

Felicia Vargas, Curriculum and Instruction Lead, is a native New Mexican and proud product of Albuquerque's South Valley community. She brings more than 12 years of experience working with high school students and is deeply committed to fostering equitable, culturally responsive learning environments that honor the identities, values, and strengths of every student she serves.

Ms. Vargas holds a Level 2 New Mexico Teaching License with an endorsement in Social Science and an additional license in Special Education. Her dedication to educational equity and student advocacy was recognized in 2023 when she was named a Golden Apple Award Finalist. She is currently pursuing a Master's degree in Educational Leadership, furthering her capacity to lead curriculum development and instructional excellence across the school community.

In her role as Curriculum and Instruction Lead, Ms. Vargas works to ensure that instructional practices and learning materials reflect the culture, values, and lived experiences of students and their families. She believes that empowering students begins with seeing and affirming who they are and where they come from — a philosophy that guides both her leadership and her ongoing commitment to educational equity.
