Who we are

"...nearly 90% of families will be responsible for more than $20,000 in medical transportation expenses..."

Every year, more than 100 Million Americans face a medical emergency that requires either ground or air ambulance services to access their nearest hospital. In nearly all of these cases, families believe that their health plans and other insurance will protect them from the staggering out-of-pocket costs associated with even the most basic medical transportation. However, in reality, nearly 90% of families will be responsible for more than $20,000 in medical transportation expenses resulting from deductibles and copayments, network limits, provider restrictions, or other partial or complete insurance denials.

When those transportation bills inevitably arrive, the questions begin: 'How will we pay for this?' According to recent Federal Reserve studies, more than 60% of households do not have an emergency fund of $400 or more -- not even enough to cover just 2% of the cost of medical transportation, much less the resulting medical

I already have health insurance, so why do I need EVACU?

While health insurance is intended to prevent your family from facing catastrophic financial harm, even the best plans leave you exposed to thousands of dollars in out-of-pocket costs.

According to CNN, the average family in the United States has a deductible of more than $10,000 and a maximum out-of-pocket cost of nearly $17,000. While, at the same time, more than 60% of Americans do not have an emergency fund to cover even $400 of these costs.

Additionally, your family could be even more exposed if your insurance carrier determines your services were “out-of-network” or not medically necessary.

We eliminate all out-of-pocket costs, regardless of where you are or who picks you up.

Deductibles and copayments aren't your only exposure

Out-of- Network Charges

Of the more than 30,000 ambulance providers throughout the nation, nearly 90% are out-of-network, resulting in up to double the deductible and copayment requirement.

Usual and Customer Charges

Most insurance plans only cover those charges which they deem to be both “usual and customary” and deny any care-related charges that exceed scheduled care.

Medically Necessary Care

Insurance carriers may question the “medical necessity” of your transportation and care, and may reduce or deny coverage after the fact if they deem it unnecessary.

Reasonable Reimbursement Rate

Reimbursement for your transportation and care is limited to “reasonable rate” for those services, considering the regional standards, possibly exposing you to the balance.
