The 100th Day of School

January 20, 2026

The 100th Day of School is recognized as a meaningful milestone to celebrate students' achievement and progress during the academic year. The purpose of this day is to reinforce reading, writing, and math skills. At Sheridan Elementary, our students participated in various activities that were integrated in their daily instruction that focused on the number 100. Additionally, students were challenged to participate in various 100th Day of School activities. Through creativity and the use of the imagination, several students dressed up as 100-year-olds to reflect on progress and to build math skills. The 100th Day of School signified being over halfway through the school year and provided a chance for creativity, reflection, and motivation for students.
