BWHS Art Students

Our talented BWHS Art teachers and students participated in several community events last week. The first was an art show at the Sunbury Community Library. This included our entire art department: Mrs. Maxson, Ms. Stevens, Ms. Chico, Mrs. Haer, and Mrs. Schar. In addition, Mrs. Maxson and her students completed a mural at the Sunbury Police Station, which is scheduled for completion by Wednesday of this week. The mural will be unveiled during a significant meeting that evening. Mayor Joe St. John expressed his satisfaction with the mural's appearance and the positive feedback from the staff at the station. Our art department and students are truly doing remarkable things in the community, taking pride in their work and planning these art events. Congratulations to all!

Journalism Honors

On Wednesday, February 25th, BWHS participated in the OCC Journalism Awards held at Dublin Jerome High School. Students were nominated across various categories, including Visual and Print Media. Ms. Horton had three of her students recognized for their exceptional achievements in her program. These students were part of the team responsible for the 2025 volume, which was designated a "Best Of" publication by Varsity Yearbooks. Their work was showcased four times in the 2025 portfolio, highlighting excellence in theme, coverage, and design. This marks the third consecutive year that the program has received this prestigious award, given the multitude of yearbooks published annually. The award will be presented this spring.

Award Recipients:

Pyper Blackman was honored as a Rising Star for her influence as a Young Journalist.

Sophia Abrams was recognized as a Rising Star for being the Best Emerging Journalist.

Ava Tackett received the Distinguished Leadership Award.
