Dear Families,

As part of a new California law (Education Code Section 53008), all public schools are required to assess students in kindergarten through second grade for early reading skills at least once each year and to notify parents of results within 45 days of administration. These screenings help schools monitor student progress, identify areas where additional support may be needed, and ensure every child is developing strong foundational literacy skills.

It is important to note that this is not a diagnostic assessment. Rather, it is a tool educators use to better understand student needs and to plan instruction and support that promote continued reading growth.

Fresno Unified School District recently completed this annual screening, and you can now access your child's results in the Parent Portal. If you need assistance accessing Parent Portal, please contact your school office.

Our district uses mCLASS with DIBELS, research validated assessment approved by the California Department of Education. Depending on the grade level, the screener measures several essential early literacy skills, including:

- Alphabetic Knowledge: Familiarity with the names, sounds, and common patterns of letters
- Phonemic Awareness: Understanding of the individual sounds in spoken language
- Word/Passage Reading: Accurate and fluent reading of words and connected text
- Reading Comprehension: Ability to understand, interpret, and make meaning from text
- Rapid Automatized Naming: Ability to quickly name familiar items, letters, or objects presented repeatedly

Your child's results will indicate whether their current skills are above benchmark, at benchmark, below benchmark, or well below benchmark. It is important to note that one screening is not sufficient for determining a child's overall reading abilities. If screening results indicate a potential risk for reading difficulties, schools use this information, together with classroom observations, teacher input, and instructional data, to support learning. Support may include targeted classroom instruction, small-group support, progress monitoring, or additional assessments as appropriate.

Screening results alone do not lead to diagnosis or placement decisions. Results are used to inform instruction and support learning and are not used for grades, retention, or special education eligibility.

Each school has support structures designed to meet the unique needs of its students. Your child's teacher is the best first resource for understanding the screening results and what support is available at your child's school.

Early literacy development is a critical foundation for long-term academic success. We value our partnership with families and appreciate your continued support for your child's learning.

Understanding Multilingual Program Options

There are numerous ways a student can develop multilingualism in school. Explore different options and choice points. Keep in mind that real-life programs may sometimes be a blend of different models, due to available resources or local enrollment patterns.

Two-Way Dual Language Immersion

These programs include a balanced mix of English speakers and students who speak the partner language. Instruction happens in both languages, with the goal of full biliteracy. Students learn from each other while building language skills and cross-cultural understanding.

One-Way Dual Language Immersion

In these programs, students share the same home language. Instruction is in two languages, with the goal of developing biliteracy. Some programs serve English learners building on their home language ("Developmental Bilingual" programs), while others serve English speakers learning a new language together.

Heritage Language Programs

These programs serve students who have a cultural connection to a language and may already have some experience with it. Instruction focuses on strengthening reading, writing, speaking, and cultural knowledge. Indigenous language programs are one example.

Transitional Bilingual Programs

These programs, also called "early exit programs," support English learners and provide instruction in the home language for a limited time (1-3 years). Instruction gradually shifts to English-only. The primary goal is English proficiency, not biliteracy.

World Languages, Community & Enrichment Programs

If dual-language programs are not available locally, students can still build language skills through world-language classes, afterschool enrichment programs, or community-based programs. These programs might not lead to full biliteracy, but can still support language learning as well as cultural connection.

Program Type	Main Goals	Who is Typically in the Program?	What Does it Look Like?	Something to Consider
Two-Way Dual Immersion	Biliteracy for all students Cultural exchange	Aims to have an even mix of English learners and English-dominant students	Students learn content in one language at a time, with the language of instruction rotating by subject or schedule.	This model requires enough students from both groups to maintain the two-way balance.
One-Way Dual Immersion	Biliteracy while strengthening a shared home language	Students who share the same home language	Students develop literacy in their home language while also learning a second language.	Because students share a home language, there may be fewer natural opportunities to practice the 2nd language with peers.
Heritage Language Programs	Maintain and strengthen a community language	Students with family or cultural connection to the language	Focus on speaking, reading, writing, and cultural knowledge in the heritage language, while also developing English.	These programs can vary widely in structure and intensity; ask specifically about what literacy outcomes students are expected to reach.
Transitional Bilingual (Early Exit)	Using home language as a bridge to English proficiency	English learners	Bilingual instruction for the first few years, and then transitioning to English-only instruction.	Due to the short duration of the program, students will likely not become fully literate in their home language.
