Summer Homework

Summertime is here! Continuing to engage the brain and to read throughout the summer is a very important part of your child's education! We know young people experience learning losses when they do not engage in educational activities over an extended period of time. We believe in the importance of children being "children" and enjoying the carefree summer months, but we also do not want them to regress on important skills for reading and math.

To combat this loss, we have weekly math and language arts assignments through IXL. You should find that these activities take an average of 60 minutes per week. There is also a reading log attached. There are great online resources available where your child can read.

A few of those websites are:
Epic- https://www.getepic.com/sign-in
United for Literacy - https://www.uniteforliteracy.com/
Storyline - https://storylineonline.net/

Your child's login information for Epic! and IXL are provided in this packet.

Have a wonderful summer with your families!

Summer Reading Log

Please have your child read 30 minutes per day and record on this log.
