Principal's Pen:

Our year is quickly ending, and students who are in danger of failing are running out of time. If your child is in this situation, it is vital you contact your child's teacher as soon as possible. If your child is on the verge of meeting his or her academic or behavioral goals, kudos to you, parents! 😊

Reading Corner: Summer means relaxation and fun. It is a time for children and families to spend time together and recharge. What better way to spend time together than to read together? Examples of easy activities you can do at home are listed below.

- *Trade books with families in your neighborhood to increase the number of books read.
- *Write stories together and read them as a family.
- *Read books that have movies to go along with them and watch the movie afterwards. Compare the two stories.

Math Matters: Summer snacks are yummy and present an opportunity for learning. Ice cream truck, snowballs, hot dogs at the park, etc. all are the perfect time to talk about the value of coins and dollar bills. Swimming, bike riding, and baseball are all activities in which you can include practice with time and elapsed time. If parents are really invested in teaching their children life skills, the free opportunities are everywhere.
