MRS. LINDSAY

Hello hello! My name is Mrs. Lindsay, and I am so excited to teach your kiddo!

To help you get to know me a bit better, here's a little about me. I grew up here in Wyoming and came back as soon as I could after college. I love Wyoming's pace of life and exploring the beautiful nature that surrounds us. My family and I take every chance we can to go fishing, and we love camping as much as possible during the summer.

When we're home together, we enjoy playing board games, watching good shows, and baking. Being a mom is truly one of my greatest joys.

I earned my Bachelor's Degree in Family Studies from Brigham Young University, and later completed a program to earn my teaching certification. I would love to be a school counselor one day, and I recently started a master's program for that. I am also a mom to two sweet preschoolers of my own, and I absolutely adore this age group. I love making learning fun, being silly, and hearing the joyful giggles that fill our classroom.

As a preschool teacher and as a parent to kids this age, I know that the most important things are that the kids are safe, that they're having fun, and that they're learning in so many different ways. We do a lot of art projects to build their fine motor skills and let their natural creativity flow! We also do a lot of hands-on activities to make learning concrete and fun. Kids this age soak up information like a sponge, and I am intentional about fostering their love for learning in all of our activities.

Please feel free to reach out to me on ParentSquare or by email at dillreel@sw1.k12.wy.us with any questions, concerns, or positive learning experiences you'd like to share. I truly value your support as we work together to help your child learn and grow.
