

Moor Park Prep School
A year in pictures

A warm welcome from the Headmaster
Brendan Brady

There is nothing extraordinary about the predictable cycle of the seasons, yet it is the way that we have chosen to arrange the images within our 'look book', because nature (and the 'great outdoors' in which our school proudly sits) is intrinsically woven into our day to day life. It is in this 'ordinary' yet magical environment that children learn, grow, heal and thrive - and here at Moor Park, where the magic happens.

As you journey through the seasons in our book I hope you will get a sense of the passage of a child's time at Moor Park. From the fiery autumn hues through the milky winter greys, into the green buds of spring and the bright light of the summer months, nature marks the passage of time and creates enduring memories for our children that will (as we know as adults) be evoked in later life by sensory prompts - the sound of willow against leather, the sight of the house martins returning to nest, or the smell of a freshly cut grass.

It is our hope that the photographs that follow will evidence a school that places 'growing good humans' at the forefront of all that we do. That embraces nature (including every sort of weather), celebrates individuality and promotes a happy childhood in all its muddy, messy, mistake-ridden glory.

We do that by striving to make that ordinary come alive for them, so that (as these photos testify) the extraordinary takes care of itself.
