The Read to the Final Four Fan Jam will visit Glen Acres Elementary School at 10 a.m. Friday, Oct. 10.

Established to support the NCAA's dedication to education, Read to the Final Four debuted at the 2016 Men's Final Four and has made a significant impact on students nationwide, helping them accumulate an impressive 121 million-plus minutes of reading, according to the website.

Schools, teachers and third-grade students participate in a tournament-style challenge to compete for fun prizes and free books. On Friday, there will also be the presentation of a "Literacy Champion," who will be recognized for going above and beyond to help improve the literacy of Glen Acres students.

Glen Acres is one of 14 schools in Indiana to host this experience. Media coverage is welcome at the event.
