Exterior Design

This place matters: Building is anchored into the unique topography of this property and the landscape is carved into the slope.

Calm and connected: Public facing camput perimeter is ordered and consistent in color to knit into the established neighborhood.

Microclimates: Building form creates unique spaces filled with daylight, shielded from the sun, buffering sound.

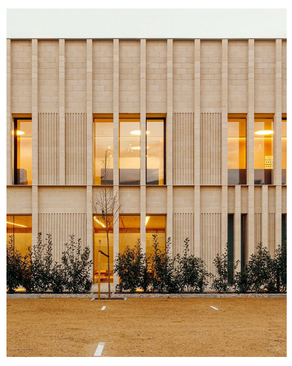

Tactile: Exterior materials embrace multiple textures, engaging the pedestrian and urban scales.

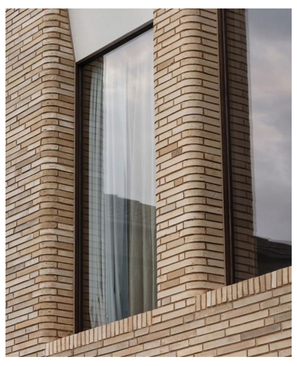

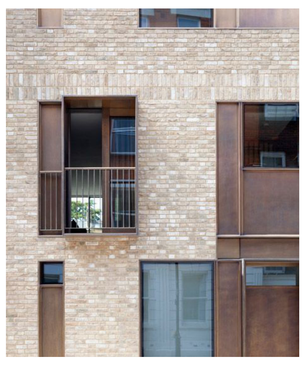

Meaning through color: Brighter colors occur where special activity is revealed inside the building and student life emerges into the landscape.
