Ms. Silva – “Good evening, everyone. What I would like the public to know is that every month we will have one of our principals discuss the school, it’s status with regard to many areas. So today we have Richard Fastnacht from the Lakewood Middle School who will present to you a picture of what’s taking place at the middle school and some of the initiatives.

Ms. Silva

And every month this will take place, a different principal will come up."

Mr. Fastnacht – "Thank you everybody. We're going to just get set up with the computer. But I first want to start out by saying I appreciate the Board and Ms. Silva for giving me the opportunity to present some of our data. And some of it is not going to paint maybe the most pretty picture about what's happening, but I think this is the first step in the right direction is us, together, as a group, looking at the data, analyzing the data, seeing that there are various differences that we have look at and together growing from it."

Mr. Fastnacht

Ms. Silva – "Sorry, we're having some technical difficulties."

Ms. Silva

Mr. Inzelbuch – "Through Ms. Silva, while we're waiting for the difficulty, we do have members of the public and Mr. Chairman who have signed up to speak. Perhaps we can do that first?"

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Grunhut – "Yes."

Mr. Grunhut

Mr. Inzelbuch – "Can we do that first?"

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Grunhut – "Okay. Why not."

Mr. Grunhut

Mr. Inzelbuch – "Ms. Silva and Mr. Chairman, there are other presentations. Do they require use of the screen?"

Mr. Inzelbuch

Ms. Silva – "Actually, they do."

Ms. Silva

Mr. Inzelbuch – "Okay."

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Grunhut – "Michael, maybe we should start the public presentations."

Mr. Grunhut

Mr. Inzelbuch – "With your permission"

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Grunhut – "Please."

not here right now.”

Mr. Inzelbuch – “Kim Singleton.”

Mr. Inzelbuch

Ms. Singleton – “Bell Industry.”

Ms. Singleton

Mr. Inzelbuch – “I’m going to ask you, Ms. Singleton, at this point, now that we got this.”

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Fastnacht – “So, as I was saying, I think this is the first step in the right direction, us coming together as a group, as a community and looking at some of our data so that we can start working together to take care of some of the deficiencies that we are having.

Mr. Fastnacht

But the first thing I think we need to do is, the only way we’re going to improve our test data and to improve student learning is to truly have a belief that our students can and are able to do it. So to start, I’m going to show you a short video clip. The student that I’m going to show you is from Dallas, Texas.

And the Dallas Texas School District brought this student in on the first day of school to kind of motivate and get the teachers in the right frame of mind.

And I came across this video about four years ago.

And before each school year, I always take a look so I know that I’m in the right frame of mind.

And I shared it with my teachers earlier this year, and thought it was effective, so I want to show it to you now.

(Video shown entitled: “I Believe in Me, Do You?”)

Mr. Fastnacht – “The video goes on a bit longer, and you can see it on YouTube under Dalton Sherman.

Mr. Fastnacht

But I think that the most important piece to this whole this is that we believe that our students can, and we have the belief in our students that they can do anything and create anything and be anything they want to be. And if we don’t have that belief, then it’s going to be very difficult to change some of the data that I’m going to show you. I just wanted to share with you the Lakewood Middle School vision.

Our vision is quite clear and simple, but it has a great impact on the things that we do in our school each and every day. And it’s that Lakewood Middle School is a community of learners that will work together to ensure safety, equity and success for all. so those are the things that we focus on and those are the decisions that our teachers and administration and hopefully our parents and students base all their decisions on is that particular vision.

Now, I just want to go over some of the overall data.

What I have on the top is, I have our Language Arts Literacy scores for 201-2011, and on the bottom I have our math scores for 201-2011. And I think through this whole thing you're going to see some things that we really need to work on, and you're also going to see some things that we have had some success with, and hopefully we can continue with that success. But if you look at language arts in 201, 40 percent of our students were proficiency or gained proficiency based on the NJASK.

So 40 percent of our students passed the test. Okay?

And in 2011, that actual decreased to 38 percent.

So there's about a third or a little more than a third of our students that are receiving proficiency on the NJ ASK.

So that is something on the language arts that we need to continue to work on because, in my opinion, and I think everybody's opinion in this room is that those numbers need to go up. When we look at our math, okay, we were at 34 percent proficiency in 2010, and we actually over this year did show a three percent increase and we increased to 37 percent in math. but that number is still far below where we need to be to make AYP, or where we need to be to make Safe Harbor. And that's what the State is looking at to determine if we are a school that's in need of improvement or a school that is out of the in need of improvement status and being successful. So those are numbers we definitely need to look at. And when you really think about students, those numbers are much too low.

The overall language arts data you could look at again, broken down by grade level, seventh and eighth grade.

There are some good things and some bad things in this picture. We could see some good things first by looking at Eighth grade; 54 percent of our students in eighth grade were proficient. That's good number, and that's a step in the right direction with a five percent increase in the particular grade level. But the thing that we've been most concerned with since I've come on to the middle school last year and then moving into this summer is that we were at 31 percent proficiency in seventh grade and we creased to 25 percent proficiency. So what that's telling us is that only a quarter of our seventh grade students are passing the NJ ASK. That is far too low, and there is an extreme differential between seventh and eighth grade and we're seeing that type of trend. And you're going to see that trend in math as well, which right away send a red flag to us, and I'm sure to everybody in this room, that we have a bit of a struggle in transitioning our students from the elementary school and sixth grade to seventh grade. If you look at it by grade level, okay this is just if we're looking at and following cohorts of students. So if I take our sixth graders that were in 2010, they're the same students as our seventh graders in 2011. So our sixth graders in 2010 at our various elementary schools were at 39 percent proficiency, and we fell to 25 percent proficiency, which is a 14 percent decrease. And if you look at our seventh graders in 2010 to eighth graders in 2011, same cohort of students, they increased by 19 percent. So that is something to really celebrate, that increase in eighth grade. But as you can see, we have seventh grade issue there, and transitioning kids from sixth grade to seventh grade is a major concern of ours. And as a principal of the building, I look at this and say, if I could just keep our kids status quo in seventh grade, think about the gain that we could make as they go into eighth grade. So that is something that we are looking at and something that we are focusing on. And our math data really tells the same story. So it really speaks to, you know, what are we doing to transition our sixth graders into seventh grade? But if you look at our mathematics data, seventh grade in 2010, 28 percent proficiency, and we had six percent increase, 34 percent in 2011. So we made some gains last year in mathematics, and we're hoping that these gains continue. And if you look at eighth grade, a ten percent increase so our eighth grade is having some success. It's our seventh grade that is a bit of a concern for us. And the same thing grade level. And although we had some gains in math, in their sixth grade. It's 61 percent of the overall students were proficient, and we got them and those proficiency levels fell to 4 percent, which is, you know quite stark, that's a 27 percent decrease. And again, in eighth grade those scores went up. So as an administrator looking at the entire picture, that really tells us that we have a seventh grade concern, and the district and Ms. Silva and the Board has seen those things in the past, and that's why we have begun to implement the Sixth Grade Scholar Academy that began last school year to try to transition our students from sixth grade. Every Saturday we had nearly 200 students in our building helping with that transition from sixth grade to seventh grade. And then we also offered the Summer Bridge Program to help transition our students from sixth to seventh. So overall that tells us, you know, where we're at regarding our sixth grade into seventh grade and seventh grade into eighth grade. We have a mission statement that goes a long with our vision statement, which is simple. This, again, our goal that we need to attain and that we want to attain to have a successful school year. That is that the Lakewood Middle School will obtain 52 percent proficiency in language arts and 51 percent in mathematics. So that's our goal. That's nearly a 20 percent increase in both categories. And this will be accomplished through the use of rigorous curriculum, along with the effective presentation of the common instructional framework, which is the framework that we utilize at Lakewood Middle School. So those are our goals. And they seem, you know, maybe to some people unrealistic. So we wanted to make sure that people see how realistic that they are. So we broke it down a little bit, and is it possible. Well for us to reach our goal, we need another 80 students to reach proficiency in language arts, building-wide. That comes to 2.5 students per class. So if our teachers can make a difference in two and-a-half students now, in their classroom, we will reach our goal. And we don't feel that that's necessarily not attainable. And I'm sure every teacher in here and the community members feel that it's attainable as well. It's a lot of work to do, but we can get there." _

Ms. Silva – "If we could arrange for Ms. Stewart to present on the Lakewood High School."

Ms. Silva

Ms. Stewart – "I'm going to be presenting on some of the things that we have been doing since the beginning of the school year. And just a brief thin, year one of the SIG Grant is an implementation year. So we're in the process of purchasing technology and that sort of thing to bring up instruction and student achievement."

Ms. Stewart

Ms. Silva – "It is my understanding that every year the State Education Department requires that we report our violence and vandalism. And to do that, Mrs. Winters will present you the numbers."

Ms. Silva

Ms. Winters – "For vandalism cost of vandalism in 2008-09 cost the district $395.; 2009-10 was $1000.; and last year was $0 spent on vandalism. Last year there were three incidents where the police were notified. Last year 34 incidents where actually police were notified and complaints were filed. Expulsion, there were zero; short-term suspensions were 87; and there were no long0term suspensions of discipline to report."

Ms. Winters – “Suspension is recorded as suspension unattended.”

Also, if I remember in July 25, 3000,000 from this million dollars was already given to textbooks. So are we taking it away from textbooks now? Number three on page 30, X Reports and Recommendations of the Superintendent says "See Attached." New policy but there's nothing attached."

Mr. Inzelbuch

Ms. Kearney – "On page 37, number nine for Supplemental Education Providers, I just have a question. There's a list here. Some of them the names we've heard before. Have we done audits on the ones who have been doing business with us and have these people really provided the services needed to help the students increase performance?"

Ms. Kearney

Mr. Inzelbuch – "Anajay Williams."

Mr. Inzelbuch

Mr. Williams – "The majority of the population here doesn't attend public schools. The actual micro-community is about 5,000 and some change. That would seem to be more along the lines of rural as in a rural district right? And if that 2.5 indicates that we have a 20 percent multiplier we could actually have full credit proficiency at 70 percent if we actually had five students?"

On page 18, 19, and a number of other pages, can somebody tell me why the contracts are from a school bus not to a school?
