Principal's Pen- Thank you to our grandparents who attended Grandparents Day and for a successful Quarterfest! We are fortunate to have so many supporters in our community. With the season of giving upon us, we are reminded that a good education is one of the best gifts we can give our children. It is imperative that parents work with their children daily to enhance their learning outside the classroom.

Readers Are Leaders

Create magical Christmas memories by reading Christmas books together. Read with expression and ask for a summary of the book when you are finished. If your child can do so, have him/her take a turn reading a page. This simple and heartwarming activity is another way you can improve your child's overall reading ability.

Math Matters

There are just so many ways in which math can be practiced at Christmas time - recipes, wish lists, Christmas day travel plans, etc. Baking cookies? Have your child estimate how many will fit on the pan before you begin and then count the actual number. Making wish lists? Have your older children look up the cost of their items, round them to the nearest dollar and total how much the items cost. Have a busy day for Christmas? Plan your times with your child and talk about the number of minutes between activities or destinations. Have them figure out how much time will be spent in one place by giving them an arrival time and departure time.
