Website Update

- ADA updates are live. There has been some upset/traction on lunch PDFs not being available - This is the response I got "The temporary removal of our traditional menu format was necessary to meet updated, federally mandated ADA compliance standards. In order to align with these requirements and ensure our information is accessible to all users, adjustments to how menus are presented and accessed were required. We apologize for the abrupt change, but it was necessary to ensure our website remains in compliance with these new standards. Once ADA-compliant menus are fully implemented on our website, printable menu options will return for families who wish to use them. In addition, the website will direct individuals who may need further accommodations or have specific questions about menu information to contact our Food Service team for support. We understand this is a change from what many families are used to, and we appreciate your understanding as we work to provide information in a more inclusive and accessible way for everyone."
- If you need assistance locating menu information or would like it provided in an alternative format, please feel free to contact us at info@wlcsd.org.
- That to say that the April PDF is back on the website, but I am not sure that they are aware based on this message. I'm confident they will find a way to make an ADA Compliant PDF, it is possible.

Event Updates/Recap

- Variety Show Recap- Katie
 - Touchy because blew the sound system
 - Mike at Enviroclean was the hero and got it fixed at 6:30 AM
