FROM THE ARCHIVES

In the summer of 1922, Peter Gow started a summer school for boys who were having difficulty in their studies. The boys slept in tents on what is now the ski hill. A building was erected with screen sides. Under this, the boys ate their meals and had some classes; however, most classes were held outside.

In 1926, Mr. Gow extended the summer school to a small boarding school. The first permanent building was the Main Building, which originally was a barn situated behind the Gow House about 50 yards from the Creek.

DID YOU KNOW?

The Gow School Summer Program was started in 1990, as a way to blend the best of a summer learning program with the fund of a summer camp. More than 30 years later, the program continues to be the best of both worlds and a wonderful way to introduce families to Gow.
