Questions:

1. Q: Your account is currently aligned with a specific cooperative contract, so those terms and conditions apply from our perspective. Unfortunately, there are portions of your bid packet language that we cannot accept as written and would require revision for us to move forward. Therefore, are you open to revising to other mutually agreed upon language, or an alternate proposal?

   A: Bidders may elect, at their discretion, to provide pricing under an applicable cooperative purchasing agreement. However, if pricing is provided under such an agreement, the bidder is advised that the terms contained in the bid documents will take precedence over terms contained in such an agreement.

   While bidders can submit a bid response which contains a conditional offer, or which proposes alternative contract language, please keep in mind that, per the Instructions to Bidders (sections 6 and 11), such bids may be rejected. The bid documents reflect the necessary requirements for this solicitation, and bidders should respond to the requirements as described.
