Guidance Department FAQs

What is the best way to contact my child's teachers?

Email is the best way to reach your child's teachers. All teacher emails are first initial and last name @mnsd.org. Please call the main office if you need help with an email address.

What can I do if my child is struggling academically?

All teachers offer help classes before or after school for extra assistance. Students should check with each teacher to find out his/her availability.

How do I schedule a meeting with my child's teachers?

We are happy to meet with you to discuss concerns regarding your child. Meetings are typically scheduled with the basic team of teachers including math, ELA, science, social studies, and writing or world language. These meetings take place during school hours. Please contact your child's guidance counselor if you would like to schedule a time to meet.

Parent-teacher conferences are also held in the fall and spring .

How can I arrange for a guidance counselor to meet with my child?

A student who would like to meet with a guidance counselor should stop in the guidance office and sign up on his/her grade level guidance counselor's clip board located next to the counselor's door. Parents/guardians who would like their child to meet with a guidance counselor should email or call the counselor directly with that request. Typically, students are sent passes the following day and we work within their schedule and ours to see them.

Who do I contact for make-up work when my child is sick?

Please have your child check Schoology for missed assignments and have them check in with their teachers when they return.

What can I do if my child is having a conflict/problem with another student?

If on-going peer-related problems are occurring, it is crucial that the school is contacted. Students can report issues to any trusted adult, a teacher, administrator, or guidance counselor. We will work with your child to help resolve the situation. Communication between home and school is vital to making school a safe place and comfortable learning environment.
