

TEACHER APPRECIATION

Good morning, good evening, or even good night, good whatever time you're reading this. Thank you, teachers for everything. For dealing with the students, for teaching us, for being patient, for listening, for being yourself, and for everything overall. I know maybe you hear this a lot when you get a compliment, but you truly are amazing in everything you do. You teachers could be the reason someone smiles or picks up a book without knowing. So thank you for doing everything even when you don't know. You are all truly one of a kind, and I hope you know that, and that there is never a day when you don't smile. Thank you and happy teacher appreciation week.

SHORT STORY

In an ocean, very far from where you stand, lives a beautiful coral reef, home to many animals. One of the sea animal's names was, the great FISHGUY!!!! Or just Fishguy. All of his friends had such unimaginative names. Coral, Shelly, Shelldon, and Frank. SO unimaginative. Fishguy was the best name in the world of names. Or, SEA of names.

Shelly and Sheldon were siblings, and lived in shells, Coral lived in the Coral and Frank lived in Frank, for his egg wasn't born yet. Fishguy lived in an ancient rocketship ruin. All the fish never knew what humans looked like, so they all supposed that all rocket ships looked like that... the "ancient rocketship ruin" was only enough to hold 4 small fish. As humans we know that a rocket ship is HUGE. Way more than enough to hold 4 small fish. So a tiny rocket ship is very unnatural.

"I'll start this baby up!!" exclaimed Fishguy, as he turned up the notches for the rocket ship. "To space!!" he exclaimed. However, for how "ancient" it was, it did not start up. "Darn it! Bubbles with guppies dang it!" He said furiously.

"It was the sea witch, who lives on the lower end." sighed his grandma. "She made you fail... because you didn't say goodbye!" Fishguy was 21, and his mother died from a poisonous jellyfish when Fishguy was a baby. However he definitely remembered the tragic moment.

He said his goodbye to his grandma and started his rocket again. It sputtered, and died down again. Coral, Shelly, Sheldon, and even Frank, cheered him on. Fishguy yelled, "Would any of you like to help?" he shouted into the sea.

Everyone came to help Fishguy, for he had a good reputation. They spent hours trying to fix the ruin. "Why are we helping you if we won't even get to ride too?" Sheldon asked.

"It can only fit four people. I don't want anyone to feel left out. Plus, I just calculated the weight for myself." Fishguy said calmly.

"Preposterous!" they exclaimed.

"You greedy little fish!" but despite how they felt, they still helped him. About 3 hours later, The ship was complete. Then he started up the ship. But just then, he got scooped up and the ship was carried up with him too.
