

AIHS Weekly Announcements

February 1, 2026

WELCOME TO THE 14th NEWSLETTER

As you can see AIHS is blanketed with the "white stuff." Joel, from the church, did a great job of cleaning us out. Not a lot of places to put it, but it is cleared and safe. But we thought the question of the week might be: "What did you do during the storm?"

Senior, Jace Broski worked 40 to 50 hours plowing and shoveling for his dad's company. Exhausted but much richer!!!

Science Teacher, Dan Swansen, spent his Saturday food shopping with his fiance in anticipation of the storm. Sunday he did lots of cooking (and probably watched the Patriots) so he was already fortified for all of the shoveling necessary after when he blizzard stopped.

College Bound!!

One more of our students will be heading off to college next year. Senior, Caden Picard, actually has his choice. He has been accepted at Endicott and UMass Boston...but still waiting for a couple other offers. Caden would like to pursue the field of nursing. His dream is to be an aesthetic nurse.

Teacher Jon Kezer and his wife Rachel, offered their house to anyone who might have lost power. He sent out an invitation to staff of AIHS and AMS inviting them to "Hotel Kezer," providing food and power!!! Luckily no one needed to take him up on that, but everyone was grateful for the offer.

Tamia Artis spent her snowdays catching up on her sleep (that seemed a common activity for many) and then she helped her mom shovel.

Liv Pappas had probably the biggest adventure--she decided that she wanted to drive to work in the middle of the blizzard and slid and got her car stuck in a snowbank. She didn't go to work that day!

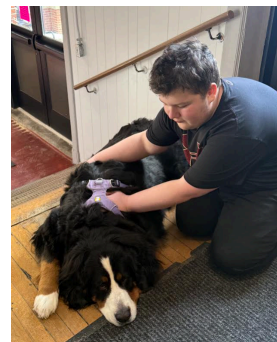

Maddox Nikas turned the snowstorm into an entrepreneurial endeavor. He posted an ad on Facebook and offered his snow shoveling services. Maddox should be a very successful businessman. His ad was well received and he made a lot of money and helped people who really needed the assistance.

Project Time!!

Mythology Project Time brought us:

Hayden McDonald as probably the most formidable, impressive and unrecognizable alter-ego, Odin the All Father

A couple of old friends dropped by for a visit. Former principal, Eryn Maguire brought her pups to say "Hello." Joe was so happy to see them!! He has always had puppy love for Eryn's dogs Cici and Finn!!

On the blustery Friday Morning, Mayor Gove and Superintendent McAndrews came to visit our school and do a walk-thru which they do periodically for all schools.
