Dear Families,

We recognize how concerning the recent news about the Croft School is for you and your child. Providence Public School District (PPSD) has heard from a number of families and we understand that this news has caused some anxiety and uncertainty for the community including for students, families and educators. As this situation develops, we want to reassure you that the Providence Public School District (PPSD) community is here to support you.

We understand from the calls that we've received that some of you have questions on the registration and enrollment process, as well as questions about specific PPSD schools. We plan on having virtual and in-person events in the coming weeks to answer those questions for you.

Families interested in learning more are encouraged to fill out this Google form and visit our website for additional information. By providing your information in this form, we can notify you when events are scheduled, as well as share answers to frequently asked questions that you may have.

At PPSD, we are committed to providing a high-quality education for every student every day with the help of our dedicated educators. We have tremendous momentum as a system. The District has expanded opportunities for all students, including dual language programs for English and Spanish speakers from elementary through high school fostering bilingualism, biliteracy, cultural competence and high levels of academic achievement through instruction in two languages. In our secondary schools we offer 29 career and technical education (CTE) programs from preengineering and nursing to construction and graphic arts and dual enrollment opportunities at local universities. We have significantly increased access to Advanced Placement courses and our student participation in these rigorous courses reflects the rich diversity of our student body. We are so proud that our students are scoring at levels that lead to college credit. We are also proud that PPSD graduation rates have closed the gap with the state and reflect historic levels.

Our team is prepared to answer questions, assist with enrollment, and help ensure a smooth transition for those considering joining our District.

Sincerely,
Dr. Javier Montañez
Superintendent
