ANGEL DRIVE

The Angel Drive was an event run by STUCO throughout the week, culminating in the big day on December 20, 2025. It allowed the students to be able to freely donate to orphans who were shown as angels on a tree in the front office. It allowed students to give out to these orphans, buying things, wrapping them, and giving to these orphans.

The orphans were happy to welcome us, and the members enjoyed the experience. The drive was a great success, and the children were overjoyed to receive their gifts. Thank you to all the students who participated.

JINGLE AND JOY ART FESTIVAL

Our school buzzed with festive energy on the occasion of Jingles and Joy, a celebration which offered an opportunity for students, teachers, and parents to come together for an afternoon of music, dance, and art. The event highlighted the vast talent within all grades and created a fun, warm, and cheerful atmosphere for all who was there.

In addition to the performances, families and guests were invited to attend an art exhibit of work done by students from all grades. This provided another great way for families to view, appreciate, and value the hard work of our young artists and to bring yet another visual component to the celebration.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Coming back to AISOY was exciting. I was eager to see my friends, but unfortunately, only 7 of them came. The rest were either sick or still on holidays. It was kind of crazy because the other classes in elementary were full, and everyone had their friends. During break time, we played soccer. Next, we had French, when the teacher gave us clues and had us guess what animal she was talking about. I guessed all 6 correctly which made my teacher and friends very proud of me.

Similarly to students, the return from holiday has its challenges - you go from enjoying time with loved ones, eating, sleeping, and postponing work you definitely were planning on doing, to waking up at 6 am daily, and having to face the consequences of said postponed work.

But as difficult as it is to transition from holiday to work mindset, I still enjoy returning to my classroom. I'm lucky enough to enjoy the work that I do as a teacher, and one aspect that has made it easier to return to school, has been the regular positive interactions with my students.
