CANVAS DATA BREACH UPDATE

WSISD's Learning Management System, Canvas, experienced a data breach last night. First, it's important to note that WSISD does not store any personally identifiable information in Canvas (i.e. social security numbers, date of birth).

Currently, Canvas grades may not be syncing into Skyward as our technology team actively works to safely restore connection from Canvas to Skyward/Gradebook. All information WSISD has received from both Canvas and Skyward indicates that district data remains secure. However, Skyward has advised districts not to reconnect Canvas integrations until further notice.

Instructure (the parent company of Canvas) provided the following communication regarding the incident: On April 29, 2026, we detected unauthorized activity in Canvas. We immediately revoked the unauthorized party's access, started an investigation, and engaged outside forensic experts.

On May 7, 2026, we identified additional unauthorized activity tied to the same incident. The unauthorized actor made changes to pages that appeared when some students and teachers logged in through Canvas. Out of caution, we temporarily took Canvas offline into maintenance mode to contain the activity, investigate, and apply additional safeguards.

We have since confirmed that the unauthorized actor carried out this activity by exploiting an issue related to Free-For-Teacher accounts. This is the same issue that led to the unauthorized access the prior week. As a result, we made the difficult decision to temporarily shut down Free-For-Teacher accounts.

* NOTE: WSISD does not have Free-For-Teacher accounts.

If WSISD receives additional information from Instructure regarding any data that was breached in WSISD, the district will send communication to our families.
