 Today's African American History Month, quote comes from Alice Walker who was born February 9, 1944, and is a celebrated American novelist, poet, and activist best known for her landmark 1982 novel The Color Purple, which won the Pulitzer Prize for Fiction and the National Book Award. As a key 20th-century figure, her work explores the, often challenging, experiences of African American women in the rural South. She is a social activist who once said, "The most common way people give up their power is by thinking they don't have any."

 Countdown to Pi Day! Think you've got Pi memorized? Recite the digits on March 12th at lunchtime in the library and earn raffle tickets for every 12 numbers you know! Win an actual pie or earn a spot on our Wall of Fame. Start practicing now and be the next Pi champion!

 Calling all chess players! The first annual freestyle chess tournament is upon us. Yes! Freestyle chess (also known as Fischer Random Chess or Chess 960) will be the theme for our next tourney. This style of chess prevents players from memorizing and playing traps and definitely defines true chess champions. Come sign-up in Room C-6 or with Mr. Mayer.
