[Kelli] In Fellowship, there's three of us in each class, so nine fellows total. We do rotations at LSU-Ochsner LSU, the main campus. We also rotate through the Veterans Hospital in Shreveport. And we do- our exposure to liver transplant is done through Willis Knighton. That we go through the hepatology program there. And, we also now go to Saint Mary's Clinic, and do some faculty clinic there. So during your first year of fellowship, you're doing mostly inpatient consults, and you rotate through LSU. And you also cover the consult-inpatient consult service at the VA. And you do a month at Willis Knighton, where you're exposed to liver transplant. And we also rotate through Saint Mary's clinic, where we just see gastroenterology clinic patients. And that's where our faculty clinic is held. Your second and third year, it's mostly procedure based. You're doing, and you're again rotating through LSU and the VA, but you're focus is more on endoscopy. And then you also spend two months in your second year on hepatology at Willis Knighton. And then you're throughout all three years rotating through to the Saint Mary's clinic. And also you have your own continuity clinic, once a week.	Kelli addressing camera.
