EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATOR COMMUNICATOR

About Me

I am a 6th grader at Nathan Hale Middle School in Norwalk Connecticut. I enjoy playing the viola in my school orchestra, reading, writing, movies, and art. I have been playing my instrument for almost 4 years. My favorite subject is social studies because I have always loved learning about different cultures, places, and history. I love to spend time with my friends in and out of school. Struggles I have that I am working on are being braver when talking in front of crowds (I talk a lot with my friends, though), remembering things, and learning more music skills. I enjoy going to the beach in the summer, and I make new friends at summer camp. Even though I enjoy free time in summer, my favorite season is fall because of the foliage in Connecticut.

I am an Effective Communicator when I voice my opinions and use structured arguments when I talk about movies, books, and shows I enjoy. When in a group project, I help my peers agree on choices and compromise. I listen to others ideas, as well as sharing my own, helping to create an equitable environment in class. One reason I enjoy communicating with others is because it can help with so many different things! When you have trouble making a decision, you can ask a friend for advice, or when you need to make a good impression, having an effective conversation can help you be taken seriously. I am a communicator as well. I do talk all the time, but I think being a communicator is not just about using your words. It is about expressing your thoughts, opinions, and feelings through things you love. For some people, it's writing, or art, or music or food. Anyone can be a communicator as long as they put true meaning behind what they create.
