One of the most meaningful ways I've volunteered is through the 501st Legion, a nonprofit Star Wars costuming organization that focuses on charity work. Most people see the armor and think it's for fun, but what stands out is the impact we create. I have had the privilege to do this for years and so far, have raised countless dollars for Make-A-Wish, helping create special moments for children facing serious illnesses. Walking into a room dressed as a character isn't about putting on a show, it is about giving families a brief break from their issues. It is about seeing a child smile when they have every reason not to. These moments stick with you and can completely change the mood of a room. Being a part of this reminds me that service is not about being big and dramatic but rather about constant involvement and being in the present.

I have also volunteered in community theatre and have done performances here in La Centerra, which is a completely different but rewarding experience. Theatre brings together people from all ages and backgrounds to work to one goal whether it is behind the scenes or on stage. It truly is remarkable seeing how captivated the audience gets during intense scenes and how young actors gain confidence from being part of this creativity. It builds teamwork, communication skills, and resilience watching growth from rehearsal all the way to the final performance.

Both experiences boil down to the same thing for me, investing time in others around you. Allowing me the privilege to meet families, encourage the youth and give back to the community I am from. Living in Katy and growing up here, everything is connected from schools to families to first responders and volunteers. Strong communities don't happen by accident but rather built by those willing to contribute.

Participated in the KEYS mentorship program, NJROTC as well as the Theatre program in the technical aspect at Seven Lakes High School. These programs helped shape my discipline, teamwork ethic and leadership skills. As a longtime Katy ISD resident and future parent, I am committed to reinvesting my time and energy into strengthening the district. I have seen firsthand the potential of Katy ISD, and I believe we can continue building on that foundation to ensure every student has access to excellence, now and the years ahead.
