

Historic North Hall Reimagined at Bolles Bartram Campus

A rendering depicts the Alban Arts and Innovation Center planned for the Bolles Middle School Bartram Campus.

A lead gift from Bree Ringhaver Alban and David Alban is facilitating a $4 million renovation of the Alban Arts and Innovation Center at the Bolles Middle School Bartram Campus.

This project will reimagine the existing space, bringing significant updates to the historic North Hall – the former home of the girls’ boarding program and one of the original buildings on the campus during its time as the Bartram School for Girls.

As the Alban Arts and Innovation Center, the planned space will feature dedicated areas for art, band and chorus programs along with a state-of-the-art lab to support the school’s commitment to innovation across campuses and departments.

“Renovating North Hall into the Alban Arts and Innovation Center allows us to honor Bolles’ history while investing in what lies ahead,” Bolles President and Head of School Tyler Hodges said. “We are grateful to the Alban family for their leadership and belief in the power of arts and innovation to shape confident, creative learners.”