Maryvale Senior Discovers New Passion in Electronics and Applied Technologies Program

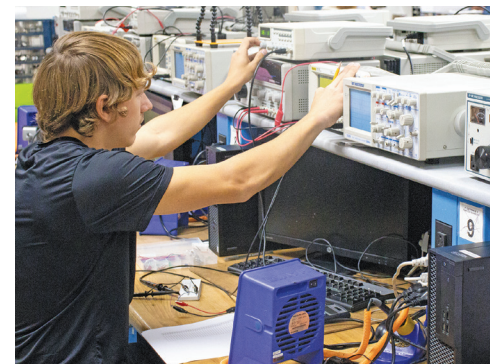

Maryvale High School senior Alex Gibbons is distinguishing himself in the Electronics and Applied Technologies program at the Harkness Career and Technical Education Center, where his curiosity, leadership, and academic dedication shine.

Instructor Travis Mawhir says Alex has been an exceptional student from the moment he joined the class.

"Alex has been an upstanding student since he first arrived," Mawhir said. "His curiosity, intelligence, and kindness stood out immediately. I've relied on him to help other students with labs and assignments since junior year. He is a student-athlete who has juggled three sports, this program, and AP classes at Maryvale while maintaining a high GPA. Alex demonstrates what a young professional should be in academics, sports, and life."

Alex joined the program because he wanted to explore something new and was drawn to electronics. The experience has reinforced his career aspirations.

"After graduation, I plan to attend college and strive for a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering so I can work as an electrical engineer in the future," he said.

From Fingerspelling to Speaking Out: Brayden's Journey

Brayden Lewis has shown remarkable growth and joy at Northtowns Academy. His parents describe him as "truly unstoppable," and his love for learning has opened doors to achievements they once only hoped for. From being mostly nonverbal in 2023, Brayden has progressed to using speech confidently, expressing his thoughts and needs with clarity. He brings contagious joy and humor wherever he goes, delighting in books and especially in characters who break the rules, finding them "absolutely hysterical." His teachers and peers admire his curiosity, determination, and positive energy. Whether he's swinging on the playground or reading his favorite stories, Brayden embraces every moment with enthusiasm. Supported by caring staff like Miss Oldani, whom his family calls "an angel on Earth," Brayden continues to grow in confidence, literacy, and self-expression. Each milestone, big or small, reflects his hard work, resilience, and the joy he brings to those around him.
