

Putting a Morris Catholic Education Within Reach

ENDOWED SCHOLARSHIPS

Belief in Catholic Education

A Morris Catholic high school education is a powerful education. Morris Catholic teaches students to work hard and grow academically, spiritually, and athletically – all preparation for meaningful and rewarding lives.

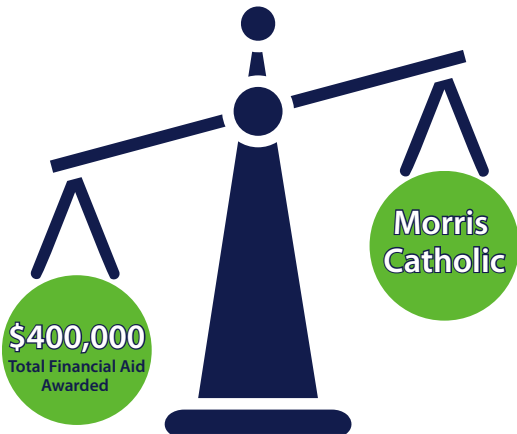

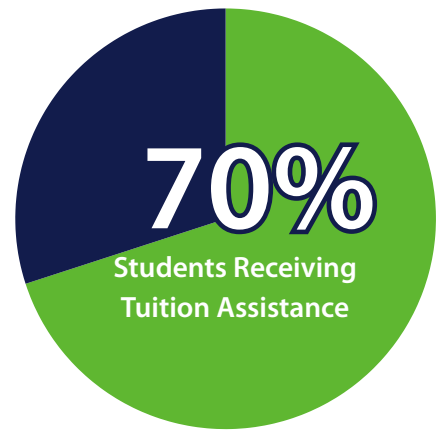

The school has been dedicated to making its high-quality, Catholic high school education affordable since 1957. It's something the school takes great pride in – a moral calling of sorts – but the increasing financial aid needs of families and their students is making it financially challenging to keep a Morris Catholic education accessible to every bright, potential-full student. It's putting the idea of a Morris Catholic education for all at risk.

The Cost and Consequences

70% of Morris Catholic students require financial aid to attend.

Nearly $400,000 of financial aid support is provided annually to students, a significant portion of the school's operating budget. The average financial aid award totals nearly $3,000 per student and, in some cases, the school can't meet the true financial needs of the students. This causes families to consider other schools and negatively impacts Morris Catholic's enrollment efforts.

A Way Forward

To ensure Morris Catholic can meet the needs of students and direct operating funds where they are most critical, Morris Catholic is seeking to create multiple endowed scholarships. These scholarship funds, which are named for the donor, are permanently invested and, once fully established, annual earnings from the funds are used to award financial aid.

Morris Catholic has the goal of establishing 12 endowed scholarships within 12 months.

Endowed scholarships start at $25,000 and have a direct and immediate impact on the life of a student. Donors have the opportunity to meet their scholarship recipient, which makes a gift of this type personal and particularly meaningful.

New endowed scholarships will address the needs of students and sustain the Morris Catholic tradition of providing an affordable Catholic high school education.

With donor support, Morris Catholic will be strengthened and its students good to go.

As I move forward in my journey, I will carry with me the values of this school — striving always to lead with integrity, uplift others, and remain ever grateful for the opportunities I have been given.
