

Grading

Seton Catholic uses a semester-grading system. Quarterly progress reports will be given to indicate performance halfway through the semester.

Students take semester exams in each subject. Semester exams could make up to 10% of the semester grade. Specific requirements from individual teachers will be given to the students at the beginning of the semester or school year.

Each semester, a student may drop a class and add a new class up until the end of the second week. To drop/add a class, a student must provide written approval to the school counselor from a parent/guardian and the classroom teacher.

In addition, a teacher may initiate a student dropping/adding a class up through the fourth week of the semester. The classroom teacher will provide the school counselor with written approval from a parent/guardian and the student.

Academic Honor Code

In keeping with the mission statement of Seton Catholic, administrators and teachers strive to promote an atmosphere of academic integrity. In order to do so, Seton has an academic honor code. Students are expected to approach their academic work with the utmost care and integrity. Plagiarism, cheating, fabrication, obtaining an unfair advantage, aiding/abetting dishonesty, falsifying records, or official documents, obtaining unauthorized access to records or systems, and other kinds of academic misinterpretation are regarded as serious breaches of conduct. Each case is treated individually and with the potential for learning in mind.
