CHRIS HENN

Chief Probation Officer

Occasionally individuals make decisions that lead them down a path which brings them to the attention of law enforcement and the courts in a negative way.

ReDirect is intended to provide avenues for an informed choice. Details about the systems and resources available, as well as the consequences, will be provided. It is a time for both parents and minors to sit together and reflect on their lives.

It is hoped that the information will open a window into self understanding and personal growth which will change the decisions being made and alter the individual's life choices and direction.

It is our desire to reduce gang membership, teen pregnancy, school drop-out rates, abuse and substance abuse, by getting parents more engaged in the lives of their children.

However our emphasis is on moving youth to accept responsibility for their own behavior, respect authority and be able to work within prescribed roles and boundaries so that they choose a more positive lifestyle

Goals

- Keep kids out of the criminal justice system
- Empower parents to be more effective as parents
- To inform parents and children as to their rights and responsibilities as citizens and families in the courts and justice system
- To inform parents as to services available to families in this community
