Student Council
Georgia Association of Student Councils

The Georgia Association of Student Councils was established in 1941. GASC provides opportunities for the training of leaders, a forum for the exchange of ideas, activities, and concerns, is an aid to individual GASC member schools in establishing/maintaining effective student councils, serves as a link to establish better relationships between member schools, and provides representation for member schools on the state, regional and national level.

The Certified State Leader Program (CSLP), offered by the Georgia Association of Student Councils (GASC), is designed to enhance leadership development across the state. For a $50 fee (separate from local fees), students participate in four interactive Zoom sessions featuring national keynote speakers. The program also includes completing and presenting a leadership capstone project, providing students with valuable leadership skills, collaboration across the state, and practical experience. (This cord is provided by the Georgia Association of Student Councils and presented to students at their CSLP graduation at State Convention).
