Lincoln Elementary School's kindergarteners have invited their families to come help them build and decorate gingerbread houses on Friday. All three kindergarten classrooms, roughly 60 students, will participate.

With the help of their family members, the kindergarteners will take on the role of home decorators and let their imaginations run wild. Instead of paint and rollers, the students and their companions will make and decorate their gingerbread homes with frosting and candies. Families were asked to bring in ingredients before the event and will distribute them equally so that each student gets to have a bag full of goodies to decorate with.

The holiday event gives the students an opportunity to enjoy the company of their classmates and get to know each other's families.
