

America is: Out of one, Many.

Every day I go outside, I see a melting pot of literally everything, whether it be cultures, religions, personalities, or anything else. And because of all these things, the people of this country are also diverse in abilities and backgrounds. Each new generation of Americans is unique and diverse, and that is why, even though America is out of many, one, it is also, out of one, many.