a theme song for the Blazers at a dance because of the fact that it was always played when the D.J.'s from Music Delight came to do the dance.

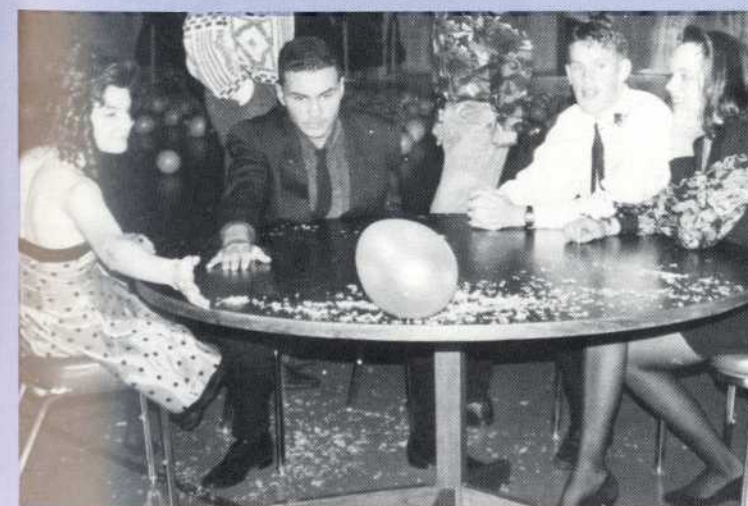

Courtney Bertsch and her date John Hayes took the dance floor enjoying the lights and the slow music.

Andy Ignacio directs another Vica Drafting member on where to put all the streamers for Tolo night.

Taking a break from all the dancing are Darby Wellington, Barry White, Josh Malony and Elisabeth Arnavac.

Whats Up This Winter?

Kelly Johnson - Work at T.H.S. and North Thurston as a life guard, and catch up on sleep, and homework.

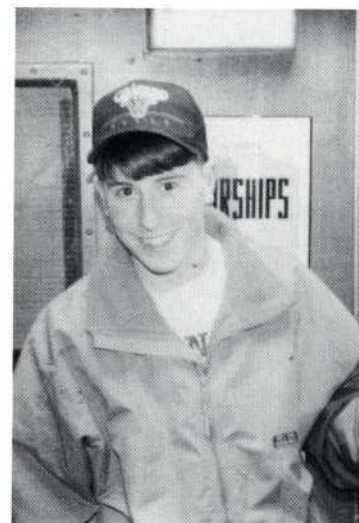

Sean Loomes - Cram for end of semester, take it easy, enjoy the free time.

Louis Lalane - Working, and finishing up school work before semesters end.

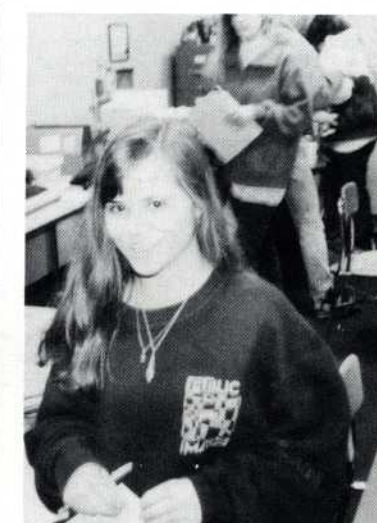

Kevin Shay - Visiting family out of town and doing all the homework he was to lazy to do during the year.

Arle Seaton - Getting out of Lacey partying with realatives and friends.

Mrs. Downey - Work on paper for her masters degree, and visit family for the traditional Christmas.

Tamara Barger - Visit family, relax, and take everything day by day.

WHAT A BREAK WITH NO SNOW

Even though this winter was not filled with snow there was still the bone chilling cold. Without the snow present it was practically useless to venture out doors. Students turned to renting videos and watching T.V. as a majority of their vacation. Those that were fourtunate enough to retreat to snow filled resorts were faced with the hectic traffic that often accompanies the holiday season. Visiting realatives was another great escape for many students.

The new year began on a positive note, with no Timberline students or faculty ending up a statistic of New Years traffic. This in part can be credited to the efforts of B.A.D.D. and others who provided a safe non-alcoholic environment, for parties. This also shows what a friend can do for a fellow classmate in trouble.

Having been a shorter winter break than normal the students recieved a gift from the district, a day off between semesters. Although students wanted to have a full two weeks for their break it really made no difference. Despite no snow, and a shorter break, the New Year was a good one for many and thats really all we could hope for.

MOVIN' IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

Each Timberline student had their own means of transportation to get to school and back home. They got there by either the school bus, city bus, driving, bicycling, walking, or getting dropped off.

Many people didn't like having to ride the bus because it's so packed. Sophomore, Derek Kauano, said, "The only reason why I like riding the school bus is because I get to ride with a lot of my friends and you can't fit them all in a car."

Driving to school may have been convenient but it was also a hassle with all of the traffic going in and out of the student parking lot.

Sophomore, Jenny Levesque, said, "I drive to school, but it's not that different from riding the school bus since my car is almost as big as a bus."

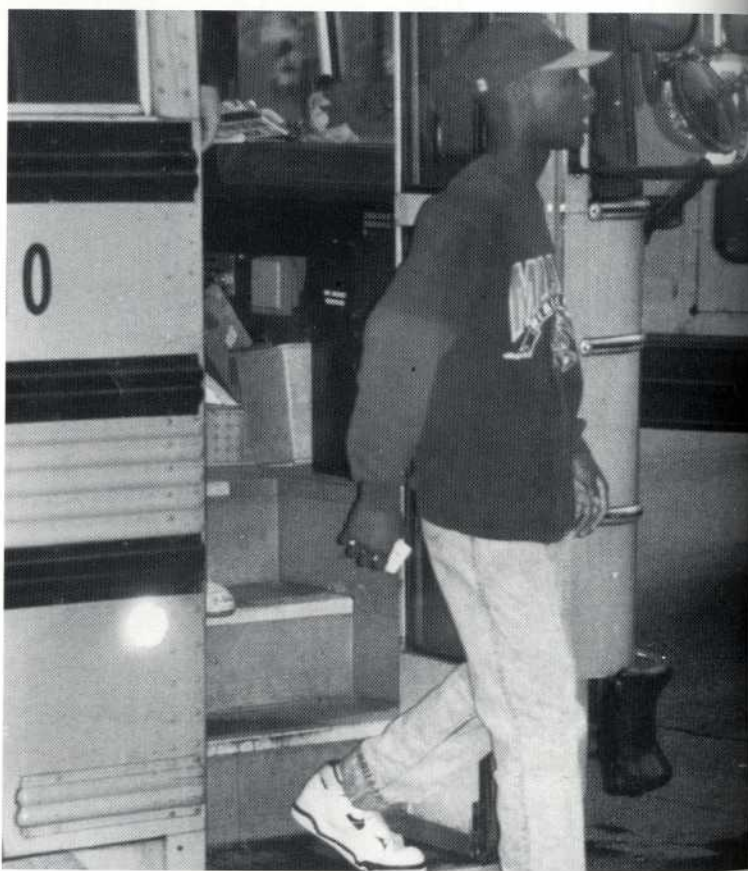

Instead of taking a bus or driving to school, Junior Christine Long, gets ready to pedal away on her bicycle.

Sophomore, Leah Buenzli, and Junior, Nichole French, wait patiently in the long lines of traffic after another day at Timberline.

Junior, John Strachan, is found getting off the school bus for another interesting day at Timberline.

BLAZER DESIGNS

This portion of the mural, done by Seniors, Sam Dillabough, Joshua Mortensen, and Mark Francom, was a great painting of Antwan Miller.

On August 18, 1991, there was a fire at Capital mall that damaged 7 stores causing them to close down. While the construction workers were cleaning up, they put walls in front of the burned down stores.

On these walls, students from a variety of High Schools were invited to put up works of arts in which T.H.S. students Marco Hernandez, Fredrick Rosario, Sam Dillabough, Joshua Mortensen, and Mark Francom, participated.

Each school was given $150 to pay for art supplies. The rest was to be bought by the students. Although Timberline didn't come in first, it was still "A lot of hard work", said Fredrick Rosario.

It took Sam Dillabough, Joshua Mortensen, and Mark Francom 3 weeks to complete their portion of the Mural. They worked on it for 3 hours, a couple days a week. It took Marco Hernandez and Fredrick Rosario about 5 days, working about 5 hours a day. "We used about 100 cans of spray paint!", said Marco Hernandez. Timberline did earn $150 which all went to the school.

Junior, Marco Hernandez, and Sophomore, Fredrick Rosario, creatively spray painted this part of the graffiti done at Capital Mall.

AN ENCHANTING WEEK

During the week of Sept. 30 to Oct. 4, Timberline students came alive with a variety of costumes. From Hawaiian Day to Role Reversal Day, students had the opportunity to show their true colors.

Senior class officers were busy with preparing the homecoming dance. Many hours of hard work were put into their efforts including ordering and building props for the dance, organizing class floats with pirates and mermaids, and scheduling other homecoming delights. Senior class president, Karyn Emerson, who headed up the project, added a live band to spruce up the night's excitement. Overall, the week of hard work paid off and a memorable experience was had by all.

Juniors Jimmy Williams and Lisa Treadwell do their best pirate and mermaid impersonations on the winning homecoming float at the assembly.

Before the dance, volunteers Britt Wusterbarth and Erik Martin move props into place to convert the gym into a perfect under the sea setting.

The Cheerleaders do a cheer at the assembly in football jerseys to pep up the crowd for the homecoming game.

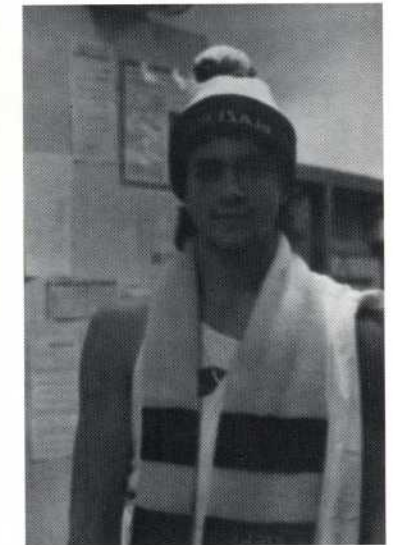

Seniors Wendy Boydston and Renee Nugent, bring to life the creatures under the sea dressed as a starfish and shark before the Dance Team's performance.

Seniors Jannette Wise and Hijin Yoo prepare for the long night ahead of setup for the Homecoming Dance.

On Hawaiian Day, Seniors Aaron Snell, Dan Cruz, Kevin Dekay, Aaron Halseth, Cameron Lenahan and Junior Sherry Neimen, pretend that they're out there havin' fun in the warm Hawaiian sun.

On Senior Toga Day, Brian Cassidy shows his spirit dressed in his own blazer pride way.

ENCHANTMENT UNDER THE SEA

The Homecoming dance was the center of celebration for the new school year. Typically the night of the dance consisted of dinner, the dance, and maybe coffee at a small cafe.

Many students who went to dinner ate at a local restaurant like Genoa's or Falls Terrace. Others added a romantic touch to their evenings by making their own food or ordering take-out. For example, Annette Gannie said "I cooked dinner for my date. It's a good thing I did because he ate so much I don't think I could have paid for all of it."

After dinner students arrived at the gym to find that it had been transformed into an undersea world. "The decorations were awesome!" exclaimed Lydia Guerrero.

There was a new touch to the dance; a live band called the Caribbean Superstars, played every hour for fifteen minutes. People enjoyed the new twist on things and formed conga lines almost every time they played. "The band was smooth," said Chris Gaskin. Most students agreed that there should be live bands at more of the dances in the future.

After the dance, if they were not too tired, some students went to Denny's or Shari's and talked about their evenings. Others went to parties in order to keep the evening alive and some decided to cool down by relaxing at a friends house watching movies.

The awesome decorations and the reggae band created an unforgettable evening for all to enjoy.

Diane Sheerer and escort Jason Bush arrive at the Homecoming Assembly in a 1958 Corvette. Later that evening, at the football game, Jason was announced Homecoming King.

Jason Peterson escorts Wes Wezenburg and Homecoming Queen Melanie Prather into the gym so they can take their place with the rest of the Homecoming Court.

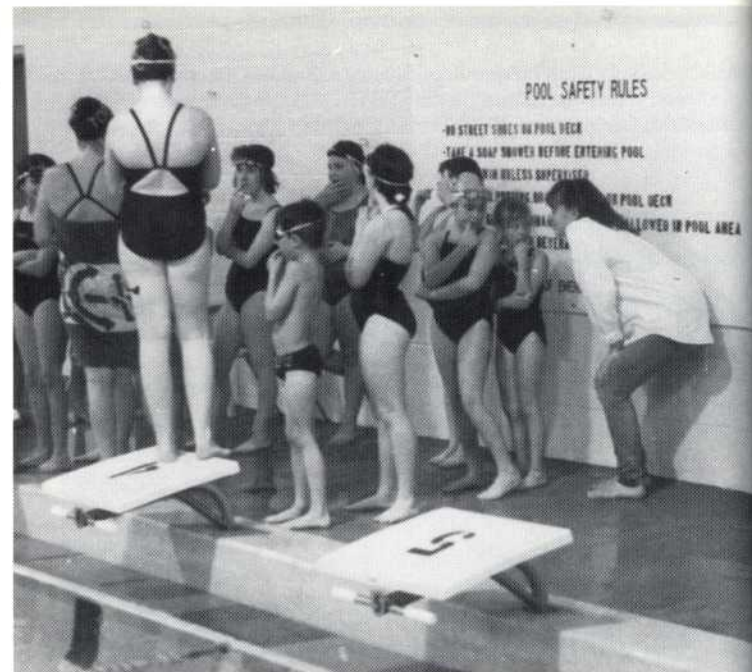

Chad Heath and Courtney Wallace at the airport, ready to board the plane.

This year Chad Heath and Courtney Wallace took a different approach to Homecoming night. On the evening of the dance, Chad picked up Courtney and took her to the airport. She had no idea where they were going.

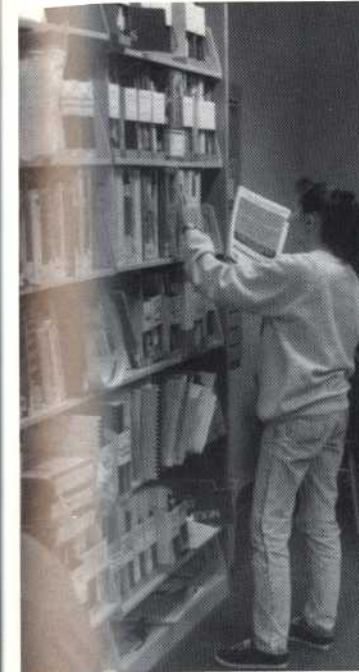

They flew from Tumwater to Portland, Oregon. In Portland they ate dinner at a restaurant called Hubers and after dinner Chad rented a car and they drove around the city. They then flew back in time for the dance. Courtney had this to say about the evening, "That night was so fun, I don't think that anything else could compare."

Sarah Godlewski explains the rules of a relay race while her students line up with their teams in preparation. Sarah helped teach this young swim team on Monday evenings throughout the winter swimming season.

Amy Balestreri demonstrates some tap dance steps to her students at Lydia Hawk Elementary School. Amy co-taught this class with Kristi Benton on Saturday mornings throughout the school year.

Seniors, Justin Black and Lanny Marsh complete a hot tub delivery with their co-workers from Longnecker Jacuzzi and Spa.

Linda Clauson reshelves some college catalogs and job information booklets at the Lacey Timberland Library on a Saturday Morning.

Cindy Harmon quickly bags groceries for some customers at her job as courtesy clerk at Albertsons.

Junior, Nick Wezenberg works with a pressure washer at Texaco on a Friday evening.

NOT ALL FUN AND GAMES

Timberline High School students are involved in many activities including sports, schoolwork, social engagements, and jobs. The latter of these four was often the least liked, but of high priority to many students. Tiffany Zeiler, who works at the Lacey Timberland Library said about her job, "I enjoy working with the people at the library; they're really nice about working around tennis season and it's fun. Sometimes it brings stress because of the time it takes up, but I like having the extra money."

Although money was often a major influence in students' decisions to brave the working world, some decided to give their energy and time to volunteer work. Kristie Bell who worked as a candy stripper at St. Peter Hospital felt that, "It's neat to work at the hospital, I've been working there for a year and a half now and I really like working with the people and the staff."

Whether students chose to work for money or self gratification, the amount of time left for other activities was always something to consider. Friends, boy-friends/girlfriends, sports, and of course a student's schoolwork were always strategically fit into their busy schedules.

Britt Wustherbarth, Claudia Felmer, Andrea Ohlson, Franceina Vilos, Maria Perez, and Christy Vandegenachte enjoy some brief conversation and music at a Friday night birthday party.

With extra precautions taken Michelle Roice feeds her dog Tara.

Krissy Snyder doesn't find the joke as funny as Lynnette Coan at a Saturday night party with friends.

Warren Wyman, Shayne Fitzpatrick, and Eric Martin live it up at a Friday night party out by the lake.

Evening Shades

"I really couldn't tell you what students do after they leave the school campus. Once the day is over I don't keep tabs on them past the last two speed bumps in the parking lot." This from John Ennis the new campus supervisor after a long day of watching over student activities.

"I work, sleep, do homework, and I just hang out." Are the four main answers given when students are questioned about their after school activities not including sports.

Where exactly do these students "just hang out"? They go anywhere they can find room. Just being away from parents is enough in many cases. It's a great opportunity to go and relax at a friends house.

Parties are often a much needed escape, utilized by students on Friday, Saturday, and occasionally Sunday nights. Movies, socailizing, and just plain having fun is the basis for any party. Games including volleyball, fussball, table tennis, and poker are frequently played at parties. Along with loud music and off-key singing, dancing comes into play. After the excess energies are releived it comes time to talk and joke with friends, thus making a complete party atmosphere.

Mark Valerio jokes with friends before joining the game at a Saturday picnic.

Ryan Nedwicke laughs in the corner about something totally off the wall at a Saturday evening party.

BON APPETIT !

This year the cafeteria was changed to make lunch more exciting. Which ever of the six new food lines you selected to buy from; Greenways, Pizzaz, Sizzle, Fiesta, Deli Delite, or Sweet Retreat, you were sure to get a good meal. In the various lines you could get almost anything from a chicken burger to a soft taco to suit your appetite.

The changes made it more popular to eat at school. For

$1.50 you could get a good sized portion of food. Sophomore, Schelli Buckner commented, "There's a lot more variety, I think more people would rather stay than go out for lunch."

However, there were still those students who preferred to make a quick run to McDonalds or Little Caesars. This could get pretty costly after awhile, so traditionally most students gathered to eat with their friends in the commons.

Students, Jason Cromwell, Alex Christensen, Jenifer Thayer, and others enjoy their lunches while socializing in the upper commons.

During lunch, students drift in and out of the cafeteria with their food under the new Blazer Pride sign.

A student views a variety of pastries and goodies under the Sweet Retreat line in the cafeteria.

Julie Chemel creates her own lunch in the GreenWays line in the cafeteria.

The SAC remains empty during first lunch.

Lack of the SAC

This year was the beginning to a new end, Timberline became tobacco free. Not only THS, but all education related institutions in the state.

Many students resorted to leaving campus so they could smoke. Carmen Burgess remarks, "I think it should be put back in. People would stay on campus if we still had the SAC."

The students did not enjoy standing in front of the school to smoke. They felt that it made them look bad.

Edgar Wells, Doug Krziske, and Jamie Conway step off campus for a quick drag during their lunch period.

X-PRESS YO-SELF!

This year many of the new trends that rolled in were actually some of the old trends. Some Timberline students have shown off their stuff through clothes from the sixties. A perfect example of this is Sophomore, Cleo Bertelsen. She says, "When you put on your clothes, you should dress to please yourself not everybody else."

One of the most popular fads is this year was Hypercolor Clothing. This type of garment changes color with heat. Some of the other styles consisted of over-alls, leggings, see-through blouses, rayon blazers, or just doin' your own thing.

Another popular trend at T.H.S. was the Bomber Jacket, which had names of teams and their logos sewn on to them. Then there was the ever so traditional Levis jeans and print T-shirts. Whatever you wear, whether it be silk shirts or baggy jeans, dressing is still a great way to X-Press Yo-Self!!

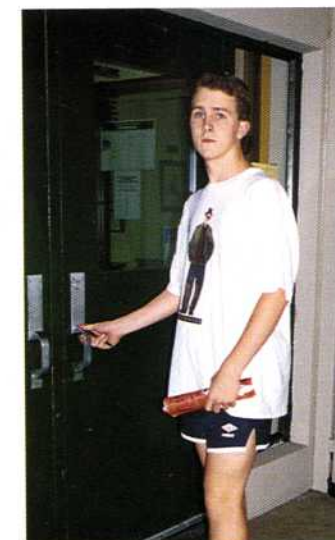

The multi-colored rayon Blazer, worn here by Lisa Weyer, was a colorful and popular style along with the black skirt.

In the middle commons, Chris Zeppa shows his pride of his nationality by wearing clothes with "Italy" written on them.

Bill Fair stops to show off his Hypercolor T-shirt before entering the Counseling Center.

Sophomore, Chris Olsen, was spotted near the lecture halls wearing the traditional Levis jeans and T-shirt.

Stopping to strike a pose are Junior, Michelle Fejeran and Sophmores, Annaliza Valdez and Jessica Baza, wearing fashionable outfits from seethrough shirts to rayon blazers.

Frankie Norton, a Junior, sporting the popular Kings Jacket and Addidas shoes while turning in the attendance folder.

Two Sophomores, Cleo Bertelsen and Amy Armstrong, express themselves by wearing humanitarian messages on T-shirts and 60's style clothing.

THE DAY IS DONE

Students are often seen trying to get out of class during the school day, and avoiding much contact with their teachers. Although this is not always the case many just plain see it that way.

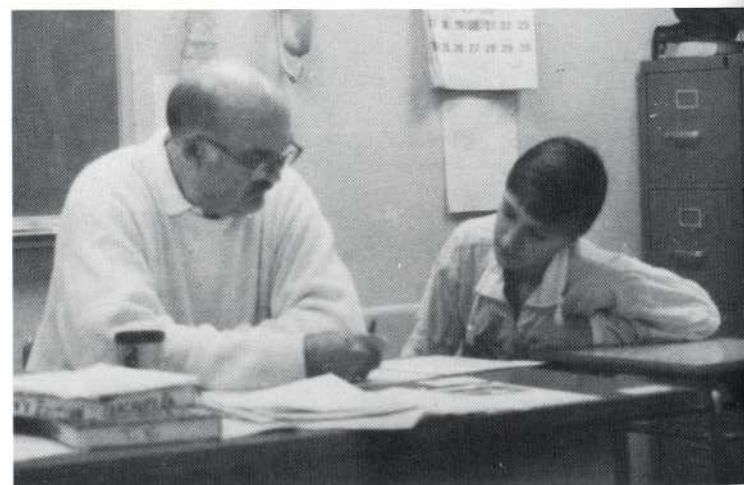

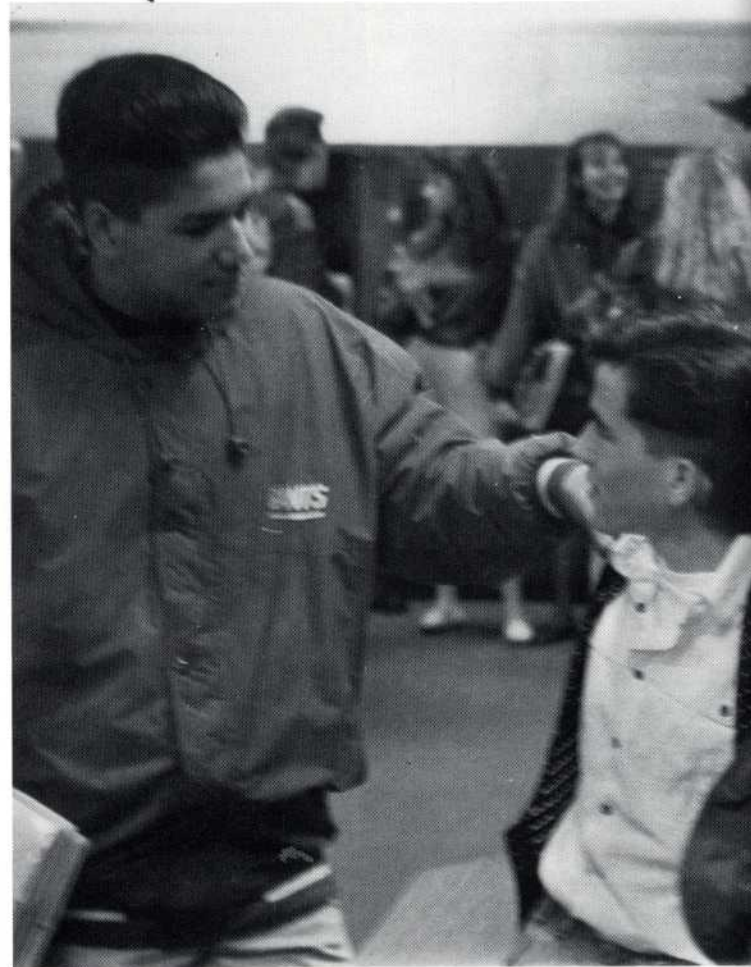

"Good" students are those that go to class, answer questions, do their home-work, and pass all of their tests. "Bad" students attend class (sometimes), make humorous comments about the teacher, interrupt the class, and flunk most of the tests. This is the stereo-type of students that attend high school.

Timberline students don't exactly fit those particular molds. A great deal of many students that attending THS are ones that take education seriously and also wish to have fun and enjoy their high school experience. For this reason study groups pop up here and there, these groups are usually are comprised of friends and classmates. After the study groups have finished buisness they turn to rest and relaxation which intern releaves the stresses of high school.

The stereo types mentioned above fit in some parts of THS society but for the large part it doesn't begin to deal with the wide range of students. Studying and relaxing with friends is one important aspect of high school life that can't be overlooked.

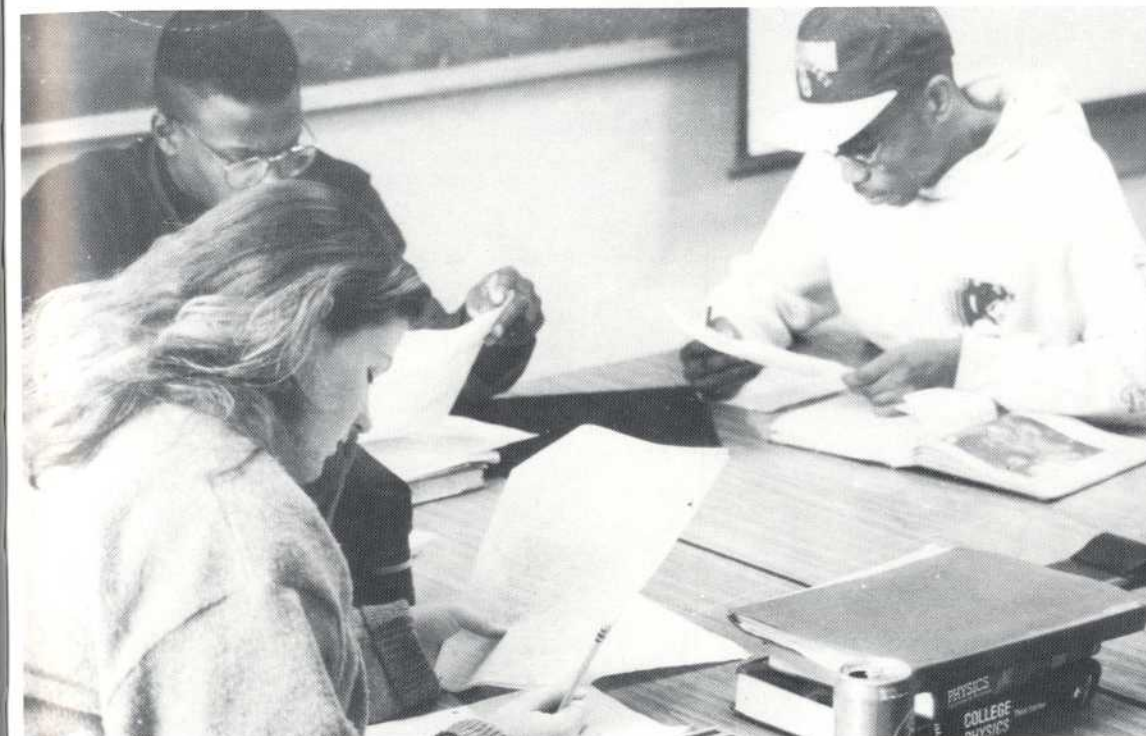

Nate Andreas and Chris Jobe converse about their next activity.

Eric Souther recieves help from Mr. Kycek on a difficult test problem.

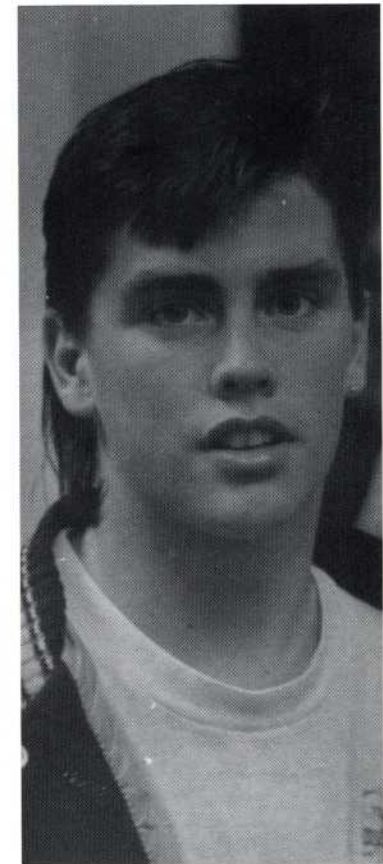

Trinity Pilkington goes over his work before turning it in.

In one of many late hour sessions, Allison Everett, Cecil Odom, and Anson Ross make sure they understand the question before they move on.

Not surprised by the camera John Hayes, waits for the excitement to comence in the upper commons.

Carlose Gonzalaz and Sothany Sok study for a make up government test after school.

Preparing to video tape the after school rush, Casey Riggle uses his size as an advantage.

Gary Sutton and Erik Martin agree that what makes their friendship unique is they are a lot alike, but also say that opposites attract.

Teresa Kelly and Annette Edwards believe their friendship is so strong because they live together, work together, and always seem to date best friends, and have a strong trust between them.

Karyn Emerson, Nicole Felts, Christine Strope, Courtney Bertsch, Shannon Yonker, and Melanie Prather believe their friendship is so unique because they have been friends so long and can allow themselves to expand beyond each other, but know they will always be accepted and understood by their extra special friends.

Erik Naranen and Dan Huttman disagree on just about everything. They say arguments strengthen their friendship.

CAIRN

When some Timberline students were asked for their definition of CAIRN, the following creative responses were given..

Mr. Clark: Logger word that means, "Look out for falling trees!"

Xuan Vo: Caring for one another and placing it in one book to share and remember it with others.

Zach Duvall: They care for the school.

Charissa Allen: Some lady who was important to the school.

Russel Byrd: Caring for one another.

Mr. Walker: A forestry term used to describe a certain area in the trees where the soccer fields are now.

Chris Weston-Smart: In memory of the first person that came to this school.

Karyn Emerson: It reminds me of my name because it sounds the same.

Kelly Johnson: Has to do with the trees and the school's surroundings.

Kevin Schrock: Something where things are kept.

Jolene Dey: Pictures on the wall from way back when.

Matt Hopkins: Caring about someone.

Todd Garrett: A memorial.

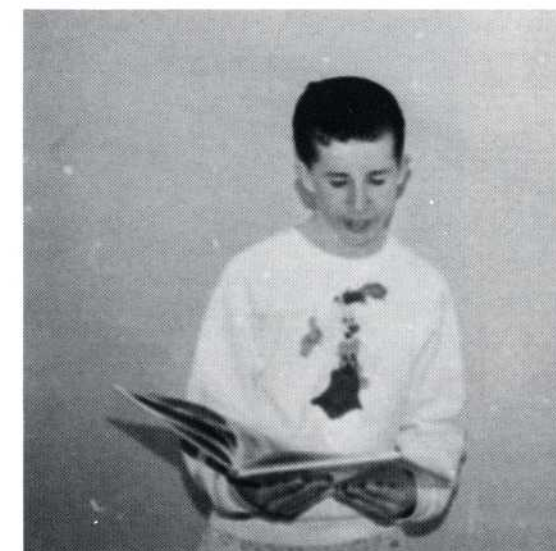

Wes Wezenberg: Memories!

Amanda Schmilski: A scroll.

Marcus Hubley: Caring for the future.

Adam Seig: Publisher's name.

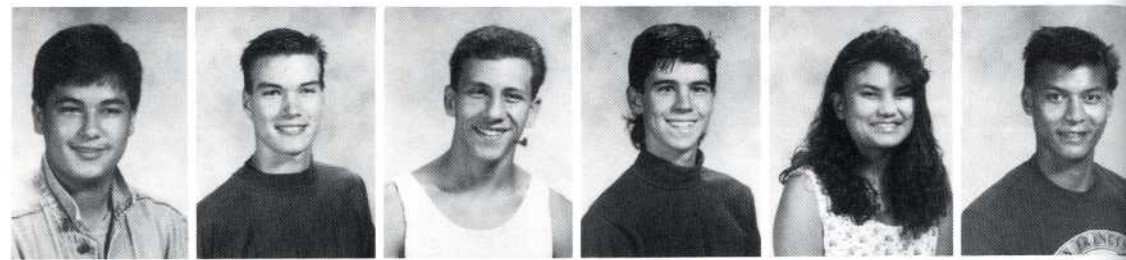

...The actual meaning of CAIRN, relating to the Blazerman, is "A pile of stones used as a landmark or trail marker for explorers or hikers."

Sheridan McGarry thinks the definition of CAIRN has something to do with Timberline being the best school ever.

Memories are things that will always be with us. Through all of our experiences as young adults those little things that used to mean so much to us will always be there. Here are some special moments that Timberline students remember from their childhoods.

I remember my eighth Christmas. That morning when I walked out into the living room, I saw many wonderful gifts from Santa Claus for my sister and I. The present I really wanted wasn't out there, but there was a note saying, "Dear Elishia, my elves haven't finished making one last gift, so as soon as it is finished, I will bring it by. Love, Santa". I was so excited. Then, finally two weeks later I walked out into the living room, and there was my little xylophone that I had been waiting for.
- Elishia Wall

My Mother had always made sure that I knew how to use the telephone in case of an emergency. Well, one night after I had gone to bed, I woke up thirsty. I called out to my Mom thinking she would come and bring me something to drink. When she didn't answer, I roamed all over the house looking for her. By now, my sister and I were crying. I reached up and grabbed the phone. I could barely see the numbers because I was so small. I called the neighbor down the block. She got dressed and hurried over to find my Mom and Dad sitting outside on the porch listening to music and enjoying the fresh air. Talk about embarrassing, I had almost called the cops. Imagine trying to explain that one.
- Kristine Schilling

I was in the kitchen at my Grandma's house playing with a large Army smokebomb. Somehow it went off. I ran outside while everyone else was inside trying to figure out what was going on. The dogs got loose, and I was trying to catch them when a man drove up and asked if my house was on fire. The kitchen was red and there was a small hole in the floor where the bomb landed. Thankfully, the insurance covered everything.
- Julius Etumai

When I was in kindergarten, I would walk to school with my friends. We always walk by a hill where a schmucky preschooler would stand and scream insults and throw rocks at us. One day I got tired of this kid and decided to give him a taste of his own medicine. So, I yelled back and started throwing rocks at him, because I was in kindergarten and he was just in preschool. He got mad and picked up a boulder. I dared him to throw it, he threw it and I didn't duck. Instead of going home I went all the way to school and called my Mom to come and get me. We went to the hospital and I got stitches. Now I have a nice scar on my forehead.
- Kelly Hembree

When I was about nine, my cousin and I were walking along a hill in the snow at my grandma's. We were so involved with what we were talking about that we didn't notice we were walking on a snow drift. All of a sudden we fell in up to our shoulders. Someone had to come and pull us out. When they did, our snowpants and boots stayed in the snow.
- Amy Cline

When I was a kid, about the age of eight. I used to drive my little red wagon down our very steep driveway trying to accomplish a new land speed record. I saw the neighborlady walking towards our house to ask for some sugar, so I decided to fake a tragic accident. I tipped my wagon upside down, and layed on the driveway as if I was unconscious. The neighborlady saw me, went into hysterics, and ran into my house yelling for my Mom. I got up, confused about what I had done, and ran after her. When my Mom and the neighborlady saw that I had been kidding, I got a lecture and was sent to my room. I thought it was just a simple childhood prank.
- Matt French

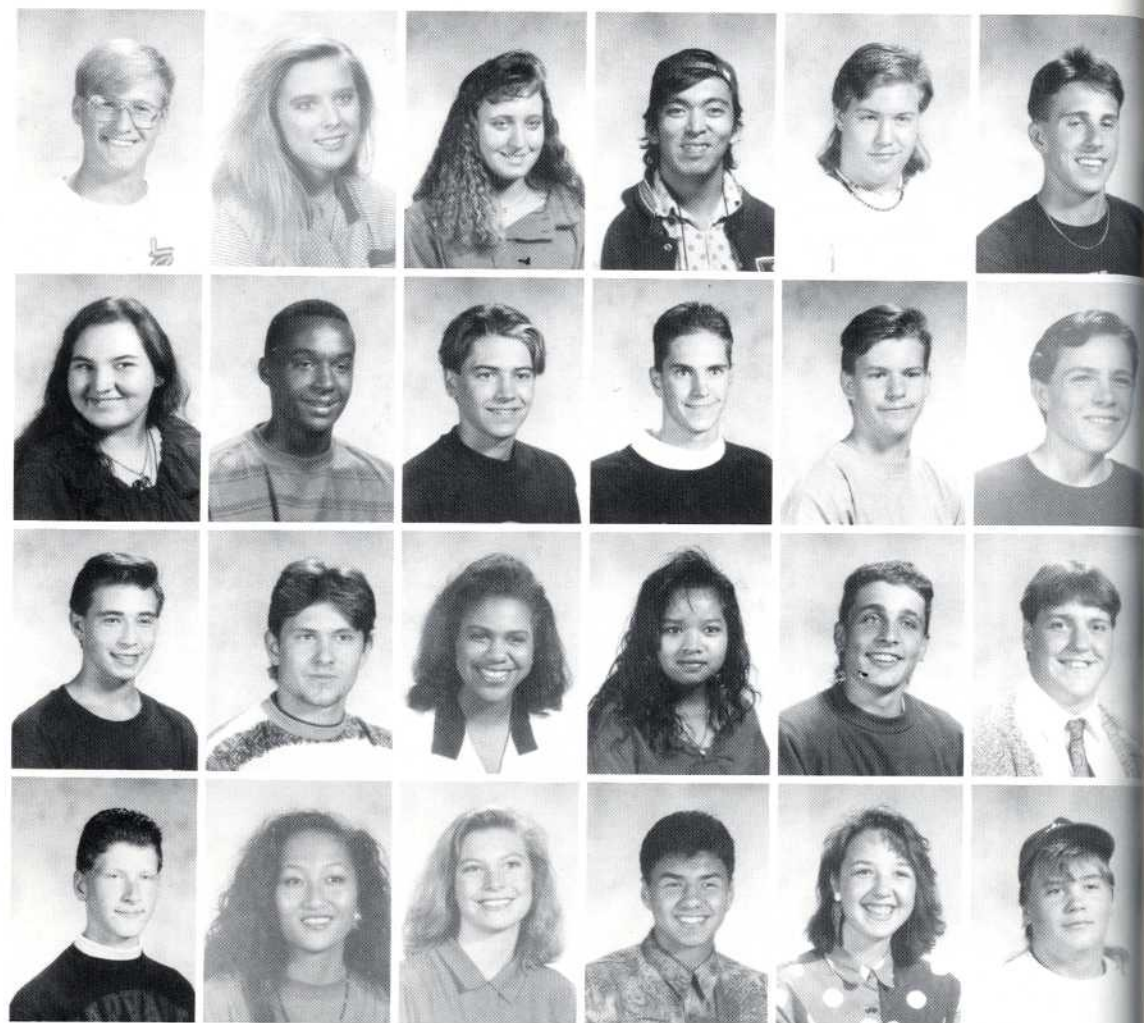

I was about three years old, and my Mother was standing under a tree looking up into the branches. When I came outside and saw a snake coiled by her legs, I asked her what she was doing with it there because I couldn't understand it. She screamed and ran inside, and I stood there and watched it slither away.

Environment

The environment has been a concern to many people across the world. Many people have been getting together to try and save our world from falling apart. Some Timberline students have been coming together to demonstrate their concern.

The Environmental Club was a new club in school, it helped club members become environmentally aware. Mr. Compton was the advisor and Allison Uuereb was leading the club with such things as having guest speakers come in to spread their knowledge. She wanted to get the rest of Timberline environmentally aware and inspire the idea of recycling.

Mr. Sloan, the natural resources teacher, was the leader of recycling paper at Timberline. Last year he brought students together from the FFA Club to put recycling boxes in classes. Their goal was to get teachers to participate in recycling twenty minutes a week. This year teachers that are willing to bring their boxes to the storage area are participating in recycling paper. Mr. Sloan felt that there were appropriate and inappropriate uses for the environment. He encourages people to recycle at home because it is very simple. At this time, we are only recycling five percent of the paper we use. When you recycle two aluminum cans you save twelve ounces of the gasoline it takes to make the can.

Mr. Kimmeldorf was the advisor of the Red Hearts. It was a group of students at Timberline who have come together to collect aluminum cans for recycling at the school. The first time they collected their money they took it to Exceptional Foresters Incorporated, which employs handicapped people. Daalon Bryant, president, organized making a cake, but they found that they didn't have enough money for it, but one of the parents donated the rest of the money. They were able to purchase the cake and they took it to Bread and Roses House of Hospitality. They later were asked by the head of the Bread and Roses to make another visit and get involved in more activities. The Red Hearts came up with the idea to do a type of big brother or sister organization with the kids at Bread and Roses, which they are going to spend their own money on. They collected the cans in the upper and lower commons, teachers lounge and the print shop. They take them to the custodian and they bend them at the end of the week. If they have enough cans they take them to All Star Recycling. They feel that the environment should be something that needs to be taken care of by the people that live in it, and "pollution is not the solution". Landfills are filling up fast and incinerators create air pollution and piles of toxic ash. Recycling creates few things to throw away and this would lessen our disposal of garbage. We could be taking care of the environment by efforts, such as recycling.

All in the Family

How would you feel if you had to put up with your brother or sister not only at home, but at school too? Well, for many Timberline students it's an everyday thing. The majority of the people we talked to didn't seem to mind, but others did. Nicole Felts says, "When I was a freshman and my sister was a junior I liked it because she helped me out and showed me around the school." Although not all of us will approve of our little brothers or sisters attending school with us, if it happens to you, you'll just have to live with it.

Kirstin, Heather, and Erika Smith have a special sisterly love.

Brett and John Hayes have a quite unique way of showing they truly care.

Sara and Shaelyn Abshear have a close and caring relationship.

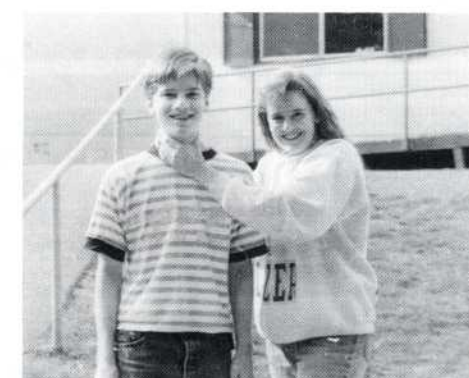

Dan and Maiké Huttman show a special respect for one another.

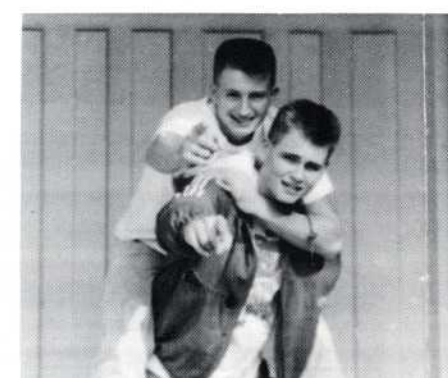

Jannelle and Todd Anderson show a loving attitude towards each other.

Dayna and Brooke Knapp are two of the many sisters that attend Timberline.

Adrianne and Kyle Martin have an understanding between them.

Wes and Nick Wezenberg have a unique brotherly love.

AIDS. Is it worth it?

For many years, the Aids, (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome), virus has been one of the most serious diseases in the world. It has been featured in newspapers, magazines, pamphlets, books, and television to make the public aware of the dangers of this disease. Aids is the most severe final stage of infection of the HIV virus. It destroys your immune system, so it doesn't function normally by warding off bacteria and viruses.

There are specific ways in which a person can contract the HIV and the Aids virus. Some of these examples are: sharing hypodermic needles with infected people, having unprotected intercourse with an infected partner, (heterosexual or homosexual), having many sexual partners, having oral sex with and infected person, when an infected person's blood comes in contact with your blood, and more. Some of the symptoms include: swollen glands in the armpit, neck, or groin; night sweats; loss of appetite; leg weakness; continuous and unexplained diarrhea; unusual blemishes or white spots in the mouth; persistent dry coughing; etc.

One of the well known people today who has contracted the HIV virus is Earvin "Magic" Johnson. To some people, he has become a hero due to his announcement of retirement of the Los Angeles Lakers because of the disease he has contracted. "Before Magic Johnson had it, I thought Aids was something that only homosexuals were associated with but now I know anybody can get it," said Kevin Trotter. So he has also tried and is still trying to educate people about Aids and that anyone can get it.

We asked a couple of important questions to students of Timberline High School. One of them was: How do you feel about students having AIDS in your school?

"I don't have a problem with it, because I know how AIDS is transmitted. Being at the same school is not that much of a risk. I also believe that everyone has a right to an education I don't believe that one should be discriminated by the fact that they have AIDS or for any other reason." - Dawn Lee.

"I think students with AIDS should be allowed in school, but they should take the proper precautions to ensure that they are not endangering the other students." - Anonymous.

Timberline Patrol

At the beginning of this year the students of Timberline High School were introduced to the new Campus Security person named Mr. Ennis, who soon became known as "Big John" because of his size. For a while he was the talk of the school, so even though he left, we decided to ask some students and teachers on what they thought of his influence at Timberline this year.

-They have to put up with a lot of crap from the students but they still do a good job.

-James Lubitz

-It's a joke! If they get to know who you are they don't even ask you for a pass.

-Jake Jackson

-I think it's pretty bad that you can't trust the students to go where they say they're going. Teachers should have a little trust in the students and students shouldn't take advantage of that trust.

-k.s.

-They're just doing their job, and I think they are doing a good job.

-Tyler Delane

After getting a few quotes from students we decided to find out what the teachers thought. We asked the teachers if they thought "Big John" and Mrs. Douglass were doing their job and if the hall passes were necessary and if they worked. Here's what they had to say.

-Yes, I think they are doing their job, there are less students wandering the halls and the campus under more control since they were a team. They are doing a great job.

-Mr. Christopherson

-I like that they are enforcing the rules like they are written and I hate hall passes.

-Mr. MacRobert

-I think they are the best thing since slice bread! As for the passes I think they work except I keep losing them, as far as them being necessary it controls a little of the chaos.

-Mr. Atwell

-I like what he has done. He has brought some assemblance of order to Timberline. Yes they are necessary and probably 70% effective.

-Mr. Bennett

-Yes. They treat their unpleasant jobs with humanity and yes I like the Hall passes. Their effectiveness depends on how teachers use them.

-Mrs. Livesay

Ms. Douglas escorts students around campus, at Saturday school, in punishment for various crimes.

What are the advantages and the disadvantages of being tall?

Angie Emmett: "The advantage of being tall would have to be because of sports and you can eat more food because it evens out. And the disadvantages are that you have to find a tall date and you can't wear heels to the dances."

Lisa Pieper: "I can't think of any advantages. A disadvantage is that you have to look for a tall boyfriend."

Jason Gould: "It's easier to look for people that are at the opposite ends of the hallways, and underclassmen have to look up to you. The disadvantages are because a couple of times I've almost stepped on people who were very short, and you can't buy small inexpensive cars."

Nia Booth: "I get to look over everyone and I don't get picked on by a lot of people. You also always look older than you really are. It's hard though, because all the guys are short and when you sit on a bus, your legs are too long."

shooooort???

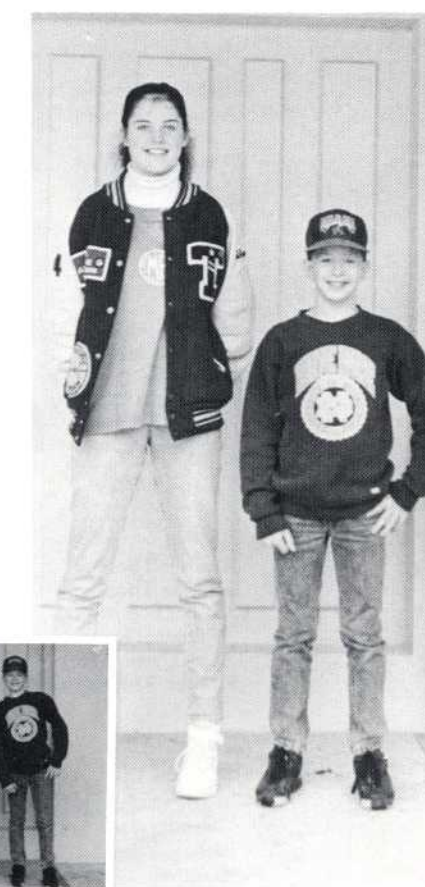

What are the advantages and the disadvantages of being short?

Heather Wood: "I think advantages is that you can run faster and you can see lower things better. A disadvantage is that it's hard to kiss your boyfriend if he's tall."

Eric Buholm: "I like being short because the women are more your height, but people don't respect you as much when you're short."

Courtney Bertsch: "When you're short, people defend you more and you'll never have to worry about hitting your head while walking through a door. But I also get teased, overlooked, clothes are very hard to find, and people always pick me up and throw me over their shoulder."

Erin Edwards: "You don't have to look for a specific size date, and some clothes are easier to find. But I like to play sports and sometimes my size gets in the way, and I also get picked on."

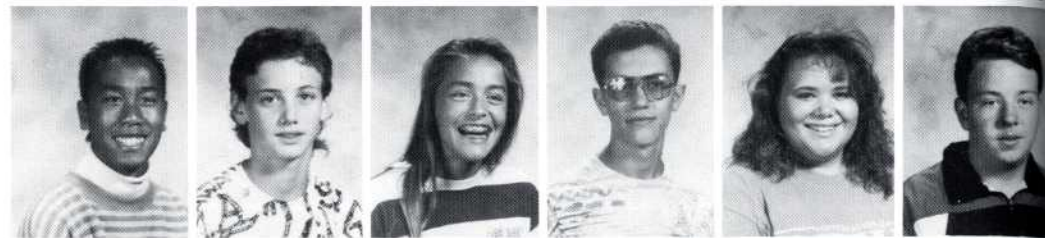

Tall Shannon MacCormac and short Casey Riggle aren't ashamed of their height either.

NICHOLAS RETIRES

Timberline High School will be losing its principal of sixteen years. Gene Nicholas will be retiring from the district at the end of the 91-92 school year. He began his stay in the North Thurston School district in 1976. Over the years, Gene Nicholas has earned the respect of students, parents, and fellow faculty members past and present. His contribution to the students of T.H.S. has been very much appreciated. As students will be leaving and going off in their own directions, he too has decided to go on also. As the principal he had the opportunity to work seriously and joke with the students as shone with Mike Barker at bottom.

He was a very nice man and was always open to answer any question that anyone may have had.

Alison Uuereb 92

He's Pretty cool. He never gave me any trouble. He was respected by alot of people.

Bruce Bowers 92

BORN TO BE BLAZERS

When you see those little kindergarteners around on campus, does it ever make you reminisce? Well, for eleven of Timberline's freshmen, it really does. The first kindergarten class ever held here at Timberline was nine years ago. They did have older then, and Heather Mehan says, "It seems like we got more respect then than we do now." Since 1983, Timberline has definitely grown in number. Courtney Stewart says, "Yeah, the size has changed and it seems more cluttered." But to Brian Bruya it hasn't changed in size, he has, "I can see over the fence now," he replies. When we asked the group how it felt coming back to the place they began their school career, Troy Hutnik replied, "It was like a blast from the past, but I felt like family."

Some of the kids are not pictured in the recent shot because they did not return to Timberline. They are in same order as above.

KNOWLEDGE IS THE KEY TO SUCCESS

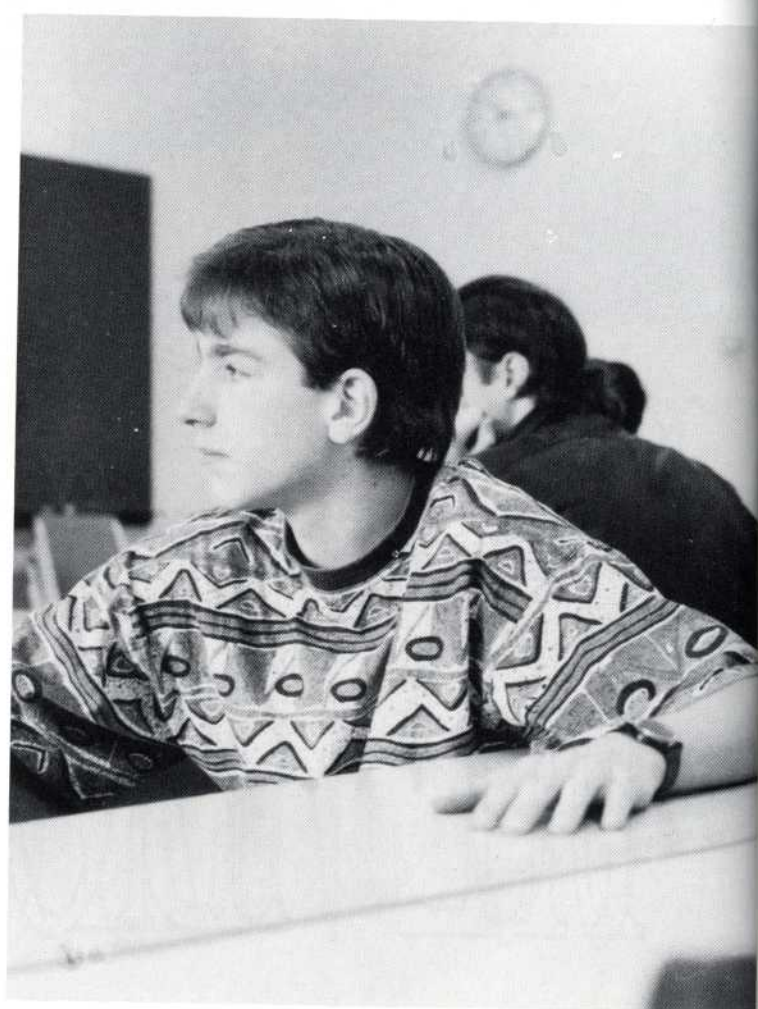

Each Wednesday during activity period, students who enjoyed trivia went to a club called Knowledge Bowl. Here they were split into teams and quizzed on all subjects ranging from music to history. Without knowing what the questions would be, the students had to have a broad knowledge of all subjects to do well. James Clark said, "You just need to have a broad mind, I guess, and watch Jeopardy."

On Saturdays, the team attended competitions. They spent about 4 or 5 hours competing with other high schools. The competitions consisted of written tests which required team work and strategy in order to answer as many questions possible in the limited amount of time. There were also oral quizzes which required quick-thinking. Even though this club sounds very competitive, the students agreed that the Knowledge Bowl was just fun.

IN SEARCH OF EXCELLENCE

The Honor Society is a club designed to recognize scholarship and leadership. To be accepted in Honor Society, one must enter an application and write an essay about a Confucius quote on change. The members must have at least a GPA of 3.5.

The members organized Senior Honors Night and put on the Teacher of the Year Essay. They also encouraged students to submit their poetry, artwork, and short stories to the literary magazine which they produced. They also took a trip to Ashland, Oregon to take part in the Shakespearean Festival.

Sherrie Neaman said, "I thought it would be a really good learning experience and I wanted to get more involved in things. First of all it looks really good on college and scholarship applications and second of all it was just something really fun that I've been working to achieve all my life."

As an Honor Society member, Amber Nadolny takes notes diligently, during World at War, in order to keep up her grades.

BEHIND THE SCENES

The Blazer Broadcast system, better known as BBS, addresses important issues that effect the lives of the Timberline student body. The things they cover are shown on Channel 31. They also produce the video annual.

Some of the tasks carried out are choosing what is to be covered, filming, and editing. The students enjoy the freedom they have being able to roam around school filming things. One thing they don't like is the stress caused by deadlines. Britt Wusterbarth enjoys, "The opportunity to learn how to use and work with technical equipment." Tre Willis enjoys, "Working with cameras."

Most of the students joined the class because they saw BBS at work and thought they would like to be a part of it. They're happy with their decision and feel that they are learning important things.

Stop the Presses!

When "The Blazer" comes out and you read it to read it to get rid of that sixth period boredom, does the thought ever cross your mind that a group of students went through a lot of stress and hard work to put it together?

Some of the Different things they do are take and print pictures, interview people, write copy, think up captions, and draw artwork, all under the pressure of a deadline.

Does the thought of hundreds of students reading their work make them uneasy? When asked how he felt about it. Bryan Williams said, "I don't think about it." Jennifer Murray said, "It makes me nervous sometimes."

Now why would a person want to deal with all this? Probably because they like what they do and the people they work with. Overall, the staffers seem to agree that all the work they put in is worth it.

Third Row: Linda Rector, LaRond Baker, Jani McFarland.

Using the chalkboard, Jason Bush explains the correct way to perform a jumpshot. This was part of his teaching practice before going into an actual classroom.

Teachers: The Next Generation

After seeing the kind of torture you put your teachers through, would you ever consider being a teacher? Well, there are some students in a class called Teacher Academy who would. These devoted seniors must have at least a 2.0 grade average and a good attendance record.

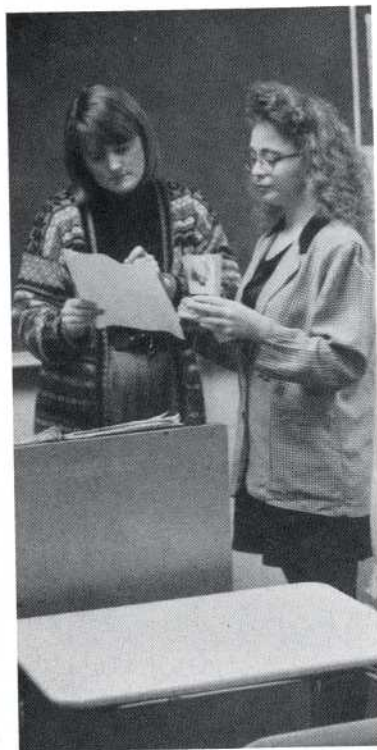

The class helps students learn teaching and communication skills. The students even have a chance to go to an elementary, middle, or high school and work with a teacher by tutoring, being the teacher's aid, and getting a chance to teach.

Why do they want to be teachers? Linda Rector says, "I want to be a teacher because I enjoy helping people and it's a way I can help make the world a better place." Kristine Schilling says, "I've always been real interested in children and teaching is the best way to build a future."

Seniors Misti Chastain and Jennifer Coate practice their teaching skills in front of the Teacher Academy class.

Mike Green, Kristine Schilling, and Paul Boros read along while the rest of their group reads their parts during first period.

Ms. Hunter explains to Marcy Nolte that she needs to paraphrase and not just read the play.

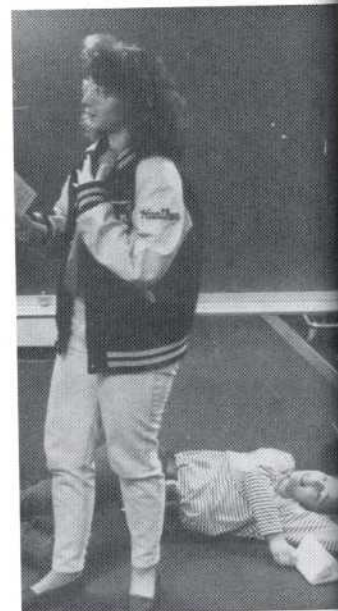

Literature: The Shakespearean Way

If you didn't know anything about the works of Shakespeare maybe you should have tried taking a class called Shakespeare. The students in this class read aloud and acted out scenes from Shakespearean plays.

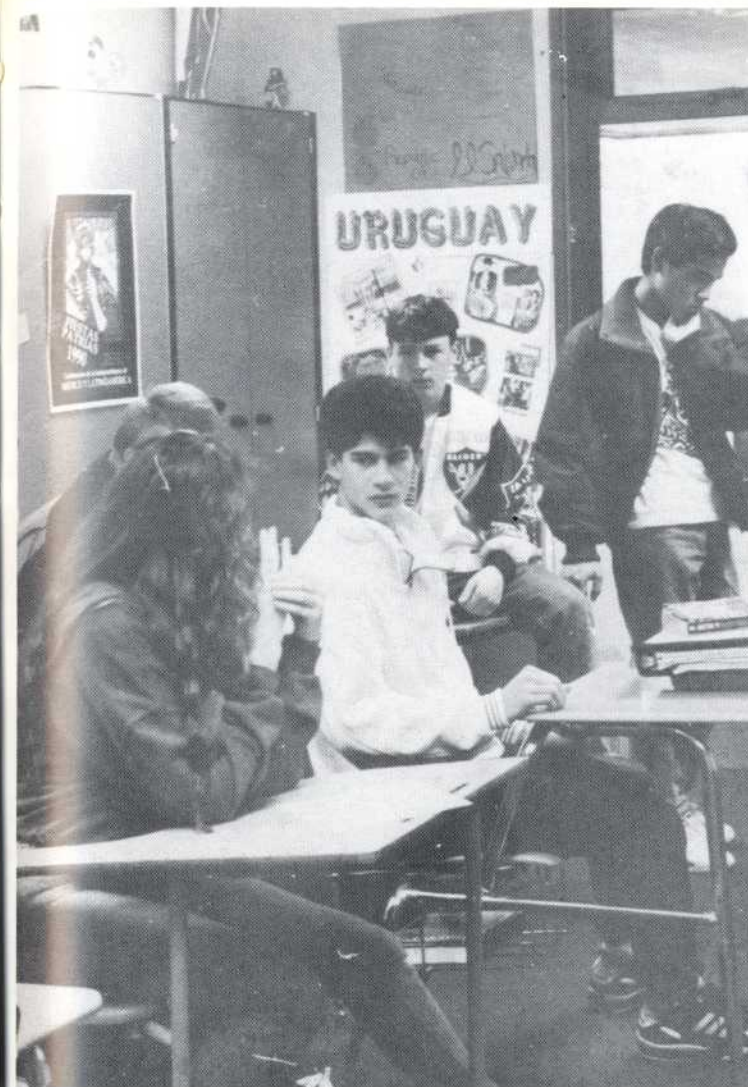

The Shakespearean language made understanding it difficult, but these students learned the meaning of what they read.

Tino Simon took the class because, "I was very interested in Shakespeare."

Andria Neilson said, "I was a little interested in Shakespeare and I needed another English credit." Kristine Schilling said, "It's a very interesting class and I like to learn the language."

Heather McMahon and Elizabeth Patnode act out their parts in Act III of Hamlet.

SPEAK UP

Every year, some brave students sign up for a club called Debate. This club was mostly designed to teach students how to feel confident about themselves while speaking in front of a class or large groups of people, while learning about different topics. This club competed against other schools by discussing current issues, literature, or art.

The students used different types of speaking. These ranged from Editorial Commentary to Humorous Interpretation. Editorial Commentary is a speech that is 1 minute and 45 seconds to 2 minutes long and read from a seated position. Humorous Interpretation is no longer than 8 minutes and 30 seconds and is memorized. This type of speech can be about poetry, prose, drama, radio, T.V., or recording and is supposed to be humorous.

Getting used to speaking in front of people has lots of benefits. Jessica Todorovich said, "It's going to help me with job interviews, writing papers, and college." Jeff Deickman said, "It's going to help me to speak well in law."

Hansel Pham looks over the worksheet with information the students need to know for their next competition.

Mrs. Miller gives Brian Schmidkofer some pointers while Josh Villagomez listens.

During Physics class, Trinity Pilkington got to experiment with the Van de Graff to make his hair stand up.

Juniors Matt Stanley and Molly Cecil pointed out the facts while lecturing the A.P. History class.

Knowing The Facts!

For students who excelled in academics and enjoyed a challenge there was an opportunity to take advanced classes. Some of these classes were Advanced Placement Biology, Advanced Placement Literature and History, Advanced Placement English, and Physics.

Advanced Placement Literature and History was a block that lasted for two periods. The students read, discussed what they read, and wrote essays about it. Advanced Placement English consisted of hard studying and a lot of reading.

However, with an Advanced Placement class came a lot of homework which led to stress for many of the students. Amy Cline said, "My favorite thing about it is all my friends are in there and they understand when you're really stressed out."

Physics and Advanced Placement Biology offered a higher level of learning for students interested in science. In Physics the students spent time doing labs, taking notes, and working out equations. In Advanced Placement Biology they worked with fruit flies and dissected cats. The class also included a lot of independent study.

Sarah Godlewski said, "I took this class because I want to be a veterinarian and I need as many science classes as I can get. I want to major in science."

Working Together as a Team!

At Timberline we had an excellent team. For dedicated students who excelled in academics, there was a group who met twice a week after school called Academic Decathlon. This activity offered an elective credit to those who joined. Of course it wasn't just all fun and games.

During competitions the members did written tests, super quizzes, oral quizzes, speeches, interviews, and essays. The different areas they competed in were: economics, math, science, language and literature, fine arts, and social sciences.

The material covered was material covered in school. Everyone competed in different GPA categories, so it was not too competitive. The Timberline Academic Decathlon usually rates at least 3rd in the state.

Concentrating hard and trying to ease out some of the pressure during a test is Kenneth Mungle.

THE CREATORS OF THE CAIRN

A day in the life of an annual student is very hard to define as "fun". It could be most thoroughly described as chaotic. Daily responsibilities encompass a wide range of activities which include printing pictures, sizing layouts, editing copy and getting interviews, to name a few. Deadlines had a way of sneaking up on people and these times were definitely not fun times. Panic would overcome most desperately busy annual students, and drastic measures had to be enforced, causing them to be quite unpleasant. The amount of stress was increased this year because this was the first year that the yearbook was done by using desktop publishing. Senior Courtney Bertsch commented, "The new system takes longer and requires more patience." However, as the year rolled along, hard work and efforts payed off, and layouts were completed quicker. Editor in chief, Dayna Knapp said, "there was a lot of stress involved due to the fact that I had to criticize and reprimand my friends." Amazingly, they have all remained friends, (and sane), and are proud of the final product. They did it!

Annual Editor in chief, Dayna Knapp, takes on a usual busy day's work.

Mr. Lehnis, although many times bewildered with concerns of the Annual staff, always tried to give insightful advice to his students.

Various Annual students work in their own styles to progressively get their layouts done.

GREASERS

Each day, students who were interested in cars, spent a period working with and learning about them in a class called Auto Tech. The students learned to identify the parts of the cars and their functions so if a problem came up, they could fix it. They were also quizzed on the different parts quite often.

The students spent some time in the classroom and some time in the shop actually working with cars. They found the work challenging but not really difficult.

The main reason these students took this class was to help them in the future with their own cars. Kelly Hembree said, "I was interested in cars and I didn't want to be one of those females who would be stuck on the side of a country road with nobody around and didn't know what to do and I didn't want to rely on stupid men." Steve Dillworth said, "I like cars because I've been interested in them for years and I like the chance to get all greasy and do work."

Jason Cromwell and Mr. Simons work together to operate the classroom VCR.

While checking the car for problems, seniors Matt French and Bryon Dahl find a power-steering leak.

During sixth period Auto Tech, Kelly Hembree waits patiently to be tested.

In the Auto Tech classroom, Nick Wezenburg listens while Mr. Simons asks questions for a routine oral quiz.

Mr. Simons teaches Nick Wezenburg, Mike McCaslin, and David Smith the parts of the brakes.

Better Than Bookwork?

Western Civilizations is a required class that presents history in a different way. Along with taking lecture notes and tests, the students did projects. How many projects they did and how well they did on them determined their grade.

Naturally, the students had mixed opinions about the grading system. Stacey Baldwin said, "I'd rather have the teacher tell us what to do because then you know what to do." Tina Casey said, "I like choosing them." Jamie Stuart said, "I don't like the grading system because you have to work too hard to get a C." Bryan Santos said, "It takes too long to do assignments and we don't get enough time."

One of the project choices was attending the Roman Banquet. The students had the opportunity to sample Roman food that was prepared by classmates and to dress like Romans. Michelle Brown says she liked the banquet because, "I like dressing up."

All dressed up like a woman from ancient Rome, Kim Burman tries an ancient Rome recipe.

Kerry Cromwell, Jody Knopp, and Cameo Chatwood enjoy the ancient Rome atmosphere and food in the Timberline cafeteria.

Heather Wood and Ryan Hanscom sit and watch other groups at the banquet while enjoying their own recipes.

Since Traffic Safety is mostly independent study, Jeremy Dunn uses his time by working on his homework.

BEHIND THE WHEEL

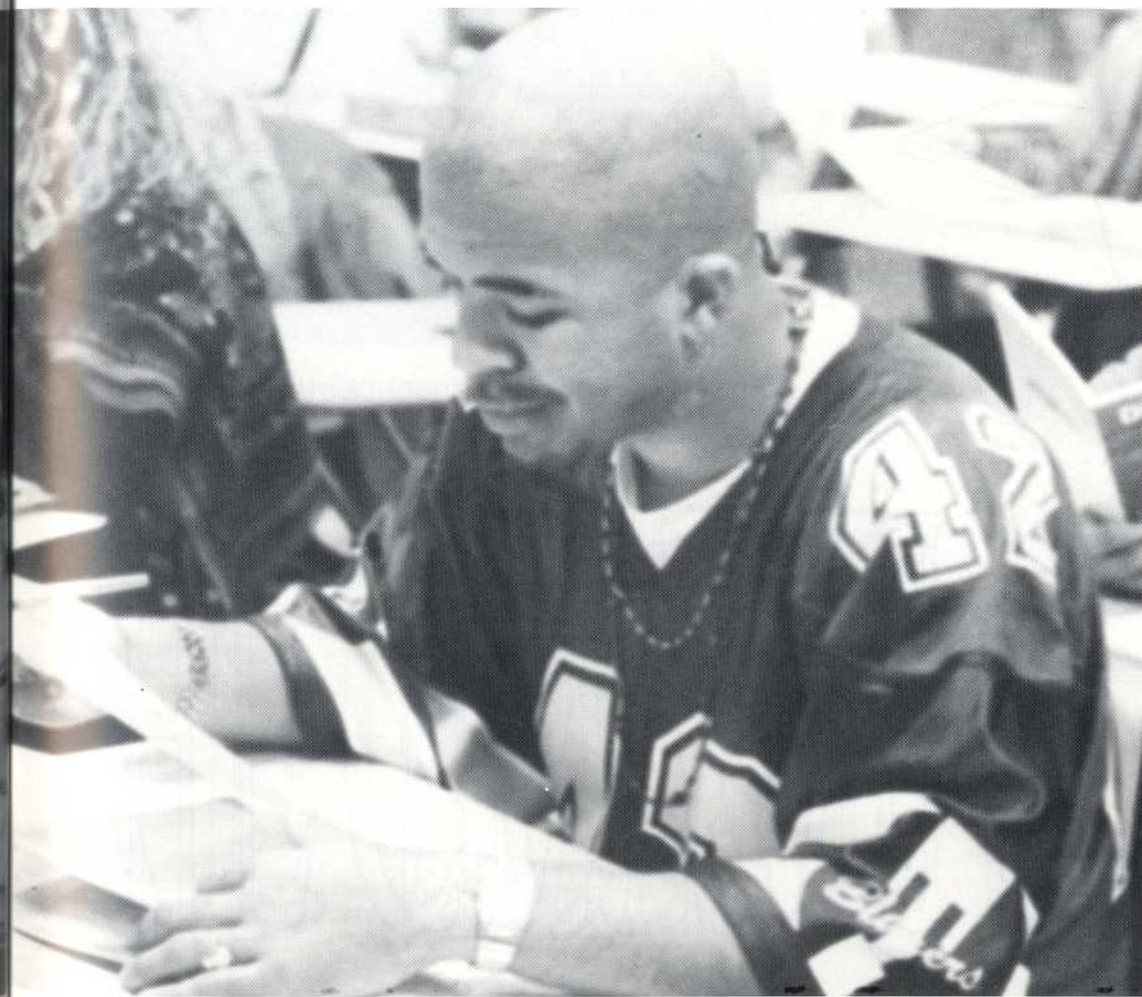

One of the most memorable experiences during high school is getting your driver's license.

Unfortunately, this year the price of Traffic Safety at Timberline went up. In a legislative session, they voted to no longer provide the school with 137 dollars per student, since Traffic Safety is not a part of basic education. The price went from 122 to 158 dollars. According to Mr. Fry, one of Timberline's Traffic Safety teachers, the rise in price, cut down on the number of students taking the class.

The majority of the students enjoy the class, but Rodney Keim says, "the work is too much." Jeremy Dunn says, "The work isn't hard, you gotta be kidding me."

Whether the work is hard or not, the majority of the students put in their best effort. As Mr. Fry says, "I think they take driving very seriously."

James Green concentrates on his homework during 6th period Traffic Safety.

JV'S ADAPT TO CHANGE

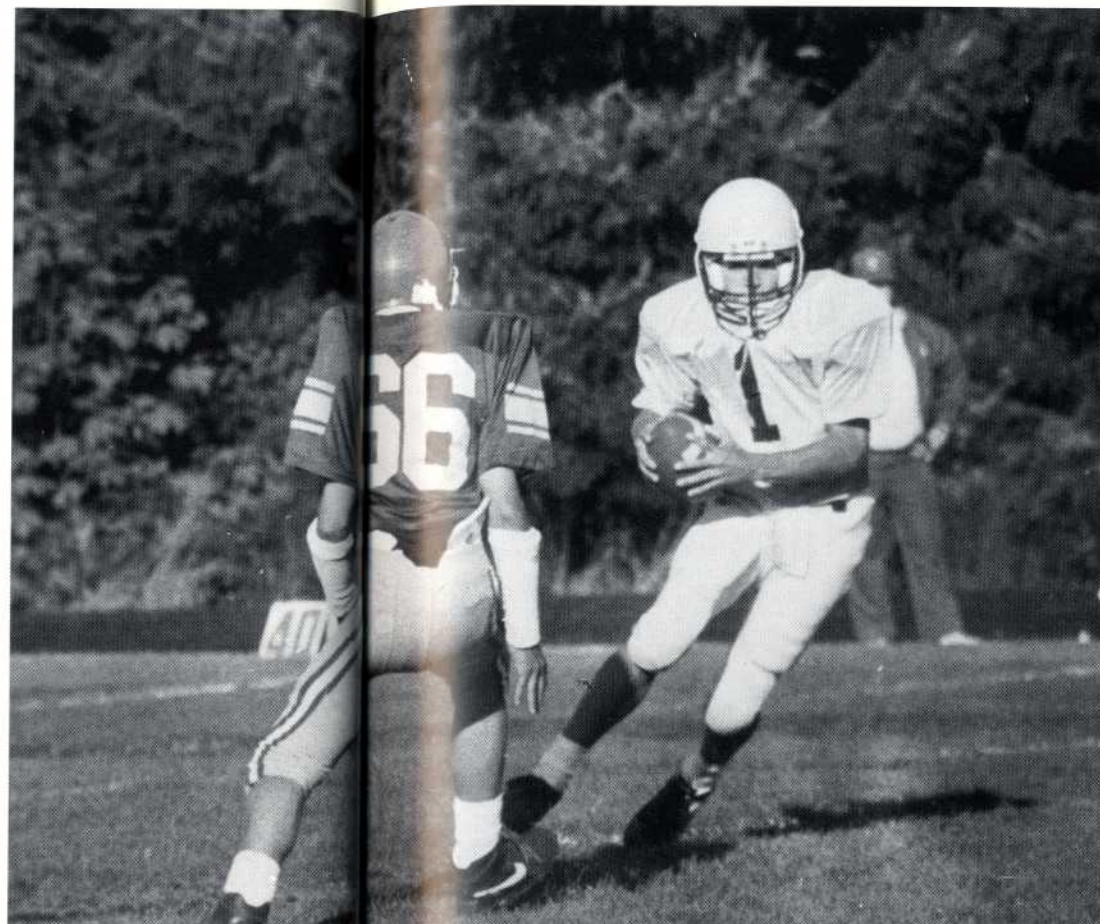

The JV's finished the season with a 4-3 record this year. Everyone had to adapt. Seven JV players were moved up to varsity in the course of the year, so they had to adapt to personnel changes. On offense Quarterbacks Tyler Delane and Skyler Markel were really putting the points on the board. Tyler had five touchdown passes and ran for five more, Skyler ran for six touchdowns. On defense the leading tackler was Jeremy Dunn and outstanding defensive tacklers were Leri Neri and Kevin Myers. Talk about interceptions and think of Kris Olson who had seven. With an improving freshman team coming up there will be much room for improvement next year.

The Freshman team had a great year winning four of their first five games and five of their eight total with one tie. They beat Wilson 14-0 to get them third place in league. As in years past the defense was a dominant force on the team. Scott Domingo dominated the line of scrimmage and mid-linebacker John Maynard was often seen around the ball making plays. On offense, quarterback Josh Helton showed great leadership and runningback Doug Frost was always making big plays averaging 8 yards per carry.

Inexperienced Gain Experience

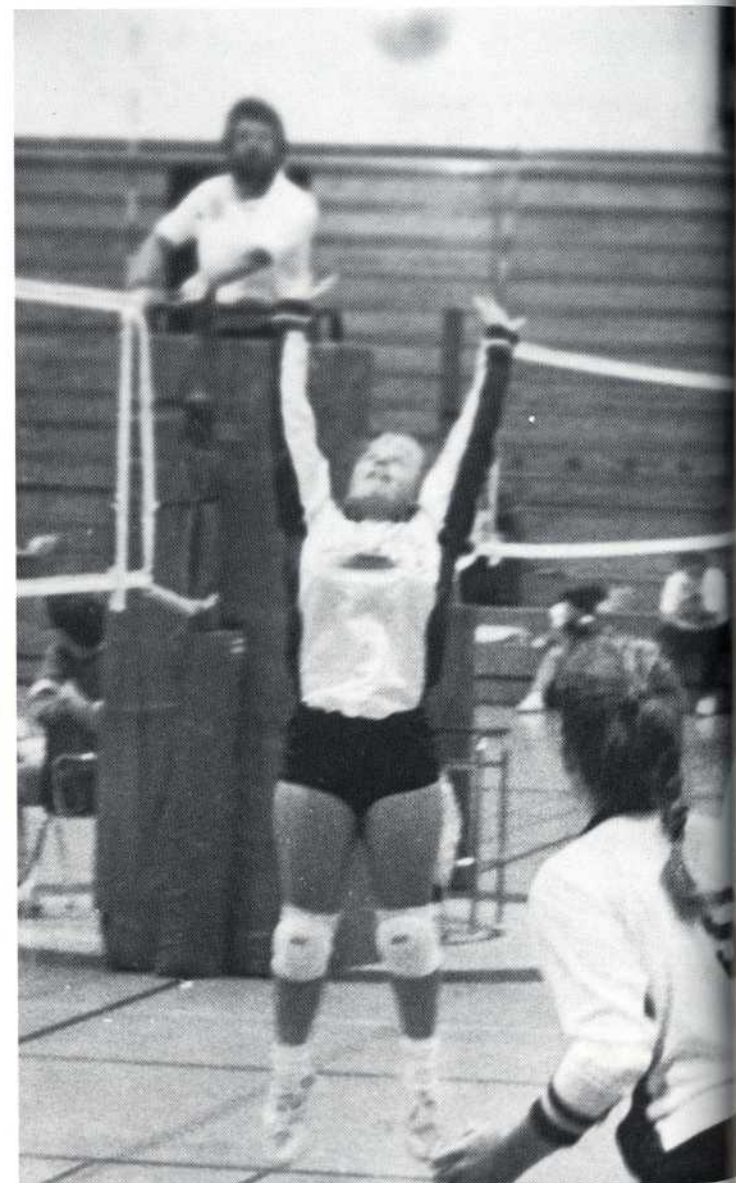

This year the girls varsity team played outstanding in some games and not so well in others. Due to the fact that some weren't committed enough the team didn't do as well as they would of liked. Coach Lingelbach says "The girls played well when they focused on the game but were usually distracted by other things like work and other matters." A player that stood out during the season was sophomore Shannon MacCormac. She played well close up to the net and was an all around defensive and offensive player. Good performances by Erin Edwards and Mindy Hulverson, the two junior starters will be an asset to the team next year.

Spiking their way to the TOP

The J.V. volleyball team had just about a perfect record. With an 11-2 record the team dominated most of their opponents that they went up against. They were a young team with raw athletic ability. Freshman Lashonda Christopher helped the team out with great abilities to score off spikes and blocks. Coach Olson says "The team worked as a unit. I'm gonna miss a lot of them since they'll be moved up to the varsity team next year, they were a great young group of kids and they should do good in the future."

Timberline C-team did excellent this year with a 13-1 record. Their only loss was to North Thurston. The C-team took 3rd place in a tournament along with many different schools. Shannon Doolittle was an outstanding server and worked well all around. Davina Davie received the most improved award. Gerylin Herrera had consistant winning serves. When the team was down Sabrina Lucas would try to keep the team pumped up for all the games. Sabrina Lucas says "We worked well as a team they were all great friends to me, I'll miss them all."

The Road To Success

Every day after school, a group of kids would head over to Lakes Elementary School carrying the only things that they needed to keep themselves occupied for the afternoon, their tennis raquets. The JV team ended the season with six wins, six losses and two ties. The team got several chances to get all of their players in the matches and had several matches that were close until the very end of the meet. With the experience this JV team gained by playing the way they did this year, they are preparing themselves for when they will take over the varsity ranks.

Extended Summer

Coach Frank Martinolich really didn't mind the nice weather at the beginning of the fall. The good conditions gave his players extra time to practice without having to worry about the weather every day of the week as normal. As for the Tennis players, they didn't mind either.

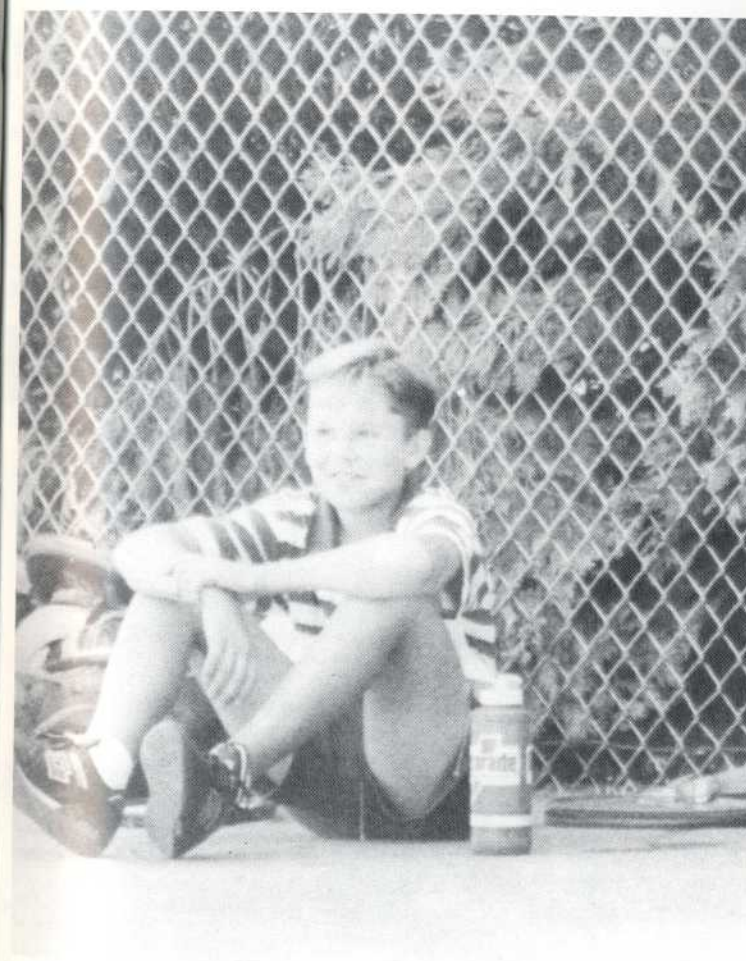

The matches were usually close and all team members were really competitive in their individual efforts.

Coach Martinolich noted that the team was very successful for the age deficit of the team against others in the league. The Blazers tennis team was a very young team in the Narrows league, but they kept their positive outlook on things during the matches. Of the 13 that lettered, they had several leaders including Brian Elliot, Kevin Bridenback, Pete Mirkovich and Bobby Lamie. Though ending the season with five wins and a middle of the league finish, it was a very successful season. The coach summarized the season by simply saying, "These guys were really competitive despite their age differences. I was proud of them."

The girls' soccer team had another great year boosting them to the top of the Narrows League again. This was their third straight year making it to the playoffs, second under the coaching of Rob Walker. Unfortunately, as in the years past, the ladies lost in the playoffs. Though pumped up for the game and ready to beat the defending state champions Sammamish, the blazers lost to them 3-0. Everybody contributed to the great 11-0-3 year. Leading the team in scoring again was Jody Dutra. She broke the one-hundred mark for her high school career. Senior Adrienne Martin also had an outstanding year offensively with 5 goals and 1 assist. Defensively for the Blazers, goalie T.C. Ellis had a great year only allowing 13 goals. Seniors for the team are Jody Dutra, Adrienne Martin, and Sara Tower. With only 3 seniors and 10 underclassmen the blazers have a great shot to rise to the top again.

Jody Dutra goes up for the ball, but in the process gets something she didn't expect from the opposition.

Lead by Seniors Jody Dutra and Sara Tower, the girls' soccer team goes through their pre-game warm-ups.

JV Girls Improve

The JV soccer team came a long way since its first game. They lost against Stadium 11-0 but finished the season with a big win against Wilson 7-3. When asked how the season went, coach John Wilson said, "The team worked well together and tried to support each other at the different positions." Coming off of a disappointing season where the girls had to cut it short due to lack of personnel, the girls flourished with 10 players and were able to complete a full season going 2-4-1. With a lot of Freshmen on the team, the girls should have another full season to improve their record and their abilities.

They took 6th place in league and had 2 district qualifiers and one state qualifier. Matt Parker ran hard and qualified himself to districts. The only person to qualify for both districts and state was Sheree Alexander a junior who plans on running along with Matt Parker in Hong Kong as well as China. Christina Wilson will be going to Hong Kong then China the day after Christmas. The team was well coached by Pat Geiger and looks prosperous for the future.

Captain and only senior of the team, Elishia Wall cheers her team on at a very competitive swim meet at Timberline.

These were the words that you would often hear at the swim-meets. All season the girls swam their best and were always pushing themselves to their limits. The thing that pushed them to do their best was their new coach, Stefan Mitu. Elishia Wall, the only senior on the team said, "Stefan really pushed us to work to our fullest potential. At times we hated him but in the end we ended up loving him for all he did for us. Having Stefan (as a coach) dropped all of our times. From the beginning of the season I dropped 10 seconds in the 100 breaststroke, 5 seconds in the 100 freestyle and 3 seconds in the 50 freestyle."

Some of the especially strong swimmers were Kelly

Johnson who swam the 100 butterfly and the 200 freestyle; Sarah Godlewski who swam the 100 backstroke and the 200 individual medley; and Captain Elishia Wall who swam in the 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke. Another strong swimmer who helped the team was Lisa Rosenthal who swam the 200 and 500 freestyle.

This year at districts the girls swam very hard and for many it paid off. After competing in the preliminary meet, the 200 medley relay, 200 freestyle relay, and 400 freestyle relay all went back to compete the on second day. Also going back the second day was Celestia Cheney who dropped her time by 10 seconds in the 500 freestyle during the preliminary meet.

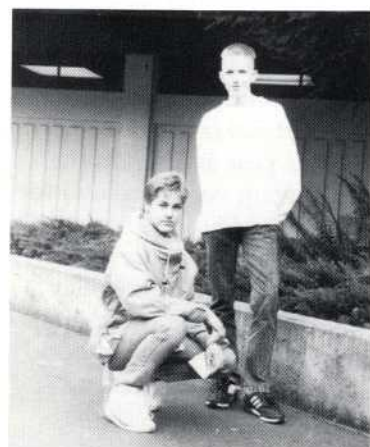

Heather Johanson quickly pushes off the starting blocks to complete her leg of the relay.

BOYS SWIM TEAM TAKES OFF AT DISTRICTS

The boys swim team had a very eventful season finishing with 6 loses and 5 wins. This year they placed 7th in districts and sent Jon Walker to state in 2 events - The 100 Butterfly and 200 individual Medley. Also going to state is Keith Gravel who is also swimming the 100 butterfly. In districts he finished 4th in the 100 butterfly and 6th in 200 individual medley.

Some other strong swimmers this year were Mark Bateman who swam the 400 free relay, the 100 backstroke, 200 free relay, and the 200 free; Brian Goody who swam hard in the 500 free; Brian Williams who swam the 100 breaststroke and the 200 medley relay; and Eric Short who swam good in the 100 backstroke and 200 free relay.

Over all this season proved to be successful and a high quality learning experience. As Coach Meyers said, "and again we had another "perfect" year."

LADY BLAZERS JUST MISS

The Lady Blazers just missed the .500 mark finishing with a 9 and 11 record. With six games within 4 points, this very well could have been the year of the playoffs. Leading Scorer for the Blazers was Sophomore Shannon MacCormac averaging 14.4 points per game, with Senior Adrienne Martin close behind averaging 12.7 ppg. Losing to teams like South Kitsap and Wilson by one point, didn't help confidence wise. Even when things weren't going their way the girls didn't get down on each other and stayed in the game. The girls played very hard in all of their games. The Seniors for the team were: Adrienne Martin, Christina Wilson, and Katie O'Neil. With the top scorer, six other returning Varsity members, and some upcoming JV members, the girls should continue to rise and have some great seasons.

JV GIRLS ON THE RISE

The JV girls' basketball program took another step up the ladder finishing with a 12-8 winning season. This was excellent considering they finished with a 5 and 15 record last year. The girls started off strong with a 7 and 3 record with three of those wins 20 or more points. But as in the past, the girls finished with only 5 wins out of the last 10 games. As in the past, teamwork was an important factor in all the games. Even when the girls were down the team stuck together and kept on encouraging each other. The two top scorers were Stephanie Little and Lashonda Christopher. All team members contributed to give the girls this winning season.

The Freshman basketball team, under the coaching of Lori Olson, had another great year finishing with a record of 12-5. When asked if she thought that the girls showed teamwork this year, she said, "I really stress teamwork and in the last month or so the girls were starting to get the team concept. This was shown in the game at Lincoln where we beat them by three points, and before they beat us by five." Leading scorer was Erin Rinear. Other high scorers were Courtney Stewart and Courtney Lykles. All girls put in great effort to give the Freshmen another winning year.

Pinning With Pride

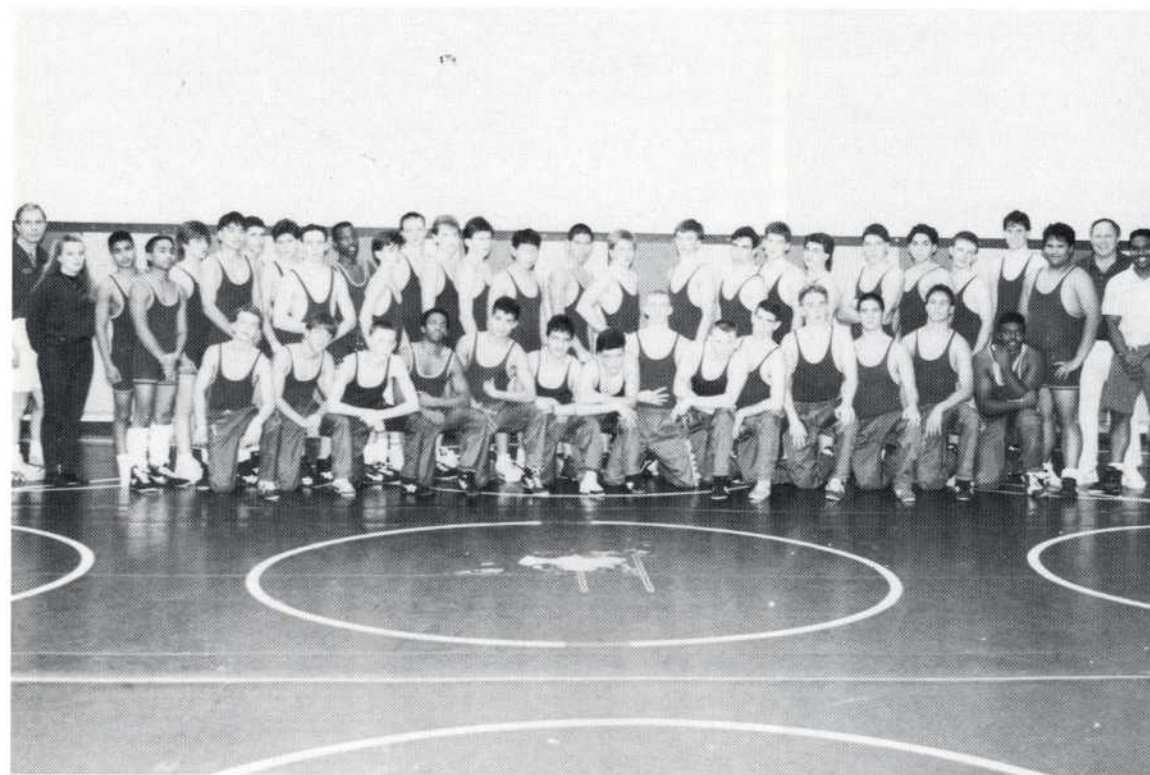

The Wrestling team had a good season, led by returning coach, John Birbeck. There was a large turnout, with several returning lettermen and several new wrestlers. Senior Aaron Halseth had a great year, going undefeated through most of the season, and had a rather controversial loss in the regional tournament in the middle of February.

Timberline hosted two tournaments this season, one of which brought eight schools to the area. The other tournament at Timberline was the regional tournament, which decided who went to state and who was done for the season. The Timberline representatives in the state tournament were Aaron Halseth, Dan Cruz, Frankie Norton and Kevin Trotter. The state tournament, entitled, "Mat Classic 4" was held in the Tacoma Dome and only the best made it that far. Halseth ended the year second in state with a dissappointing loss to the same person whom he almost beat the week before. Overall, the season was a success, and it is expected that the team will do good next year as well.

Blazers Travel Rough Road

Varsity starts off smooth but encounters many obstacles

The Timberline Varsity Boys Basketball team started the season with high expectations and a five game winning streak. Conflicts and injuries created misfortune for the Blazers throughout the remainder of the season. Disappointment and discouragement landed the Blazers into some devastating losses, one of which included a rough game against cross-town rivals, North Thurston. Although there were many obstacles throughout the season, the Blazers worked extremely hard and pulled together for a big win against Bellarmine in their last game.

The most memorable thing about this year's team to Coach Patton was, "How hard our players and coaches have worked to become a better basketball team. Our varsity team emphasized defense and learned to count on our defense night after night to intensify our level of play."

After weaving through the defenders, Matt Patton goes in for the finger roll lay-up.

ON THE REBOUND

The J.V. season was rattled with departure and injury. They lost three players mid way through the season and were not able to pick up the slack. Coach Phil Lonborg remarked that, "We lost some close ones that we should have won. The ball just didn't seem to bounce in our direction."

With a final record of eleven and eight the J.V. squad fought hard the whole season and was able to overcome some of the adversity. The coaching staff was rather pleased with the effort the players showed,

"There were just too many changes in the practices and personnel for us to really get set."

Problems stemming from the Varsity level played a key role in the personnel shortage. With Adam Randal, Aaron Wilkins, and Scott Yachovich being moved up, that left the J.V.'s a little thin in the front court. Injury to Eric Buholm, Willard De Rouen, and Adam Fiedler, at different points in the season didn't make matters any better.

"If the team hadn't gotten along so well our season would have been a lot worse." From Coach Phil Lonborg. It was the will of the players that kept the J.V. players' heads above water.

The season was quite short of the early expectations, but that couldn't be helped. "Our season was just typical of a rebounding program, and it will be great to see what happens next year." These were the final words from coach Phil Lonborg.

Sophomores See Success

Timberline had 14 students compete in Sophomore boys basketball. These students had to make sure that on game days, they were able to make it to Nisqually Middle School, where all of the home games were held. Despite the traveling, the boys got a good spectator turnout and always put on a good show.

Coach Don Martonik had good things to say about this team. "Our players worked very hard and we made good progress over the season. I'm not disappointed in our win/loss record, because we learned."

Freshman Learn A Lesson

The freshman basketball team had a disappointing 6-9 record but gained experience in the end. Emphasizing fast break offense and tough defense put their opponents at a disadvantage. The freshman team had their ups and downs, forward Jolani Tyrell says, "The season didn't go as well as I planned, I wish we could have done better." Even though they didn't have an undefeated season they learned a little bit more about being a basketball player, and having self-leadership on and off the court.

...MAKE IT HAPPEN!!

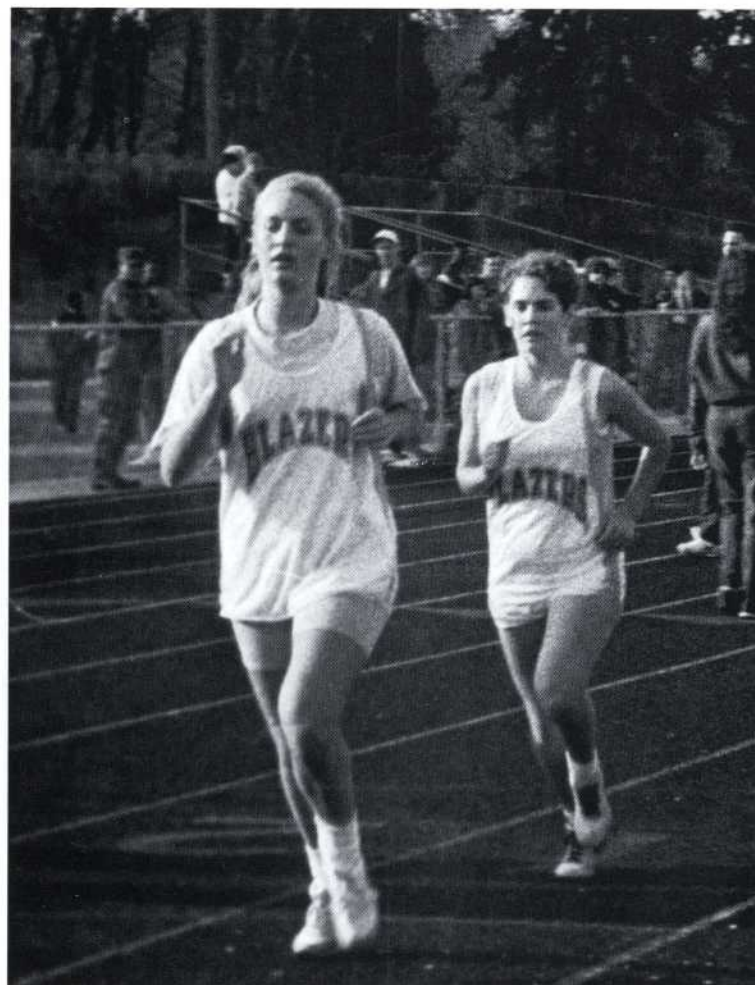

Blazer track turned out with 105 total kids to start of the 91-92 year. This year's theme "Make It Happen" is incorporated in the practices. The team concept is spreading with help of the great coaching staff lead by head coach Phil Lonborg and assisted by John Jordan, Bob Atwell, Dan Gregory, Lori Olson, Brian Smelser, Jerry Johnson and

Karen Steen. Each day the team improved physically as well as mentally. Team captains were Antwan Miller, George Burks, Ty Robb, Nate Mayes, T.C Ellis, Sheree Alexander, Mindy Hulverson and Chris Wilson. Helping to strengthen the girls team were the fabulous freshmen lead by Lashonda Christopher and Erin Rinear. When asked on what the goals for this season were Coach Lonborg commented "Hopefully we can finish the season with a 6-2 record in league and qualify our kids into districts and onto state, and with an outstanding overall attitude I think we can accomplish anything we set our minds to."

Thad London soars off the board in his first of four attempts at the long jump.

Marlee Dauenhauer and Heather Robbins complete their sixth lap in the two mile run. Dauenhauer took second in this event with a time of 14:40 with Robbins right on her heels taking third.

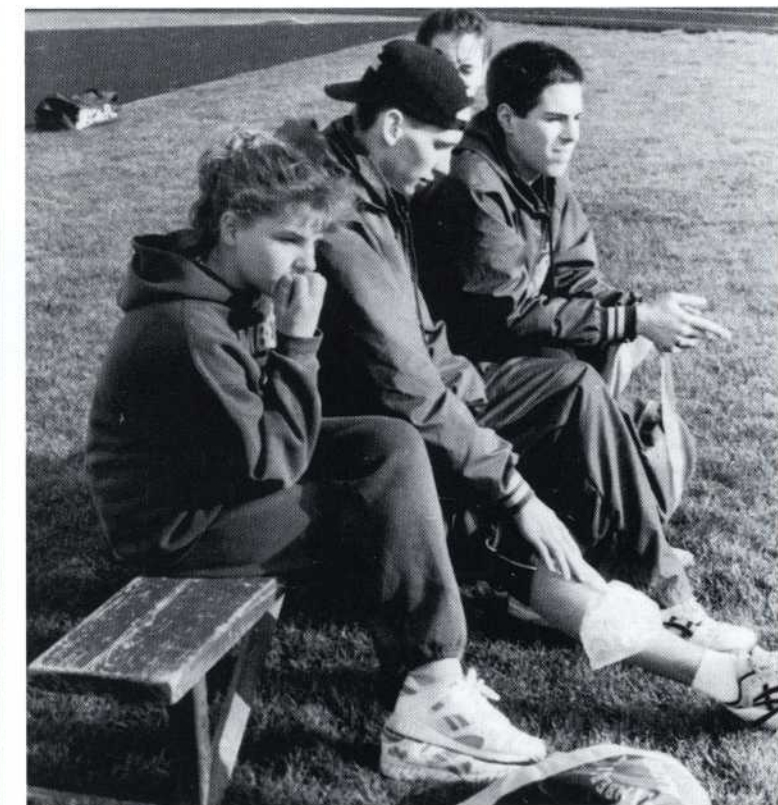

Junior, Chris Landrum hurls the javelin in the first meet of the season.

Telisha Ellis spins as she releases the discus to win first place in the opening meet of the season. Ellis also took first in the shotput in this meet.

Junior, Nate Mayes attempts an eleven foot vault in a meet against Spanaway Lake. Mayes was the only pole vaulter in this meet.

UNDER RECONSTRUCTION

The Boy's Varsity Baseball Team expected to have a good year even though they were going through some transitions between the old coaching and the new coaching. Fortunately for them, at the beginning of the season, there was very good weather for playing and they were able to get under way without any cancellations or delays.

First year coach Brian

Wharton expected to see many changes in the team this year. He broke it down into several steps. "In order to turn this program in a championship direction we need to do several things. Change the image of the program, develop sound fundamental skills, learn how to play the game correctly, and expect to win. My job is to not make this a long process."

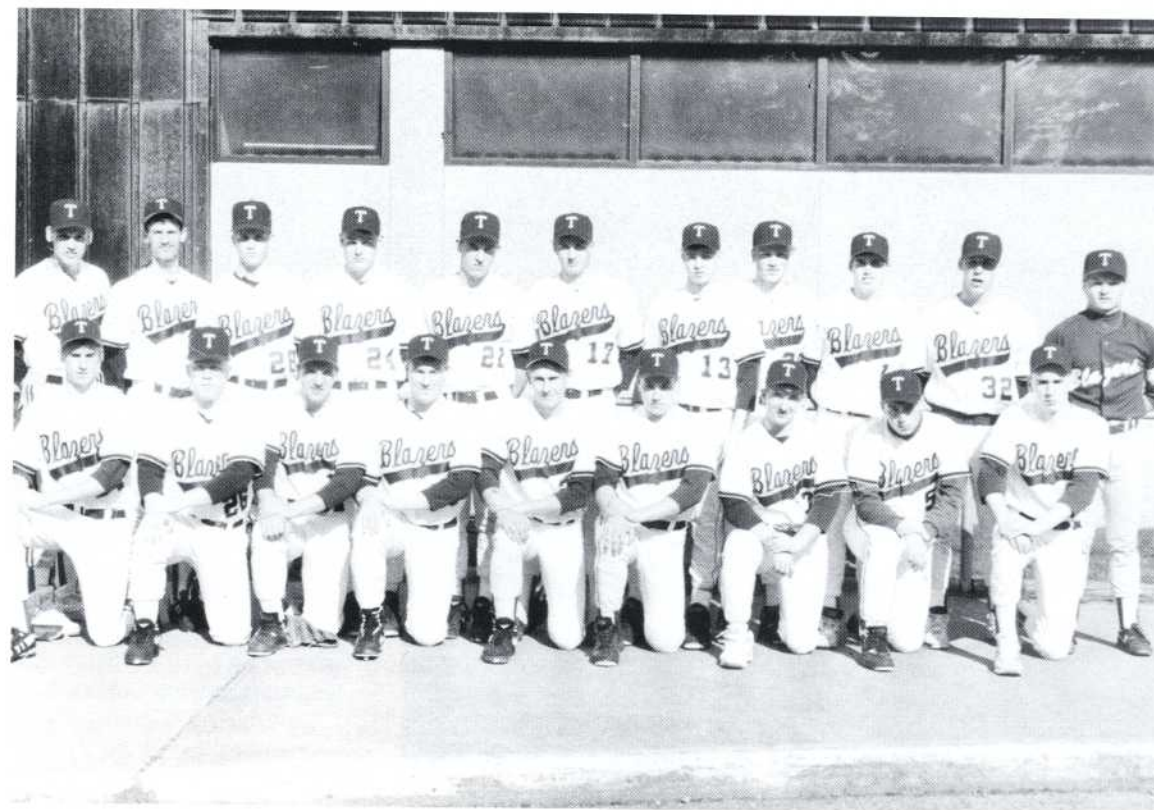

Coach Brian Wharton cheers his team on as Pete Mirkovich waits for the ball to be put in play.

JV Bats Their Way To Varsity

The JV Boy's Baseball team was expected to have a very good season this year. Many of the players were young and had a lot of talent available. One of the biggest problems that they ran into early in the season was that they were inexperienced. Mr. Clark, the JV head coach said that he felt his team was "working very hard" and were "getting ready for the upcoming challenge of going on to the Varsity level." He stressed the importance of good work ethics and fundamentals of the game.

A few of the returning players to this years squad included Bill Fair, Arle Seaton, Dan Valdez and Mark Rindy. These players had good potential and were expected to go on to Varsity next year.

Frosh On Deck

The Freshmen baseball team had a long road ahead of them this season. With a team that has hardly ever played together before, each season is a challenge for the coaching staff. This year's team felt they had an excellent chance of having a winning season. Not only was skill on the field stressed, but also to give 100% in school as well. Coach Brian Mitchell had this to say. "I expect them to learn good sportsmanship, and develop as good citizens. They are a pleasure to be around."

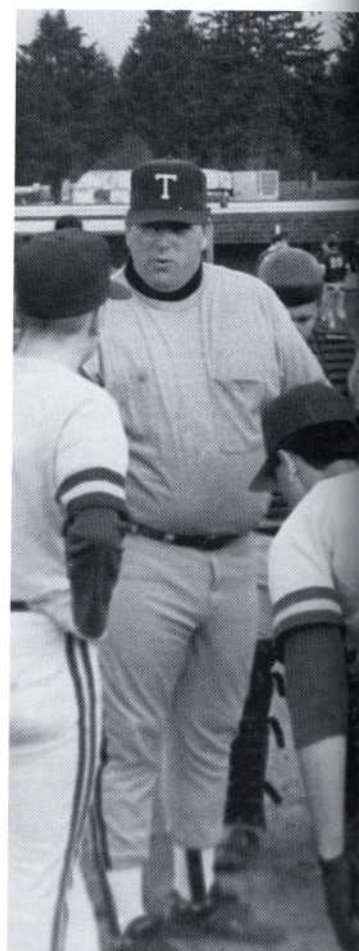

A few of the expected dominant players this year included: Pitcher Russ Riel, Doug Hanna, Ryan Stevens, Josh Hilton, Jeremy Larson and Matt Berkett. With these players, along with the rest of the team, they were expected to do very well.

THEY LOVE A CHALLENGE

The girls tennis team looked toward a promising season. The junior varsity team had a new coach this year, Linda Lingelbach, and the varsity coach, Helga Cramer, was back for another year.

Coach Lingelbach said, "I want my players to do well, so they'll be able to advance to Varsity." Two junior varsity players, Dawn Smith and Linda Thomalson, got a chance to play with the Varsity team. Other players who got a chance to play on varsity were Shannon Neely, Michelle Oster, Jenny Levesque and Aurora St. Martin.

Coach Cramer said, "My motive is that I don't want perfection, but I expect excellence and they seem to understand that." The girls felt that they had a chance at beating our cross-town rivals, North Thurston. The team was very fortunate to have seven returning varsity players, Krissy Snyder, Erin Edwards, Adrienne Martin, Gemma Edwards, Tiffany Zeiler, Sherra Derrick, and Kelly Hembree. Coach Cramer's main objective for the girls was that they enjoyed what they were doing and would have something to take with them when they left Timberline.

"FORE"

This years golf team had high expectations. Coach Don Parsons was confident that his twenty second year of coaching would be a good one. Last year the girls team took sixth place at State, they hoped this year to take first. The boys team was mostly underclassmen but the Coach described them as "young and eager."

Four year senior member, Daniela Wall, enjoyed playing golf because "if you make a mistake its only your fault, it's just you and the course." The experience of Coach Don Parsons and Asst. Coach Pat Geiger, along with returning members, was a sure key to a successful season.

KICKIN' IT!

Coach Colin Stewart had high expectations for a great season this year. He was enthusiastic about the prospect of going to state.

Coach Stewart felt that this years team was stronger than last years. He hoped that all the hard work at practices would pay off. He expected a good performance from Seniors Wes Wezenberg, Mark Tichenor, and Junior Nick Wezenberg. The dedication of these players and the other teammates guaranteed a promising season.

YOUNG GUNS

Hard work and determination will be the key to success this year in varsity fastpitch. The majority of this year's team are sophomores returning from last year's J.V. and Varsity squads. The lack of senior leaders will be a small hurdle in which this team may have to overcome. Talent and teamwork will keep the Blazers fastpitch team competitive and hard to beat. "We began the season hitting the ball hard which is always a good sign, and our fielding was pretty decent. For us the problem will be keeping the spirit and emotion even throughout the season. Our players have a great deal of fastpitch experience and knowledge they just need to work together," said Head Coach Steve Rood.

Regardless of the outcome of the season the team has always worked hard and kept at the task. This season will be a starting block for great things to come. Young talent is an asset to the future of Timberline Fastpitch and that's what we have and hope to build on.

BREAK IN THE DAY

KICKING THEIR WAY TO FLORIDA

This year the Dance team went to the nationals at Florida again for the 2nd year in a row. Also, the Dance Team was invited to perform at the Fiesta Bowl in Arizona, but that trip would have cost them another $18,000 on top of the $28,000 it cost them to go to Orlando. Now you may have asked, how did they earn that much money? Well they had fundraisers. Mrs. Drawsby said, "Fundraising is like a full time job, we have weekly meetings, and two-three fundraisers a week. But even though it's hard work the parents develop lasting friendships, and mostly it's quite pleasant." This year the dance team held an auction on December 7, and it was expected to do very well. Other fundraisers being held are, Candy sales, car washes ect. Sharon Bertsch, mother of Courtney Bertsch said, Fundraising is tiring and time consuming but very rewarding. When we get there (Orlando), it will be worth it."

This year at Nationals Mrs. Drawsby and Sharon Bertsch both feel that the Dance Team will do very well. Mrs. Bertsch said, "I think this team will win." Mrs. Drawsby also had this to add, "These girls are very talented, they are expected to do very well at Florida, this year we were lucky enough to have help on choregraphy." But even though all this was true it didn't change the fact that there would be a lot of hardwork and determination from those on the 1991-92 Dance Team. Mrs. Drawsby said, "I've enjoyed being the advisory of this group, the girls are really neat to work with."

IN STEP WITH THE BEAT

This year the band became much more competitive than in previous years. They went to both Snohomish and Auburn where they competed in the marching band competition. As a result of their performances, they earned the position of being the second best marching band in the state.

Student leadership roles have also helped the band progress. Students were able to give extra help to their students. Amber Nadolny was appointed student director. This took some responsibility off of Mr. Stone.

The jazz band sacrificed their early mornings to come in to rehearse. They studied more involved literature that required extra effort. Although they were a separate group, they also were part of the marching band.

MORE THAN MUSIC

On October 24, 1991 the Timberline Orchestras held their fall concert. This is the second year in which Timberline has had two orchestras, the green orchestra and the gold orchestra. The gold orchestra is mainly composed of upperclassmen, but some freshman have earned their way in it. The green orchestra consists of all freshmen.

Mr. Schooler, the orchestra conductor, believes that orchestra is not just a music class, but one that helps teach life-skills. Through playing in an orchestra students are taught group dynamics, the value of hardwork and are enlightened to other cultures through music.

This year the orchestra traveled to the Mercer Island festival, which they have been doing for three years. In previous years they have had the honor of being called back to perform in the evening session. The evening session is a concert held the night of the festival featuring select orchestras.

Usually choir advisor Miss Hayes lead the choir with the piano, but sometimes one of the students would take over.

LIGHTS, CAMERA, ACTION...

Drama has been very active in the thespian community this year. The drama club and some of the drama classes have put on performances for elementary students this year. Some of the performances were: The Trial of Goldilocks and Dorothy and Alice.

This year's fall performance by the Timberline Theater was The Voice of the Prairie. It was the story of a young man who recounts his adventures with a blind girl over the radio, when radio was a new sensation. Paul Curtis played as a young man and Heidi Fredricks and Jennifer Coate split the role of Frankie, the blind girl. Sean Balko was very convincing in the role of a pushy conartist trying to sell his radios and gave an encore performance at the Fine Arts Convocation, as did Paul Curtis. This production was well done and was invited to the Thespian Conference to perform after the show was done being performed in the Timberline Theater. The spring performance was South Pacific.

Brandy Madden tries to dictate the conversation in the courtroom to the deaf judge, played by Bethany Dunham, during "The Trial of Goldilocks" performed for a class of third-graders.

Goldilocks, played by Amy Armstrong, is dumbfounded after the chair she was sitting in breaks, while papa bear watches from behind a chair, in "The Trial of Goldilocks".

In the fall production "Voices of the Prairie", the cast wanders about the stage in one of the many scenes of the play.

GIVE A HOOT, DON'T POLLUTE!

As each day passes by and we drive to and from school, alone, we don't realize what we are doing. You may ask, "What? I'm just going to school. What's wrong with that?" We are ruining the environment. Lately, people have stressed the importance of our environment and how we can make it better...carpool, recycle, protect animals rights, and much more. But how many people actually DO something about it? In talking with Mr. Compton and Alison Uuereb, the two key people in this new club, only about 10-15 people have taken part in this quest.

Alison stated, "This is the first year of the club that is taking place during the school day. So far we have just discussed animal rights, how to preserve the natural wildlife refuges, and fund raising ideas to help out certain problems we face, such as the rain forests." Mr. Compton said in conclusion, "We offer the opportunity to get people involved in the environmental problems and hopefully see some results." So think about the problems of our environment and start showing your concern. Try a carpool; besides, it makes for good company.

Strength Through Diversity

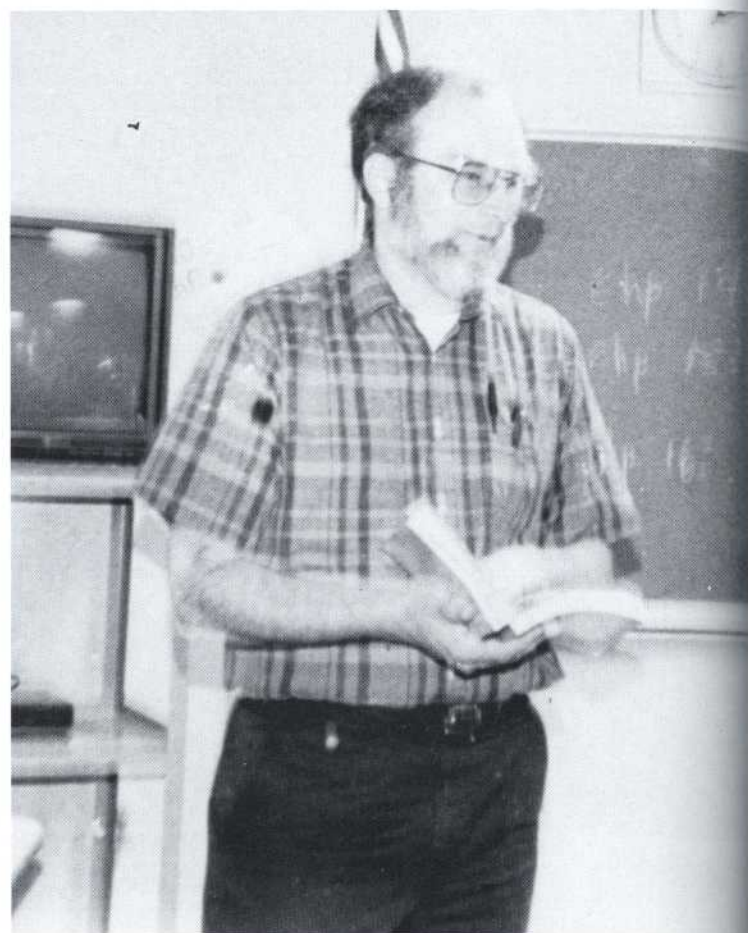

Many people think that the Human Relations Council is an ASB Club and is also a part of the Ethnic Awareness club but it's not. The Human Relations Council is an advisory council to the Principal that was formed 5 years ago. The advisors this year are Mrs. Cruz, Mr. Nicholas, and Ms. Labuda.

The members on the council are selected by nominations by either Timberline students or a faculty member in Timberline. The students that are selected serve for the rest of their high school career unless they are released for non-participation or resign.

One of the programs that the council presents is the Buddies program. This helps out the new students of Timberline by having a member of the council show them around the school and make them feel at home. The council also presents the Human Relation Council Assemble. This year the assembly Was called Kaleidoscope and the theme was called Shades of the Spectrum. The council also went through mediation training to perform mediation at Timberline for peer conflicts and provide resolution services. Human Relation Council member, Jashon Spencer, said, "Human Relations, a party full of accomplishments!"

Freshmen Nicole Kirkevold, Natalie Martin, Sarah Clauson, and friend discuss new ways to save the environment.

"Interact"ing In The Community

There are so many clubs to choose from here at Timberline High School. All are important some way or another, the Interact club is specially made up to help out the community. They are focused on getting involved with people that need help. And discussing topics with people that are already helping out the community. They vary from helping at the awards banquet for senior citizen volunteers to Participating in the building of a park for Lacey. The best part about Interact is to show senior citizens that teens can help and show them that not all kids are bad. And for people that show that they do care about what goes on in the community there is a $1,000 scholarship. So for people that care about what goes on in the community, get involved it doesn't hurt to feel good about yourself.

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Co-op work club was established this year to make people think about and work at community service projects. Many of the 10 members of this club didn't belong to another club before, so it also gave them a chance to be in a club as well as help the community. Advisor Mr. Bryant commented, "The club's purpose is to get them

(the students) to think individually about helping someone else and not so much as a group." Mr. Bryant also stated that as the advisor he tried to show them that one person can make a difference. Co-op met every Wednesday and discussed work related subjects and things that they could do for the community.

Collecting The Collectibles

Card collecting club was organized to provide a place for people who like cards and need a place to trade them. Advisor Steve Ripley commented, "We talk about cards, sort cards, value cards, determine the value and best deals when buying cards, upcoming card shows, and trade cards." They deal with all kinds of cards: football, baseball, and basketball. This year there was a relatively small group so they could not do some of the things they did last year like put on a card show.

HARD WORK EQUALS STATE

Math club was set up for students that like and are good at math. Preparing for regionals and state was a big job. The math club students met every Wednesday after school to do practice tests in areas of Algebra, Geometry, Advanced Algebra, and Trigonometry. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors were eligible to join, and the team consisted of 2-3 students from each class.

Distributing Education Clubs of America

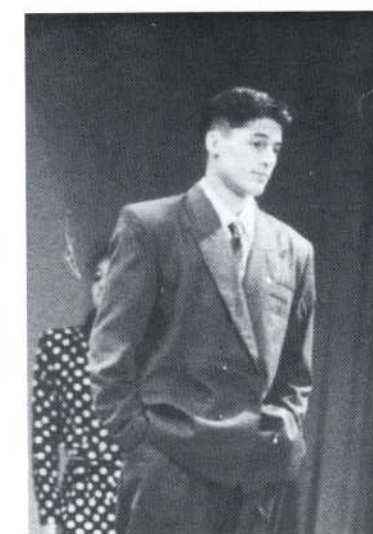

This year DECA (Distributing Education Clubs of America) attended many leadership functions to further their knowledge in the business world.

In October, the state leadership conference was held in Spokane. This helped strengthen leadership abilities. In December, DECA traveled to Ocean Shores. This conference helped DECA students to get to know others from all over the state. Kam James remarked, "The area has better public relations and we've all gotten to know each other in the whole area." February 4th was the date for area competition. The area winners who qualified for state competition were Melanie Rogers, Tracy Beck, Sara Plendl, Britt Wusterbarth, Lisa Treadwell, Jake Beard, Jannette Wise, and Bobbi Kessler. Sara Tower, Kam James, and Lani Benavente all participated in the "Learn and Earn" project.

DECA had many types of fund-raisers. At wrestling meets, they opened the student store to provide snacks to the wrestlers as well as spectators. This was called "Learn and Earn." A dance after the basketball game against North Thurston was also sponsored by DECA. Another fund-raiser was the Fall Fashion Show. Unusually, the fashion show was held at night instead of during activity period. This was because the administration saw it as "uneducational".

Thinking About The Future

FBLA, which stands for Future Business Leaders of America was one of the more active clubs at Timberline. The club members were required to pay dues to be in the club, and then were able to compete in several different competitions with other students. These competitions, which included speed typing and business management, were participated in by many and several members received top places in their specific competition.

FFA was involved with the community in several ways this year. Besides the Annual Christmas Tree sale, the members earned extra credit for other classes when they went out to plant salmon eggs in streams or other conservation work. Several committees were set up such as the oil committee which collected old motor oil, and the small animal committee which provided funds and assistance for injured animals. The real purpose behind the committees were to give the members some added responsibilities and in the process, do something for the community.

FHA was also another community based club. They were able to raise funds to do things that were helpful to the community and also learned a lot about how to help the various people in the Thurston County area in general.

Competitions Equal Job Experience

Vica Auto, Graphics, and Welding try to meet as often as possible enable to get a slight edge on other classmates. These three rather small clubs meet to keep up on different activities such as numerous fund raisers.

Vica Auto is an involved club which participates in a variety of competitions which Timberline Auto club members excel in. Whether its hands on competing or demonstrations VICA Auto does well in the end. A huge fund raiser was also done by this exciting club. They put together a truck from scratch over the past couple of years and sold it for a tremendous profit. VICA Graphics is a very small club which takes place in a number of competitions. job interviews and job skills are a part of these competitions. Welding is also a VICA club which has an option of taking part in competitions. They take part in making prodjects for different people. Members of this club join to have fun and get away from the everyday book work.

Stephen Dilworth, Kenny Bell, Eric Jerenz, and Brian O'Rourke are discussing future plans while other Vica Auto members are preparing for the nearing competition.

Vocational Industrial Club of America

Vica Drafting is a club that's major goal is to raise money. One way this is done is by putting on the Winter Tolo Dance. Part of the money raised during Tolo is to fund for field trips as well as numerous competitions. Many competitions are a part of this active club. The training process that the club members undergo is a series of various projects to enhance their drawing abilities.

WE ARE UNIQUE

The Ethnic Awareness club is one of Timberline High Schools largest clubs. They meet to become more aware of their ethnicity as well as others. Knowledge of ones background is very important to feeling good about yourself. Many assemblies and gatherings helped the club get to know each other better. One idea that is stressed during meetings is that everyone is ethnic in one way or another. Guest speakers of a wide range come to talk about their feelings and opinions. These discussions range from how minorities are treated to talking about future group plans. The Ethnic Awareness club really get involved and contributes greatly to Timberline High School.

Keeping Our Traditions Alive

The Northwest has always had a variety of Native Americans that join our school system each year. As they are welcomed, they have the opportunity to join the Native American Club in which they learn about the other cultures that join the club as well as teaching their own cultural traditions. This year, a few of the clubs activities include: meeting at North Thurston H.S. with Indigenous People, they met Rodney Grant from "Dances With Wolves" and Arnold Schwarzenagger, and participated in various cultural display's.

"As the advisor for the Native American Club, Mrs. Sutterlikt saw to it that the students enjoyed their time spent here."

"Greg Sutterlikt laughs with a few of the other club members while reminiscing about the clubs past events."

"As the year has gone by, Kelly McCloud and Betty Medina have enjoyed their time at their club meetings."

Timberline has been a host every year for exchange students from many different countries. A few of these countries have been Germany, France, Japan, Australia, Indonesia, Norway, and Yugoslavia. Each year these selected few are welcomed at THS in an assembly at the beginning of the year. These students teach the teachers and the students of THS about the ways of their cultures and share new ideas. At the same time, they are learning new skills and gaining knowledge of our own culture.

FOREIGN FRENZY

There are three foreign language clubs that Timberline High School has to offer. The Spanish, German, and French clubs meet to get a little edge on the studied language. Getting to know the culture and becoming interested in the countries that speak the language is important to studying a non-native language.

The Spanish club is the largest of the three foreign language clubs. They do many different activities to take advantage of the short time they have to spend together. A Christmas Party was a part of the holiday festivities which took place in the Spanish Club.

The French Club is involved in many different exciting activities. One of these is a french style of folk dancing which everyone participates in. A variety of french dishes are cooked and sampled by the club members. Twice a year the students take part in a traditional French meal. Being a member of a foreign language club enriches your cultural awareness for the language.

From Sesame Street to senior
Dolls to cap and gown,
You've made us
proud of your success Seems nothing
can hold you down.

With your high school years behind you
And college on its way,
We love you very much Jannette
You grow more precious every day!
Love Always, Mom, Bert,
Jennifer, Jeff,
Grandma & Grandpa

Jake,
Congratulations-
you made it!
We are very proud of who you are. Your sense of humor
has brought laughter into our lives.
Your thankful,
caring, and
generous nature
has marked us
with many memories.
Move on to the future with the same positive

What can I say about my "little Nicole"?
You've brought sunshine into my life to brighten my days, you've brought me
worlds of joy through your sweet and loving ways. No words can describe the warm memories, pride and gratitude that comes from having a daughter to love and to cherish like you. I'm so proud of you, Nicole. You're a blessing that came from above, a special and beautiful treasure for me to love.

Always, Mom

Lynette,
Your entrance into my life was swift and easy. I would like to take credit for what you are, but raising you was effortless. You faced everything life handed us with love, courage, adaptability, and your undauntable spirit. I have no doubt that you will face the rest of your life with the same attitude. You are terrific! I may never have won a turkey, But Lady Luck
certainly favored me
when you became
a part of my life.
Go for it, sweetheart.

When things get tough,

just remember who moved the couch!

I love you.
Mom

CHRISTINE,
When you were this size you had a lot of KETCHUP to do.
But look at you now!!! We are proud of you. Keep up the good work!

TO MY SON:

It seems impossible that you are graduating. Seems just like the other day when we walked hand-in-hand to your first day of kindergarten. We've had some really good times together and some tough ones too. It's been you and me against the world, but I hope you've learned on thing from me--how much you enjoy what you have in life is more important than how much you have.

As you become a man and begin your life on your own remember you'll always be my baby boy and I'll always be here for you.

Love you with all my heart....Mom

Sarah-
So many memories...
So much to look forward to...

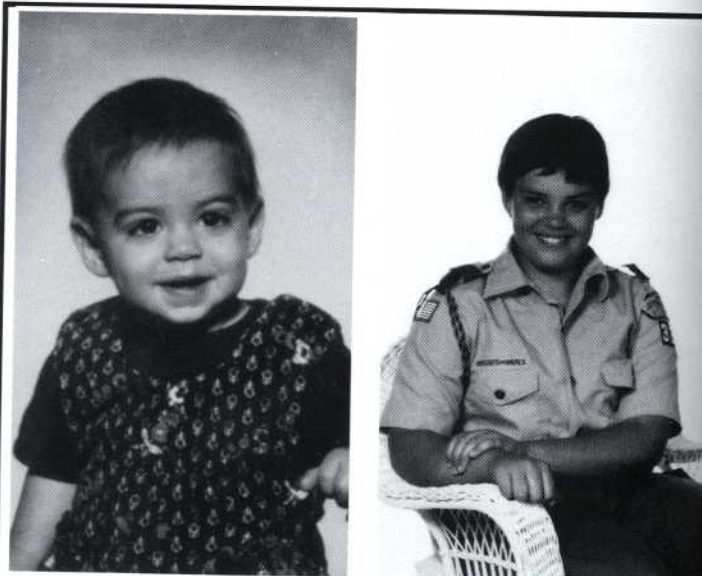

Congratulations and love from your families,

Wendy,

We're so proud of all your accomplishments, but even prouder of the person you are. Remember, this is not the end. Don't lose faith in your hopes and dreams; keep your hopes strong and your dreams alive.

We Love You,
Mom & Dad

Shannon,
Congratulations, We are so proud of you.
Keep up the good work and we know you will be successfull in whatever you do. You are very special to us.

We Love You!
Mom, Dad & Scott

Charity,

Your sparkle for life has given us joy, vitality, and meaningful purpose. God blessed us abundantly beyond our highest desires when He gave us you. Charity Dawn, "Love in the Morning", you've been the declaration of God's love to us every day of your life. What a privilege for you to call us "Dad" and "Mom".

May God bless you all your days, and may the radiance of His irresistible love continue to shine through you unto others.

You're a real winner, Charity. Congratulations! We love you!

Your Proud Parents

Chris,
Congratulations! We are all proud of you and your accomplishments.

stayed; close by each others side
through all the times we thought
our hearts could take no more dangerous climbs.
And every time we rounded the corners of our lives, we could blindly reach and our hands would always care, and our hearts would be glad to share all the ups and downs of life we could recall; all the times we'd pick us up when we would fall. The arms of our friendship were always strong. That's why we've been together all along ...You and me.

Sar'Bear,

Always remember who's child you are. God has a wonderful future designed just for you. So lift up your eyes. Keep them fixed on Him and you'll be successful in whatever you do. We're so proud you and we love you very, very, much.

Nick,
thank you for being "our kid" for the past school year. Your smiles and sense of humor will carry you far in life.

We will truly miss your presence in our daily lives. We will never forget your ravenous appetite. It has been a challenge to keep you well fed.

Remember, you will always be a part of our family and our home is your home.

Love from your "American Mom and Dad",
Bob & Carole

Chris-

We are so proud of you. It has been a pleasure watching you grow and mature. You have a wonderful future ahead of you.

Johanna-

Some of the best times of our lives are now coming to an end, and even though we may be going our separate ways, our friendship will stay the same. You've been my best friend through everything and I wish you the best in all that you do. Always believe in yourself, do what's right, and know I'm there for you always.

Love you,
Kelly

While sharing the last four years together, you've found your dreams and I've found mine. Although they've never been the same, you've supported me, put up with me, and restored my sanity on several occasions. Thank you for the store bought apples. Thank you for teaching me to believe in myself. I don't have to tell you how much our friendship means to me. You already know. You always do.

Love and friendship forever!

George

The Six Danceateers,
You are all so very special to me.
Our millions of memories that I will never forget. I wish the best of luck to you in your futures. The six best friends forever - together forever, never apart,
maybe in distance, but never in heart.
Hawaii...here we finally come!!!!
I love you,
Shannon Yonker

To my dearest friends...
What started out as a mere hello, was the seed of friendship that begins to grow. Before it blossomed I knew it would be, something so special that only we'd see, that beam of sunlight helped show us the way, to the gift of friendship that we share today. And so my friends, what I say is true - From now and for always, I will forever love you... Friends Forever,
Nicole

Well, this is it! But only the beginning of our friendship. No matter how far apart we are, we will always be together. Court: Thanks for being my personal punching bag and second family. Karyn: Remember all of our bus rides and also don't forget my funeral. Shan: Thanks for always being my personal guy counselor; boy have we had some sessions. Nicole: I'm glad that the "boy" incident didn't tear us apart, but made our friendship stronger, my little driver.
Chris: my best friend, there is one thing I can say to sum it all up "I love you."
Thanks you guys and always remember: "Friends, for life for longer." I love you:
Mel

The time has come to set aside all of the good and bad times of the past, and to look forward to the new life that is waiting ahead.

Karebear: I want to thank you for standing by me when I felt so alone and scared. You're a very caring, loving and giving person; don't ever change that. And when you're down, remember you have a lot of special memories to make you smile again.

Chris: We've been friends since the first day of kindergarten. Please don't ever forget how far we've come together, and all we've gone through and over come to make it here.

Nickel: We've had a lot of laughs and some great summer vacations. I'm very proud of you for reaching out and accomplishing your goals. Always stay beautiful, inside and out.

Mel: You're a special person and I'm glad we have all of the Dance Team memories to share together. And no matter where you end up in this world, please keep in touch with all of us.

Shannon: You're a thoughtful person with a cheery outlook on life. Keep smiling and keep all of the memories "dancing" in your mind. This isn't the end, it's a new beginning. Always remember "Friends are Friends forever," and thank you for all of the special times.

You are all very special to me and I love you with all of my heart.

Love forever - Coco

Courtney - Thanks for being there for me on that first day of kindergarten and everyday since. Never forget our 13 years of great memories.

Shannon - Thanks for always being able to make me smile and I'll never forget the funny faces only WE understood.

Karyn - Never forget your dreams I know they'll all come true. Thanks for always caring and being there for me.

Mel - You have made my high school years the best. I am very proud of you, always remember the memories we shared and look forward to many more.

Nicole - Thanks for all the special times we've shared throughout the years.

Love and friendship forever, Chris

Coco Buns: Nothing has ever separated us. We have always been together. Sweeping pine needles at the "D" tree, getting married to Jeff and Keith in the back field, the gray van, trying to sneak out and finally succeeding, going to the hospital, and pulling through our problems. You are my very best friend. I love you, Courtbo.

Mel: No matter how long we've known each other, we have always been friends. Your first day of sixth grade, rearranging and cleaning my room, going to the little store and Florida. You're a very funny person. I love you, Mel.

Chris: You were always there for me. I can remember trying out for line together, making up conga, and helping with Andy. You have a wonderful smile and cherry attitude. I love you. Keep on smiling.

Shan: Through all our boyfriends and dance routines, we always stuck together. From Debbi's Dance, to crying at all your birthday parties and dressing up like Madonna, to Jared. You are so sweet. I love you, Shan.

Nickel: Even though we haven't known each other as long, I still feel like I've known you forever. From Debbi's Dance, to dance team, to Mike, to camp. I think you are bright and caring. I love you, Nickel.

FRIENDS ARE FRIENDS FOREVER

It's hard to believe that you are ready to graduate from high school.

It seems like yesterday that you were learning to ride
your first bike!

We love you a lot and we know that you will have successful future, Whatever you choose to do.

Congratulations to our '92 Graduate!

Love,
Dad and Mom

A brief recap of what happened in 1991/1992

Key Events:

The Iron Curtain fell and the Soviet Union is no longer ruled by communism. Gorbachev resigned from office.

Anita Hill accused Clarence Thomas of sexually harassing her. He was found innocent and now serves in our Supreme Court.

Jeffery Dahmer tried to plead insanity on all counts of manslaughter and cannibalism. He was found guilty, but not insane.

Magic Johnson, basketball star, tested HIV positive.

Mike Tyson was accused and found guilty of raping beauty queen Desiree Washington. As People magazine stated, she was "The Woman Who Stopped Tyson."

Senator Brock Adams was accused of sexually harassing women who worked for him and his daughters close friend. Eight women were willing to testify against him. Only one woman was willing to have her name released, Kerry Tupper.

Events

The 1992 Olympic Games

The following are a few highlights of The United States participation and the statistics of the 1992 Winter Olympic Games.

- Kristi Yamaguchi won the gold medal in women's figure skating
- Nancy Kerigan won the bronze medal in women's figure skating

Hillary Lindh won a silver medal in Alpine skiing

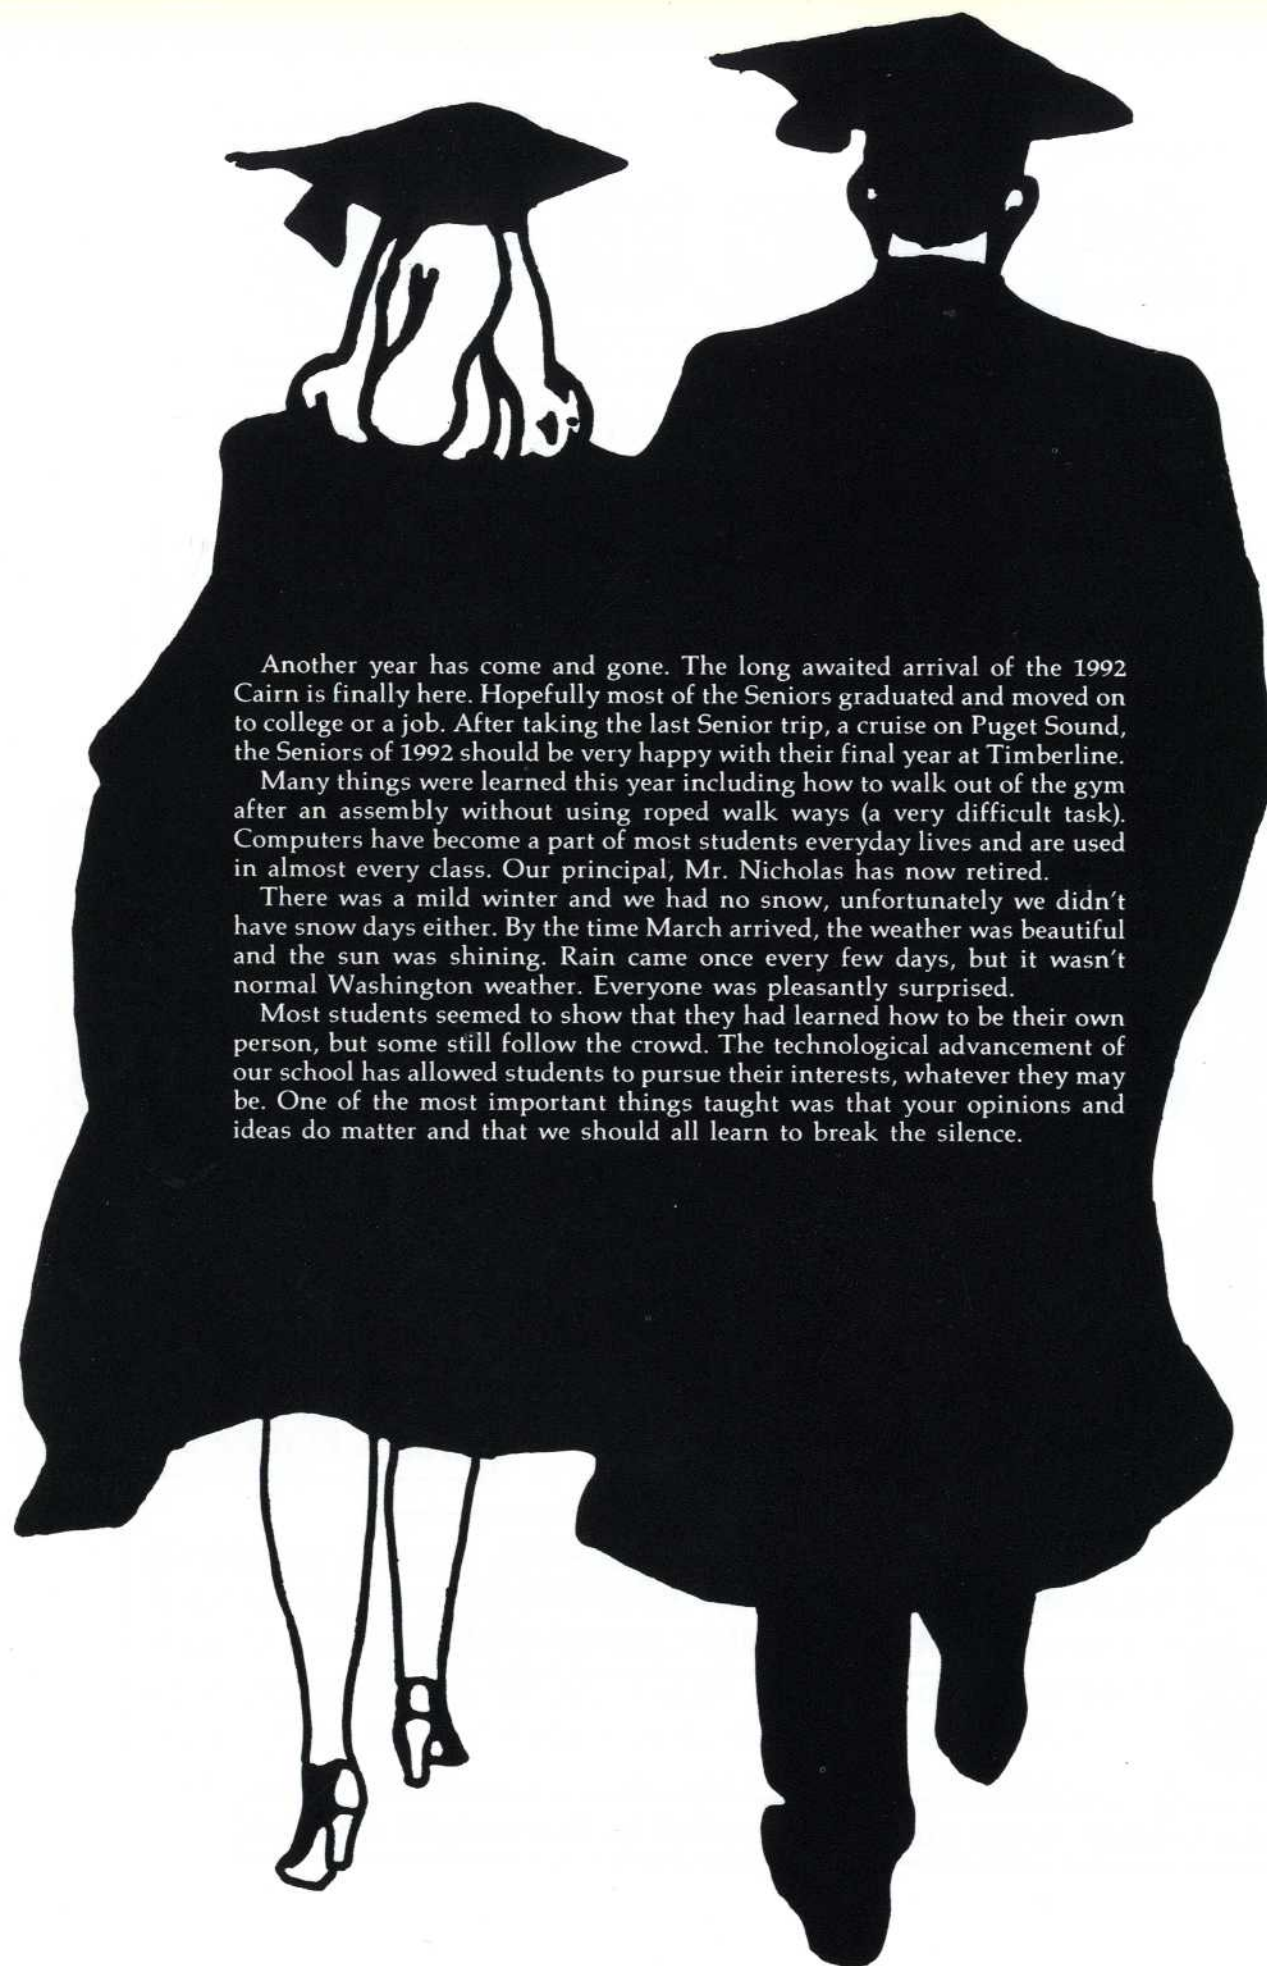

Paul Wylie won the silver medal in men's figure skating

Bonnie Blaire won two gold medals in 500 meter and 1000 meter speed skating

Donna Weinbrecht won the gold medal in freestyle skiing

Another year has come and gone. The long awaited arrival of the 1992 Cairn is finally here. Hopefully most of the Seniors graduated and moved on to college or a job. After taking the last Senior trip, a cruise on Puget Sound, the Seniors of 1992 should be very happy with their final year at Timberline.

Many things were learned this year including how to walk out of the gym after an assembly without using roped walk ways (a very difficult task). Computers have become a part of most students everyday lives and are used in almost every class. Our principal, Mr. Nicholas has now retired.

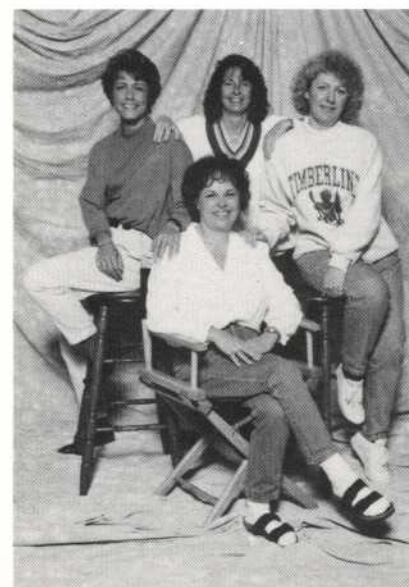

There was a mild winter and we had no snow, unfortunately we didn't have snow days either. By the time March arrived, the weather was beautiful and the sun was shining. Rain came once every few days, but it wasn't normal Washington weather. Everyone was pleasantly surprised.

Most students seemed to show that they had learned how to be their own person, but some still follow the crowd. The technological advancement of our school has allowed students to pursue their interests, whatever they may be. One of the most important things taught was that your opinions and ideas do matter and that we should all learn to break the silence.

Lori K. Olson

July 3, 1965 -

May 26, 1992

Lori Olson was training for rock climbing at Mountaineers Buttress in Leavenworth, Washington on May 25, 1992. A climber preceded Lori and set the path with appropriate safety equipment. Lori then began to climb, secured with a rope from below. On descent, a piece of the equipment was pulled from the rock. Her fall was stopped by the rope and other equipment, but on the rebound she hit a tree. On Tuesday, May 26, Ms. Olson passed away from severe head injuries.

LORI OLSON

Lori Olson was special in many ways. Through her caring and giving nature, she accepted everyone for who they are. She always showed enthusiasm, whether she was coaching, working, or just being a friend. Lori touched many people's lives. Specifically, her relationship with others was close, and on a first name basis. Many people knew her as more than a mentor. She was our mother, our sister, and our best friend.

H.A.G. is a word that is associated with Lori's coaching and lifestyle. It stands for Heart, Attitude, and Guts; the way Lori lived her life everyday. Through this, she was a role model for the students at Timberline. Although we did not have a chance to say good-bye, a part of her will always live on in all of our lives.

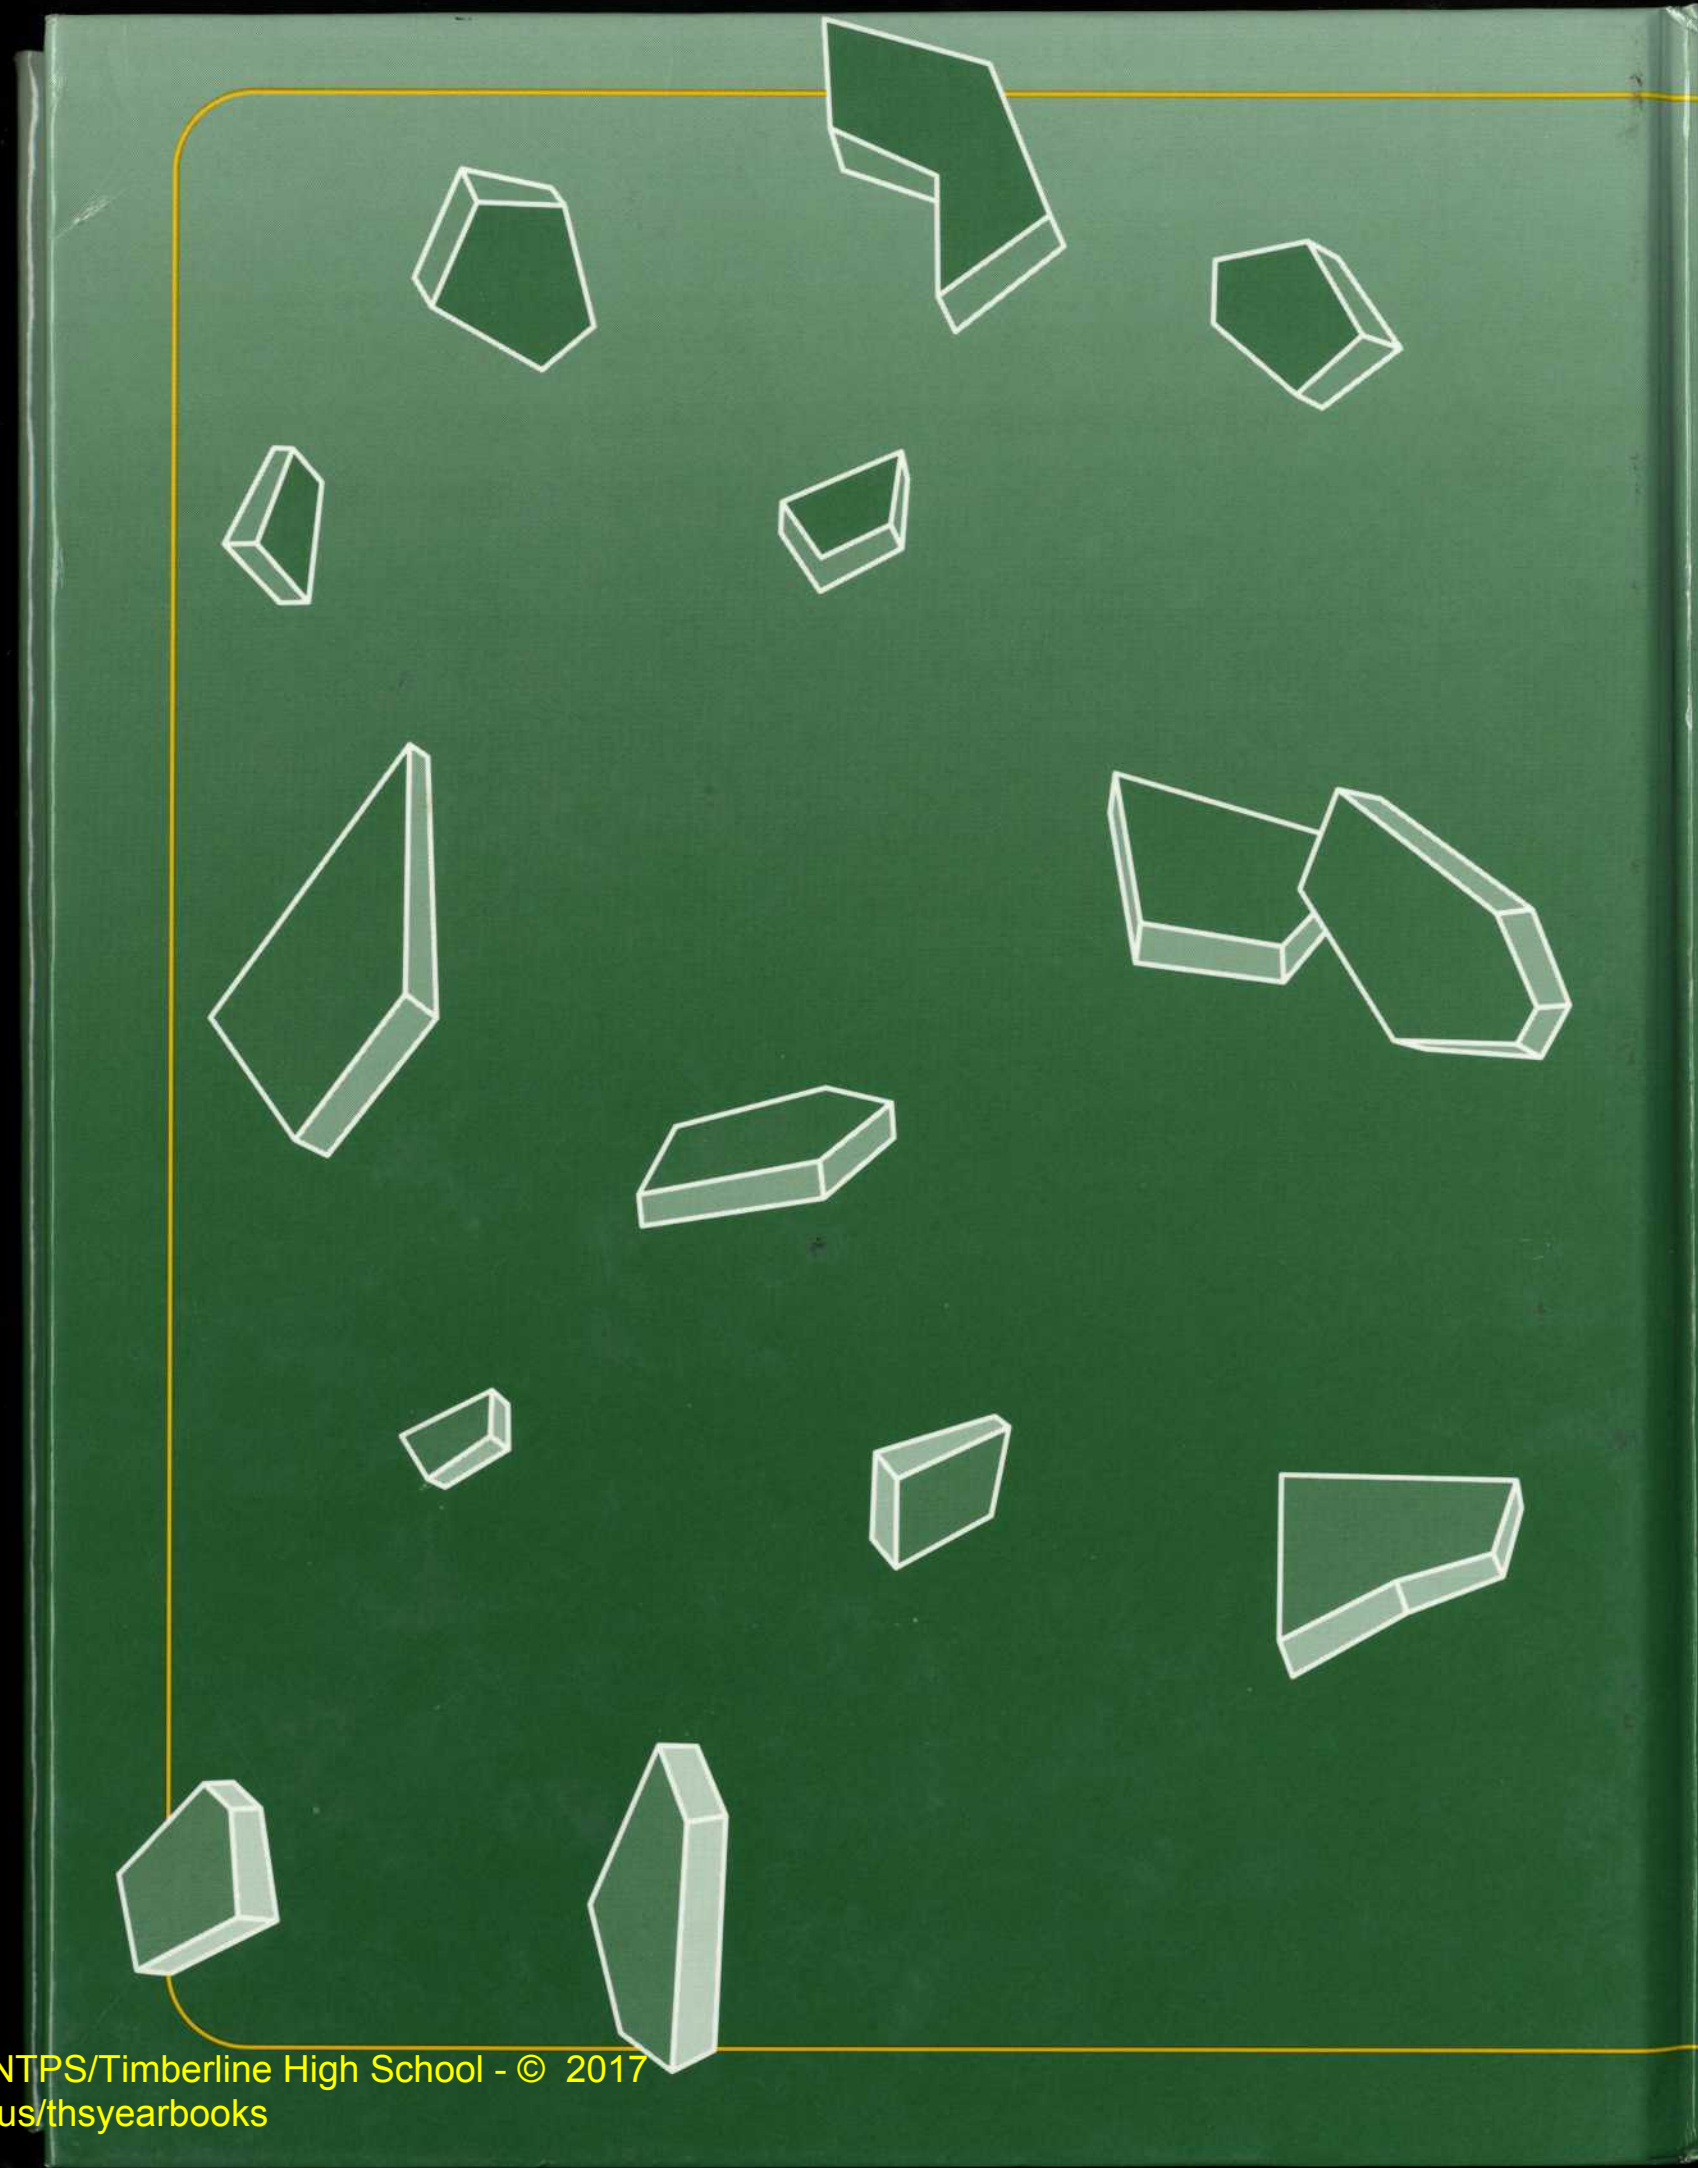

-Janelle Anderson
-Lisa Treadwell

Trying to capture Lori's essence on paper is about as difficult as trying to make her quit at something. In the past few days we have shared many stories about Lori, all of which reflect her vibrant, joyous approach to life. We found ourselves making a list of her loves: her folks, her sister, Fran, all of her friends and athletes, aerobics, sweating, volleyball, basketball, track, telling stories, roadrunners, her truck, her body...the list is long. Then we naturally began to think of those parts of Lori that we loved and mourn the loss of: her sense of humor, her ability to encourage and teach and lead us, her strength, her many contributions to Timberline's family, her dedication and her faith, her tan, and her brilliant smile. Many in the past few days have expressed great pain and sorrow but also an enduring disbelief that Lori could be gone. Perhaps this is because, far more than most, Lori represented for us the glory of a life lived to the fullest. We will miss her forever, but find some comfort in the way she touched our lives and made them better.
