Principal's Message:

Dear Bison Family,

Welcome to the 32nd edition of the 2025-2026 Newsletter.

It seems crazy how fast time has gone this year when you look back on what these students and staff have accomplished. We are already talking graduation and finals!

Seniors and parents of seniors, please work to stay updated on information over the next month and a half. There are a lot of things coming your way. Also, we have a number of senior students who need to focus on grades. Please check those.

HAL MOE GFHS CLASS OF 1929

Hal Moe Acclaimed Best All-Around Athlete Ever Produced by Great Falls High School

Probably the greatest all-around athlete ever to come out of Great Falls High School is Hal Moe, who could play every sport well and proved it many times in high school, college and as a professional.

A four-year letterman at GFHS in football, basketball and track, Moe in his senior year was named on every all-state football team selected in Montana, made all-state in basketball and was one of the high scorers of the Bison track team that won the state title in 1929.

In addition to these three major sports, Moe was an ace catcher in baseball and won handball and boxing titles.

His greatest fame probably came in football. He was a three-year letterman in that sport at Oregon State College, where in his junior and senior years he was chosen on several all-star teams. He went on to play professional football with the Chicago Cardinals, then turned to coaching.

He was considered one of the best blocking backs and linebackers of the country while at Oregon State. Several national sports-writers praised him. One said: "This fellow was the best back in 1931 in the Northwest, bar none."

Another wrote: "When I come to Hal Moe I'm stumped for superlatives. Playing with a mediocre team last year, this young man was the outstanding back of the great Northwest. He's a tough-as-rawhide player, a 60-minute man who plays a slashing game from kickoff whistle to closing gun, never sparing himself."

Oregon, Southern California and

Stanford picked Moe on their all-opponent teams his junior and senior years at Oregon State. He was given three all-America mentions in those years and was picked on several all-Pacific Coast teams, including Pop Warner's all-star eleven.

In a game against Southern California in 1932, Moe was credited with making over half of the Oregon State tackles and was acclaimed as the "greatest football player on the field that day."

Although football and studies allowed little time for track and basketball in college, Moe proved his ability in these sports while at GFHS. He was selected as an all-state guard in basketball his senior year at the state tournament in Bozeman, was one of the high scorers when the Bisons won the state track meet in Missoula in the spring of 1929, and placed fourth in the javelin event at the National Interscholastic Track and Field Meet in Chicago that same year.

Moe did find time in college for handball and boxing. One year he won the college handball championship and another year tied for the heavyweight boxing title.

He turned briefly to professional boxing in the summer of 1933, and his debut was described as "sensational" by Portland sports-writers. Moe knocked out a veteran heavyweight named Dud Plinkith in the first round of their scheduled four-round bout.

He gave up professional boxing for professional football that fall, playing with the Chicago Cardinals of the National Professional Football League.

Moe returned to Oregon State College in 1934 to complete studies for a degree in physical education. He was named freshman coach there in June of that year, and became backfield coach in 1935. He was an assistant coach of the Oregon State team that beat Duke 20-16 in the 1942 Rose Bowl game played at Durham, N.C.

After serving four years as a physical education director for the Navy, Moe became head coach at Portland University in 1946. He resigned in 1949 to become end coach at Oregon State, and in 1952 was named head track coach at OSC. He resigned from this position in July of last year.

Hal Moe Directs Physical Training for Navy Fliers

LT. HAROLD MOE

Navy fliers must be as well trained physically as they are carefully instructed to pilot their planes. They must have endurance for grueling combat, perfect co-ordination and fast reflexes. They must be able to swim away from crashes at sea or to make their way through jungle country if they are forced down on a South Pacific island.

One of the reasons that naval aviation cadets in training at eight Pacific northwest schools are able to "take it" is the command course set up for them by a former Great Falls boy who has been in the navy two years.

Lt. Harold Moe was a three-sport letterman at Great Falls high school and although nearly 20 years have passed his achievements haven't been forgotten.

His mother, Mrs. E. A. Moe, still lives at 1123 Tenth avenue north, as does his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Adams.

Early in 1942, Moe left Oregon State college where he had been varsity backfield coach six years to offer his athletic experience to the navy's sports conditioning program set up by Comdr. Tom Hamilton.

When he appeared at the office of naval officer procurement in Seattle to apply for a commission, the man who interviewed Moe was an old Great Falls friend, Lt. John E. Goggin. It was a surprise meeting for the two football stars. (Goggin played at Villanova.)

Moe was commissioned a lieutenant (junior grade) on April 16, 1942, and went to the naval academy at Annapolis for one month's indoctrination. From there he reported to the pre-flight school at St. Mary's college, Moraga, Calif., as a battalion commander and to be one of the varsity backfield coaches.

War puts many peacetime enemies on the same team Moe found, for his immediate superior at St. Mary's was Lt. Comdr. Tex Oliver, who had been head football coach at the University of Oregon. And Moe's buddy became Lt. Vaughn

Corley, who had assisted Oliver at Oregon.

Moe was promoted March 1, 1943, to lieutenant and the next week he was ordered to Seattle as director of military training and physical education for the naval air primary training command, regional office.

This gave him supervision of the athletic officers and physical condition program at the flight schools situated in Helena, Pocatello, Spokane, Walla Walla, Yakima, Wenatchee, Lewiston and Ontario.

Moe started his athletic career in Great Falls high school on football, basketball and track. He played halfback and fullback on the gridiron, guard in basketball and threw the javelin and ran the dashes in track meets. He was an all-state player in football and basketball his senior year.

In 1929 he went to Oregon State college where he played right half for Coach Paul Schissler and won honorable mention on all-American teams. In 1933 he played a year of professional ball for the Chicago Cardinals and then returned the next fall to Corvallis where he was freshman coach for O.S.C. for two years. He then became varsity backfield coach, a position he held until he joined the navy.

Moe was married in 1935 to Estora Ricks of Portland. They have three children: David, 6; Stephen, 3, and Carol, 1.

Project Abandoned

LIVINGSTON, May 27.—(Special)—Plans for establishment of a community cannery here this summer have been dropped. Sponsors called a general meeting but only a few persons showed interest and the committee felt that the equipment available could be used to better advantage elsewhere.

Harold Moe Plays Thoren in Finals Handball Tourney

Driving the ball so hard that it was almost impossible to find it coming off the front wall, Harold Moe, high school athlete, smashed his way to a straight set victory over his father, Einar Moe, in the semi-finals of the handball association tournament Tuesday afternoon. Harold, guard on the high school basketball team, won the first game from his father by 21-17. The second game was closer, with son beating out father by one point, 21-20. Harold plays G. C. Thoren, state champion, for the tournament championship now. Date for the titular match has not been set.

Hal Moe Wins First Ring Bout by Kayo

PORTLAND, Ore., July 7.—(U.P.)—Hal Moe, former Oregon State college halfback and a resident of Great Falls, Mont., made a colorful debut in the professional ring when he sent Dud Plinkith of Portland to the canvas for the count with a haymaker in the first round of their bout "o-night. The bout was scheduled for four rounds. Moe had engaged in amateur boxing in college but this was his first start in the professional game. He weighed 171 pounds, two more than his rival.

Bobcats Battle Portland Eleven At 8 This Evening

Pilots Boast Strong Array Of Football Talent for Tilt

Football activity continues its dizzy pace tonight as Great Falls goes "collegiate" to stage a game between Montana State college and Portland university at 8 under the lights of Memorial stadium.

The game, sponsored by the Downtown Quarterbacks club, is the first college grid show here since 1937 and the sideline dope points to a wide open battle of trick plays and passes between two evenly matched rivals. Both the Montana State Bobcats and the Portland Pilots have lost to bigger teams this season, but both have come a long way since September and now have fast and clever aggregations.

Coach Hal Moe and his Portland squad arrived here Friday afternoon from the coast and immediately went into a brisk workout at Memorial stadium. The Pilots found the solid, although still slippery from Friday morning's snowfall.

Cats Stage Drill

Coach Clyde Carpenter brought his Montana State Cats here late Friday afternoon and also took a brief whirl on the local gridiron. Both teams are in topflight condition, although a halfback from each club is ailing. Bobcat Adam Marshall is out with a dislocated shoulder, while Pilot Jack Ford still limps from an injured ankle.

Another banner crowd, such as that which was on hand Friday night for the Great Falls-Butte prep classic, is expected to jam the stadium tonight. Hundreds of fans from all parts of Montana have journeyed here for this college conflict. Montana State's band, led by Lou Howard, will make its appearance. Halftime ceremonies will feature music and crowning of the "Queen of the Quarterbacks."

Ex-Bison Star

Montana State will rely on the hard running of Halfback Bill Nelson and plunging of Fullback Red Brooks for ground gaining chores, while the passing ability of Bud Seelinger. Gene Bourdet and Davey Smith furnish a potent weapon. Seelinger is the former Great Falls Bison who later starred at Wisconsin. Bourdet is the California Comet and Smith is another ex-Bison.

Montana also will have Mink Miles, the former all-star from Anacosta; Johnny Hein, the Billings bruiser; Mark Hampton, a fine kicker, and Bill Zupan of Sand Coulee for backfield duty.

The Bobcats likely will field a heavier line as several hefties decorate the Blue and Gold's forward wall. Dick Ball, 220, is at guard and he'll captain the Cats. The ends are McCormick, 195, and Jack Perrigo, 195. Tackles are Len Larson, 220, and John McClellan, 243. Ball, 195, and Chuck Masten, 215, are at guards, and Bill Boston, 195, is at center.

The starting Bobcat backfield may shape up with Brooks, 212, Nelson, 185, O'Loughlin, 170, and Seelinger, 165.

Portland's hope lies in its tricky backfield which likely will start with Fullback Gale Emmons, 195, Charlie Liu, 180, Pat Sweeney, 170, and Ted Szela, 200. Other Pilot backs sure to see action are Lacey, Rochon, Durham and Biggs.

Portland Line

Portland's probable starting line will consist of Owens at center, Parrish and Hickman at guards, Bell and Johnston at tackles and Troy and Oberweiser at ends.

Pat Sweeney is one of the nation's best passers. Troy and Oberweiser are ends. The game is marked by the appearance of Clyde Carpenter, Hal Moe and Kenny Dow, all known in Great Falls and northwest grid circles. Moe and Dow (Bobcat assistant coach) played for the Bisons, while Carpenter is remembered for his state champion Billings prep teams.

Of special interest to Great Falls fans is the fact that eight Great Falls boys decorate the Montana State college roster.

Officials tonight will be John Good (Montana Mines), referee; Bill Hodges (Montana university), umpire; Kenneth Fowell (Montana university), head linesman, and Tony Dalich (Montana Mines), field judge.

HAL MOE
GFHS CLASS OF 1929

Harold Moe Leader of Oregon Staters in Grid Campaign

Harold Moe, one of the best known athletes ever turned out in Great Falls, is captain of the Oregon State college football team this season. Moe is being widely praised by gridiron experts as the season starts. He rated a quarter page picture in the illustrated football annual put out by a nationally known magazine firm.

Wilton Hazzard, writing in the annual, says, "This fellow was the best back (in 1931) in the northwest, bar none. Moe is a dazzling runner as well as an extraordinary all-around player. Hard as nails, possessed of a spirit that carried him forward when there wasn't much but spirit left, he is the kind of a player coaches rave about."

Braven L. Dyer, writing about western football in particular, joins in the praises. He says, "When I come to Hal Moe I'm stumped for superlatives. Playing with a mediocre team last year, this young man was the outstanding back of the great northwest. He's a tough-as-rawhide player, a 60-minute man who plays a slashing game from kickoff whistle to closing gun, never sparing himself. As a builder of team spirit he needs bow to no one."
