What do you actually have to say

I am writing an essay on what I believe our city will be like in the year 2026. I will voice my opinions on such topics as transportation, education, energy, laws and government, recreation and sports, religion, housing, and a community description.

In 50 years from now, I believe the transportation of our city will be slightly different from how it is now. The people of Michigan City will still be driving cars, but they will be different from ours in 1976. The cars will be very modern and have a variety of shapes and colors, mostly foreign and small.

The cars will no longer depend on gas to run, and every car will have a filter to cut down on air pollution.

Education will be more complicated than it is now. Though schools will be larger and more plentiful, classes will still be crowded and schools will still be too small. The students will learn more quickly for they will have learned more difficult things earlier in their lives than we have. What they learn will be of great importance in their future lives. The Metric System will have long been used and the system we use now will be rarely used, if at all. Sex Education, which is a conflict today, will be in use along with many other liberal courses.

The Laws and Government will be very different from ours today. The laws will be much more lenient, and the government will be less powerful. I don't believe we will be under Communist power because we have too strong of a Country, State, and City.

They will more than likely be using solar Energy as well as hydro-electric. Most people will have electric stoves and gas stoves will rarely be seen. Rays and means of power will have been by far perfected.

Religion will still be free and of one's own choice. Churches and temples will, as now, be highly regarded. Different types of religion will have come into use. Devil worshipping will be practiced but not by the majority.

Sports and Recreation will be close to ours, but in some ways will differ. Sports will be the same basically, but sports just now becoming popular, will be the most popular. Recreation will be spent less leisurely and will be more strenuous and provide more exercise.

Housing will be a little like ours but more luxuries will be included, and homes will be larger and more expensive. Many will have a bathroom to each person living there.

Michigan City's community will hold great beauty and be much cleaner than today. Laws such as littering will be enforced and will make the community more beautiful. At this time more people will care and live according to legitimate standards.
