

Participant Accommodations Overview: Self Care Needs

Parkway-Rockwood Community Ed program participants should be able to primarily meet their own activities of daily living needs during program participation, including feeding, toileting, dressing, and other personal care tasks.

Reasonable accommodations and modifications may be implemented to support participants in accessing programs and activities. Support strategies will be reviewed and coordinated on a case-by-case basis based on the individual needs of the participant and the structure of the program.

If a participant requires personal self-care supplies during program time, these items must be provided by the participant's family and brought each day the participant attends the program. Examples of personal care supplies may include, but are not limited to:

- Disposable undergarments/diapers
- Wipes
- A change of clothing
- Specific food or drink items
- Adaptive eating utensils
- Other personal care materials or supports

If a participant experiences a bathroom-related incident and does not have the necessary personal care materials available (such as disposable undergarments, wipes, a change of clothing, or other required supplies), a parent/guardian will be contacted and asked to pick up the participant for the remainder of the program session.

In addition, if a participant experiences more than one bathroom-related incident resulting in soiled clothing during a single program session, a parent/guardian may be contacted and asked to pick up the participant for the remainder of the session. Please note that procedures and expectations may vary for extended-length programs, travel programs, field trips, or other specialty program formats based on the nature and duration of the activity.

Our goal is to work collaboratively with families to support positive, safe, and successful experiences for all participants.
