Dear Parents and Carers,

Important Announcement from the Headteacher

I hope you all enjoyed the Easter break with your families.

I am writing to let you know that I will be leaving my role as headteacher at the end of this academic year. After a great deal of careful thought, I have decided to take up a role with Ofsted that focuses on supporting and improving schools across the south east of England. I will be starting this new role from September.

Throughout the past six years that I have been headteacher at Colnbrook, it has been a privilege to work alongside such dedicated staff, governors, pupils and families. Together, we have strengthened teaching and learning, enriched the curriculum, and nurtured a caring and inclusive school community that lives out our vision to "be strong and courageous." Colnbrook is a happy and successful school, and I am proud of the culture, relationships and sense of belonging we have built together.

Leading Colnbrook as headteacher has been both challenging and deeply rewarding, and it is a role that I have given my whole heart to. The school is in a strong position, and I am confident that it is well prepared to continue to grow and develop successfully under new leadership.

Over the coming term, I will be working closely with the Trust and governors to ensure that there is a smooth transition to a new headteacher who will start in September, and further communication will follow once plans are finalised.

In the meantime, my focus will remain on leading the school for the rest of this academic year and I look forward to working with you to ensure that this year is another successful one.

Yours sincerely,

Mr. T. Brunson
Headteacher
