A FEW THINGS TO NOTE

1. It is recognized that child care is often provided by friends, family, and neighbors (FFN). This type of informal child care arrangement is difficult to count, however there are approximately 756 unlicensed FFN that are known in Stanislaus County because of their participation in various early care and education programs, trainings, and workshops available to the community.

2. Funders drive data that is collected and available to conduct this needs assessment. Given the diversity of programs and funders, estimating supply and demand is more of an art than a science due to the misalignment, fragmentation, and duplication of the various available data sources. The Stanislaus Child Development Local Planning Council continues to work towards developing an assessment that is a true reflection of child care supply, demand, and unmet need in our county.

3. For the most up-to-date information about whether a particular center or family child care home is open, contact the Stanislaus County Child Care Resource & Referral program, at (209) 238-6400 or go to www.findchildcarestanislaus.org to get a list of providers.

ABOUT THE NEEDS ASSESSMENT

The Stanislaus Child Development Local Planning Council

As a result of the passage of California Assembly Bill 1542, local county child care and development planning councils were established with the purpose of providing a forum that identifies the local priorities for child care and the development of policies to meet the needs identified within those priorities.

Sixteen members of each county Local Planning Council are co-selected by the county Board of Supervisors and the county Superintendent of Schools to represent specific categories as outlined in legislation.

As part of the responsibilities of the Stanislaus Child Development Local Planning Council, outlined in California Education Code Section 8499.3 – 8499.7, an assessment of child care needs in Stanislaus County is to be conducted no less than once every five years. This child care needs assessment includes, but is not limited to, the following factors:

Overall Child Care Needs

- Waiting lists for programs funded by the California Department of Education and California Department of Social Services
- Number of children needing child care services by age group
- Supply, demand, cost, and market rates for each category of child care in the county

Migrant Children & Families

- Number of children in migrant agricultural families who move from place to place for work or who are currently dependent for their income on agricultural employment
- Unique needs based on geographic considerations, including rural areas

Economic Factors

- Needs of families eligible (and not eligible) for subsidized child care
- Number of children in families receiving public assistance (SSI), including food stamps (SNAP), housing support, Medi-Cal, and assistance from the Healthy Families program and the Temporary Assistance to Needy Families (TANF) program
- Family income among families with preschool or school age children

High Need / High Risk Children

- Need for child care for children determined by the child protective services agency of being (or at risk of being) neglected, abused, or exploited
- Number of children identified by a regional center or local educational agency as needing services under an Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) or an Individualized Education Program (IEP).
- The number of children in the county by primary language spoken

Based upon the information collected, the Stanislaus Child Development Local Planning Council makes a determination of the child care needs in Stanislaus County for each age group below and develops local priorities for funding by zip code area.

- 0 – 2.11 Years (Infants/Toddlers)
- 3 – 5.11 Years (Preschool)
- 6 – 11.11 Years (School Age)

CURRENT CHALLENGES

Since the 2020 Child Care Needs Assessment: The past five years have been among the most turbulent California and the nation have ever experienced, marked as they were by the COVID-19 pandemic and its aftermath, significant economic and social instability and a rapidly evolving technological landscape. These factors and others have profoundly impacted Stanislaus County early childhood education, the Stanislaus County Office of Education determined while gathering and analyzing data for this Local Child Care Planning Needs Assessment. The process uncovered several new demographic trends and challenges that must be effectively addressed in order to ensure the early childhood education community fulfills its mission of service to Stanislaus County's children and families.

Declining Birth Rates: California Health & Human Services Agency data reveals that the number of children born each year in Stanislaus County continues to drop. The county recorded 6,662 live births in 2023, the most recent year for which data is available. That figure is down 13% from 2015 (7,700 births) and 25% from the peak year of 2007 (8,826 births). The decline reflects a statewide trend driven by California's housing costs, increased access to birth control and larger societal expectations regarding family size.

Growing Transitional Kindergarten (TK) Enrollment: California Department of Education enrollment data shows that 3,439 Stanislaus County children were enrolled in TK programs in 2024-25, a 30% increase from the previous school year. This, too, reflects a statewide trend, as California's initiative to expand Universal Prekindergarten (UPK) has led enrollment to nearly double since 2021. The state has fostered this growth by providing billions of dollars in one-time and ongoing funding to support access, staffing and facilities, and enrollment is expected to jump again in 2025-26 as TK becomes available to all 4-year-olds, with September 1 as the age cut-off date. This growth is not without its challenges, however, as districts struggle to secure facilities and staff adequate to meet the demand while other child care providers report enrollment declines.

Rising Child Care Costs: Quality child care has grown more expensive over the past five years, with estimates showing it consuming a larger portion of household income, increasing families' economic uncertainty. A number of factors have contributed to this, including a post-pandemic inflation that increased prices across the board and made child care centers more expensive to operate; rising labor costs stimulated by a new statewide union contract for child care and preschool providers; and increased demand, as Stanislaus County continues to wrestle with a chronic shortage of qualified providers. Despite the state's best efforts, child care costs will continue to rise as long as the number of affordable slots remains insufficient.

Lingering Impacts of COVID-19: The pandemic is long past, but its effects linger. A University of California, Berkeley report notes that many Stanislaus County providers still grapple with the range of issues that followed in COVID's immediate wake. These include elevated levels of children with challenging behaviors, as well as children whose development lags behind the norm. Providers also report difficulty enrolling children to fill the slots of those families who left their program at the height of the crisis.

Early Childhood Education (ECE) Workforce Challenges: Providers continue to report their greatest challenges are (1) recruiting staff who hold the necessary child development permits and (2) retaining qualified early education teachers who are willing to accept the compensation offered and work the required hours.

CHILD CARE UNMET NEED PRIORITIES

Local Planning Councils (LPC) rank zip codes based on the need for child care and development services to guide the funding of these services. The goal is to ensure equitable access to child care and programs by directing limited state and federal funds to areas with the highest unmet need.

In spring 2025 (May), the LPC submitted approved priorities to the state. Since then, supply has increased - driven by expansion of Transitional Kindergarten and more family child care homes - and demand has shifted. As a result, some priority levels changed. To reflect the latest data, priorities have been unofficially updated in the Fall 2025 (October) columns below. An asterisk (*) indicates the priority has not changed from spring to fall. Priority levels remain subject to change and will be officially reviewed and updated each spring.

Sample How to Read:

> A. The average monthly cost for infant or toddler care at a licensed facility in Stanislaus County is $995.07 per child.

> B. An estimated 807 infants and toddlers require childcare, but no slots are available.

> C. Calculating the total cost:
807 children X $995.07 monthly rate = $803,021.49
This is the estimated amount needed to fill the childcare gap.

DEFINITION OF TERMS

Demand: An estimate of the number of children aged 0-11 living in two-parent homes where both parents are in the labor force, or in single-parent homes where that parent is employed. This does not include parents seeking care for non-work-related reasons, such as stay-at-home parents wanting preschool for educational purposes.

Family Child Care Home: Child care provided in a home by a licensed provider from the California Department of Social Services, Community Care Licensing. Providers can care for a maximum of eight children (small) or fourteen (large). Large family child care homes must meet additional staffing and Fire Marshal requirements.

Family, Friends, and Neighbors (FFN): Care provided by relatives, friends, or neighbors in either the child's or caregiver's home. These providers are generally exempt from licensing and regulations unless they care for children receiving government financial assistance.

Homeless: Refers to children and youths who lack a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence. This includes those sharing housing due to economic hardship, living in motels, shelters, or cars, and migratory children living in inadequate conditions.

Local Planning Council (LPC) Zip Code Priorities: Per Management Bulletin 15-04 for Stanislaus County:

Infant/Toddler & Preschool Programs

- Priority 1: 40% or more and 150+ eligible children underserved
- Priority 2: 25% or more and 75+ eligible children underserved
- Priority 3: All other zip codes

School Age Programs

- Priority 1: 40% or more and 200+ eligible children underserved
- Priority 2: 25% or more and 100+ eligible children underserved
- Priority 3: All other zip codes

Migrant Families: Family units with children where adults engage in farm work, often traveling within or outside the county.

DEFINITION OF TERMS

School Age Program: Programs for school-age youth outside regular school hours, providing a safe environment for extended learning and social skill development. These programs foster partnerships among schools, families, and communities.

State Subsidized Program: Child care or preschool programs available to eligible children in California. Not all programs are statewide; some are free, while others require a parent fee based on a fee schedule.

Supply: The number of available child care slots for children aged 0-11, including licensed centers, family child care homes, and school-age centers on elementary campuses.

Transitional Kindergarten (TK): A free public school program for four-year-old children as part of a 2-year Kindergarten (K) program. TK nor K are compulsory.

Universal Prekindergarten (UPK): Initiatives that provide free or low-cost early care and education for all 3- and 4-year-old children, regardless of their family's income or immigration status. UPK aims to increase access to quality learning experiences before kindergarten by integrating various public and private providers, such as Transitional Kindergarten (TK), California State Preschool Programs (CSPP), Head Start, community-based organizations, and private preschools.

Unmet Need: An estimate of the gap between child care slots (supply) and the number of parents/guardians seeking care (demand). A negative number indicates higher estimated demand than supply.
