Instructional Accommodations

Accommodations should always be chosen based on the individual student's needs.

"Accommodations are changes to materials, actions, or techniques, including use of technology that enable students with disabilities to participate meaningfully in grade-level or course instruction."
~The Dyslexia Handbook

THIS IS NOT AN EXHAUSTIVE LIST

- Copies of notes
- Note-taking assistance
- Additional time on assignments and tests
- Reduced/shortened assignments (e.g., chunking assignments into manageable units, fewer items given on a classroom test or homework assignment without eliminating concepts, or student planner to assist with assignments)
- Alternative test location that provides a quiet environment and reduces distractions
- Priority seating assignment
- Oral reading of directions or written material
- Word banks
- Audiobooks
- Text to speech
- Speech to text
- Electronic spellers
- Electronic dictionaries
- Formula charts
- Adaptive learning tools and features in software programs