

Get an Upper Arlington Public Library Card for Your Student — It's Easy, Free, and Full of Possibility

Did you know that teachers often use public library resources to enrich classroom learning? From research projects to reading challenges, the library can be a powerful extension of your student's education.

With an Upper Arlington Public library card, your child can access:

- A world of books - print, eBooks, and audiobooks
- Trusted research databases for school assignments

And the best part? The library can deliver the card directly to your student's school.

It's simple:

- 1) Fill out the short application at <https://www.ualibrary.org/library-card-application/> (must be completed by the parent or legal guardian)
- 2) If you prefer to get an e-card only (no access to print materials), be sure to check that box at the top of the application.
- 3) If you would like to have the card delivered to your child's school, check the box that says "I am currently a student at a UA school" and in the drop down box, select the appropriate school building for your student. Check the box underneath that indicates you would like to have the card delivered to your child's school building and given to them during the school day.
- 4) If you prefer to bring your student to the library to get a library card, simply fill out the application online and go to any UAPL branch with your child and your photo ID.
- 5) If you select delivery of the card to a school building, the card will typically be delivered within the next one-two weeks.

Use Your Upper Arlington Public Library Card to Check out Materials on the UAPL App

The Upper Arlington Public Library app is now available in the Jamf student portal on UA Schools iPads. Students are encouraged to have a library card and use the app to save their card number and PIN. This makes it easy for students to check out books using the self-checkout feature. Students can also place holds, manage items checked out on their card, and access research tools.

A library card is an easy way to support your child's learning all year long. Sign up today and open the door to more resources, more curiosity, and more growth.
